Donato is coaching the Central Ontario Boy's Volleyball Team in the Games. He feels his team should be one of the best there.

"This is really a good squad," he said. "We've been together practicing five or six times now and they really play together well."

Donato coached his Centre Hastings Secondary School (Madoc) team in the Central Ontario championship at the end of October and went on to place well in the Ontario Federation of Secondary School Athletic Championships in November.

We selected the squad at the COSSA championships," said Donato, "we chose the best in the area and find in the region." "The region stretches from Pickering to just this side of Kingston."

Donato's team consists of Pat Fennell, Fred Stewart and Russ Coens from Centre Hastings Madoc; Russ Watson, from Cayne, Jim Taylor Mott Scenic and Randy Edgar, from Crestwood in Peterborough, and Ed Vanderzall, Terry Kersteen and Cary Kersteen (cousins), from Pickering. The team manager is Ev English from Madoc Public School. Regardless of the geographic obstacles, the boys have gotten together regularly for practices and will come together for a couple more before they leave for Thunder Bay.

Even though Donato hesitates to make predictions about how the team will fare, his confidence in the squad is most evident.

Nevertheless his prognostication went as far as, "we should finish in the top pool of the Games."

The six representative Region Four Games play off in a round robin affair and then the top three teams are placed in Pool A and the bottom three in Pool B. Then the second and third place teams in each Pool play off and the winner plays the number one team in each Pool.

"They're strong enough to finish easily in the top three," said Donato.

The team flies up to Thunder Bay on December 26 and play the 27 and 28.

"They'll be highly competitive," said the coach, "I hope they'll bring back a gold medal."

"In any case, they'll, well, they'll play well and they'll represent the area well," he added.

Rollins Ties For Second

Rollins Lumbers of the Gas House Hockey League got an early Christmas present today. But the team worked for it. The gift was given grudgingly.

Sparked by John Mastos, each two goals, Rollins climbed into a tie for second place in the standings with Belleville Generals by dumping the Generals 6-3. Don Bowry and Bill Lynch led the other Rollins' goals. Carl Haines helped himself to two assists.

Replying for Generals were Ken Bertrand and Bill Van Sonlen, Hyalle Bryant picked up Sid's assists.

In other league action, Canadian Dervshis picked up its second win of the season in 13 starts by tripping Art's Kone 6-1 and lowered within one point of the eighth place team area's two goals. Rollins clinched

Crusader Win 'Super'—Coach

TORONTO (CP) — A 4-3 win early in the third period by Kraken Krais closed out the scoring for Cleveland midway in the final period.

hockey scores may look ordinary to most circumstances but, when it represents a team's second win in nine games it has a special meaning to someone in the John Ducan, coach of the Cleveland Crusaders.

"It was a super win," said Hanna after his club beat Toronto Toros 6-1 in the only World Hockey Association match Monday night.

"We have been having our problems, but tonight we played an all-around hockey game.

"The forwards jumped to get the puck and again to get back," said Hanna who also gave credit to goalie Bob Whidden for a "fantastic" performance in stopping 34 Toros shots.

"We've won two of our last three games. We've got a club that's better than what we've been showing."

The Crusaders, still 14 points behind the leading New England Whalers in the Eastern Division, had a 2-0 lead on first period goals by Steve Cardwell and Gerry Pinder.

Grant Erickson extended the lead to 3-0 early in the second period before Toronto's Tom Simpson scored his 36th goal of the season

BOBBY HULL

Jackson Optimistic

OTTAWA (CP) — "I plan to make a success of the new challenge," said Russ Jackson after he was named coach of Ottawa Rough Riders Monday.

The six-time star quarterback for Ottawa Rough Riders was packing his bags for Toronto to start a five-year contract Jan. 1 as head coach of the Argonauts.

"It's going to be extremely difficult to think of anywhere but Ottawa as home" he said nostalgically.

For the last 17 years he has lived here. In his 12 years with the Riders, he led the team to 12 playoff spots in the Canadian Football League's Eastern Conference and won three Grey Cups—in 1960 1961 and 1969.

He taught high school mathematics in the summer and became principal of Canterbury high school when he retired in 1968.

His new job will be a busy one, he said and he is looking forward to it.

53 Points Put the Jet at the Top

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (CP) — Bobby Hull of Winnipeg Jets continues to hold a slim edge on the World Hockey Association scoring race in statistics released Monday by the league.

Hull has 29 goals and 23 assists for 52 points to hold a two-point edge over Serge Bernier of Quebec Nordiques, who has 25 goals and 25 assists.

Larry Lund of Houston Aeros, with 19 goals and 30 assists, is two points back of Bernier with 48 points.

In fourth spot in the scoring race is Andre Lacroix of San Diego Mariners with 16 goals and 30 goals for 46 points.

Wings Win 3-1

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Goals in the second period by Ron Stackhouse and Mike Jakubo gave Virginia Red Wings a 3-1 American Hockey League victory Monday night over Hershey Bears.

The triumph moved the Red Wings past Richmond Robins into second place in the Southern Division and to within three points of first - running Baltimore Clippers.

Hershey took a 1-0 lead in the first period on Mando Pavelich's goal, but Virginia goalie Bill McKenzie shut the Bears out after that with 31 saves.

Wayne Dillon of Toronto Toros has 15 goals and 38 assists for 53 points, followed by Ulf Nilsson of the Jets with 43 points on 21 goals and 31 assists.

Bob Whidden of Cleveland Crusaders has the league's top goals against average with a 3.31 mark, playing 540 minutes.

Petes Top Soviets

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Right-winger Mike Pyrla scored twice and set up two other goals as Peterborough Petes defeated Soviet Union National Juniors 6-4 Monday in exhibition international hockey before 4,438 fans.

The Petes, in third place in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A League, were outrallied as they opened up a 4-2 first-period lead with Pyrla scoring both his goals. Steve Jervis, Tony Cousineau, Mark Ferner and Rod Laurence also added goals for the Petes.

Alexander Baldin, Boris Chichin, Sergei Abramov and Alexander Ivanov scored for the Soviets, aged 19-20.

The Petes, losers last year to the same Soviet team in the world junior tournament in Leningrad by a 9-8 score, led 3-1 before the 10-minute mark.

Jarvis slammed in a goal at 1:46 of the opening period. The Soviets came back with the first of their two power-play goals when Baldin beating Pete goalie Frank Sallwe.

Ferras and Pyrla then scored 37 seconds apart to give Peterborough a 3-1 lead. The Soviets bounced back on Chichinin's goal but Pyrla regained his club's two-goal lead, scoring on a 30-foot slapshot with 32 seconds left in the period.

Ivanov's power-play goal for the Soviets was the only goal of the second period. The Petes added two more early with two consecutive third-period goals by Cousineau and Laurence. The minor penalties were called, five to each team.

The Soviets leave today for Winnipeg to play in the second world junior hockey tournament where they open Thursday against Finland The Soviets won the defending gold-medal winners.

Espo Doesn't Waste Time

MONTREAL (CP) — Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins has scored 580 regular-season goals in the national Hockey League faster than 67 of his first predecessors who belong to the exclusive club.

Esposito scored his ninth and 580th goals Sunday in Boston's 5-4 win over Detroit Red Wings. Sunday night in his 878rd game wearing he reached the mile-stone in 38 fewer games than Bobby Hull, the previous record holder. Hull scored the goals in 1,026 games for Chicago Black Hawks before he jumped to the World Hockey Association.

Other players to score over 250 goals in NHL play were—Gordie Howe, who had 786 goals in 1,687 games for Detroit Red Wings; Maurice Richard, who finished with 544 goals in 978 games with Montreal Canadiens; Frank Mahovlich, a 533 goal man who started with Toronto Maple Leafs, went to Detroit and finished his NHL career in Montreal before moving to the WHA's Toronto Toros and Jean Beliveau of the Canadiens who had 507 goals in 1,125 games.

Esposito moved into the lead in the NHL scoring race as he scored nine goals and six assists in the Bruins four games last week.

Esposito now has 34 goals and 25 assists for 59 points and leads team-mate Bobby Orr by three points. Orr has 23 goals and 43 assists.

Gilbert Perreault of Buffalo Sabres is next with 31 goals and 30 assists for 51 points followed by Guy Lafleur of Montreal and Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers.

Lafleur has 22 goals and 26 assists for 48 points while Clarke has scored 19 goals and added 28 assists.

The Los Angeles Kings goal-tending duo of Rogatien Vachon and Gary Edwards have cut their league-leading average to 1.94 from last week's 1.95.

Bernie Parent of Philadelphia Flyers leads the league with six shutouts while Tony Esposito of Chicago and Gary Smith of Vancouver Canucks have five each.

The Year in Sports Reviewed

'74 Opened As Predicted But After That—Upsets

By CHUCK STOBODA
The Canadian Press

The 1974 Canadian sports scene opened with a number of predictable victories but, as the year progressed, many of the acts bore little resemblance to the script.

A cast of 115 Canadian athletes led off with a strong performance at the Commonwealth Games in Christchurch, N.Z., picking up enough medals to meet most expectations.

Then the belligerent Philadelphia Flyers stormed to victory in the Stanley Cup final, ignoring the raw cards which had been pegged as underdogs.

Late in September, an all-star troupe from the World Hockey Association called Team Canada 74 scrubbed its way to a win and two ties against the superb Soviet squad in the four games on Canadian ice before losing three and tying one in Moscow.

And, as the year drew to a close, at least three National Hockey League teams—Buffalo Sabres, Vancouver Canucks and Los Angeles Kings—ignored the casting which listed them as also-ran and were playing leading roles.

Just before the Commonwealth Games started Jan. 24 in Christchurch, one Canadian official said: "I think this meet is too important to us as a means of getting experience [.] you come here, you should have a chance at it and I believe that's the kind of team we have."

The athletes proved him right by getting used to the rarefied, five more than the best previous gold harvest.

Led by the women's swimming and diving team, which beat its Australian counterpart 9-6 in the gold-medal race, the Canadians took home 62 medals The best total-medal count was 61 at the 1970 Edinburgh Games, that take included only 18 golds

The Canadian team finished third in the medal standings at Christchurch behind Australia and England.

One of the outstanding Canadian stars was Wendy Cook, a 17-year-old Vancouver swimmer, who won the 100- and 200-metre backstroke and shared a third gold medal in the 400-metre medley relay, setting a world record in her backstroke leg

Double gold winners were swimmer Leslie Cliff of Vancouver and Janet Nutter Thornhill, Ont., in discus and shot put. While there were few gold medalists among the men in swimming and track and field, the wrestling and shooting teams made up the difference with four golds each.

A limited number of talented players such as centre Bobby Clarke and goalie Bernie Parent, plus a lot of scrappy, hard-working youngsters carried the Flyers to victory over Boston Bruins, 4-2, in games, for the first Stanley Cup win by an NHL expansion team.

"Individually, we don't look as good as the Bruins on paper," said Parent who was a new car as most valuable player in the playoffs and then gave the car to Flyers coach Fred Shero. "But you look as the ice, not on paper."

Meanwhile, Gordie Howe and sons Mark and Marty helped Houston Aeros win the WHA championship with a 4-3 sweep over Chicago Cougars.

The NHL and its players' association, having learned in 1972 the folly of meeting the Soviets in September, declined to join Team Canada 74, leaving the WHA to staff the Canadian side for another eight-game series against the world amateur champions.

After the NHL had barely beaten the Soviets 4-3 with one game tied in 1972, many observers expected the weaker WHA would be overwhelmed. But the WHA start, led by Gordie Howe, Bobby Hull, Ralph Backstrom, Gerry Cheevers and J. C. Tremblay, surprised many of their detractors by tying the first game, winning the second and picking up two more ties in a series marred by poor officiating.

Regina Pats claimed the 1974 Memorial Cup major junior ice hockey championship, Barrie Flyers took the senior Allan Cup, title and Smith's Falls won the Junior Centennial Cup.

Before the start of the football season, Sam Berger had a For Sale sign out in Montreal but found no takers for his unprofitable Alouettes and withdrew the Canadian Football League team from the market. Six months later, his players doused him with champagne after they had beaten Edmonton Eskimos 20-7 in the Grey Cup final at Vancouver.

In the Callere Bowl at Toronto, University of Western Ontario upset University of Toronto Blues 19-15.

The 1973-74 curling season was topped up with Ken Lavigne of St. Albert, Alta., winning his second Canadian men's championship. Emily Farnham of Saskatoon skipped the winning women's rink and Rudy King's foursome from Edmonton won the schoolboy title International competition, however, Gervais and the world championship semi-finals at Bern, Switzerland, and Sandy Somerville of the United States took the title. King lost in a Swiss rink in the world junior final.

Canadian were well behind when the Canadian soccer club championship wound up at Mississauga, Ont., with American Bobby Nichols the victor. Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., was the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association selectee.

Canadian Fergie Jenkins continued as one of the stars in as American sport. The Chatham pitcher from Chatham, Ont., won 25 games for Texas Rangers of the American League and, for a record fourth year, was named Canadian male athlete of the year in a Canadian Press poll of sports writers and broadcasters.

Thoroughbred stable owner Jack Gaines of Toronto claimed the Queen's Plate for the second year in a row at his Amber Herod defeated a lacklustre field.

Peterborough PCOs won their third straight Minto Cup junior lacrosse title and New Westminster Salmonbellies took the Mann Cup senior championship.

Elsewhere in lacrosse, the new National Lacrosse League made its debut with teams in Toronto, Montreal and four U.S. cities. After disappointing attendance, the Toronto club went looking for a more hospitable U.S. city.

Toronto-Buffalo Royals of the new World Team Tennis circuit did the same.

And Toronto Northmen never did get to start the World Football League's first season in Toronto. Faced with federal government opposition, the Northmen moved to Memphis and became the Southmen, one of only three relatively stable franchises in a financially troubled league.

The year saw the curtain come down on a number of notable sports careers. Defenceman Tim Horton, a veteran all-star NHL performer, was killed in auto accident; Lloyd Percival, controversial fitness expert and former track coach, died of a heart attack as did Indian Jack Adcobs, one-time CFL star with Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The loss of Horton hit hard at the Buffalo Sabres defence and the club finished out the 1973-74 playoffs. The Sabres were not expected to do much better in the next season but, after the first 36 games, they had collected more points than any other club in the league.

Los Angeles Kings, ably coached by Bob Pulford, were in a fight with Montreal Canadiens for leadership of their NHL division, and the surprising Vancouver Canucks had a healthy lead in their division.

There was a tomahdan star for the first time in U.S. stock-car racing as Earl Ross of Ailsa Craig, Ont., became the first rookie in 17 years to win a Nascar event and was later named rookie of the year.

Lynn Nightingale of Ottawa and Toller Cranston of Toronto won Canadian figure-skating championships at Moncton, N.B., and then headed for Munich where Miss Nightingale finished sixth in the world championships and Cranston won a third-place bronze medal. Barry and Louise Sage of North Vancouver won their fourth consecutive Canadian dance crown and the brother-sister team of Paul and Val Bezic captured their fifth pairs title.

Mid-year saw the revival of a old sport—swimming across Lake Ontario. Cindy Nicholas, 15, of Toronto, became the youngest person ever to complete the swim. A slight time later Neil MacNeil, 17-year-old Toronto lifeguard, drowned while trying to cross the lake.

"For Sale"—To Cup

Before the 1974 Canadian Football League season started, Montreal Alouettes' owner Sam Berger had his team up for sale. The club was not making money. No one showed up to buy and Berger stuck with it. He was rewarded on November 24 when his Alouettes defeated Edmonton Eskimos for the Grey Cup, 20-7, in the rain at Vancouver's Empire Stadium. Hoisting cup is Als' Mike Widger.

The other three qualifying tournaments will be in Rochester, Feb. 6 and 8; Tampa, Feb. 14 and 16, and San Francisco, Feb. 21 and 22. Christmas

For God So Loved The World...

. . . that He gave His only begotten Son, the Gospels proclaim. This is the wonder of Christmas — the glorious manifestation of God's love for mankind through the birth of His Son Jesus. As we celebrate Christ's coming and praise God for His goodness and mercy toward men, let us strive to respond to that Divine generosity by giving in return to those around us . . . to our fellow-men, whom God has loved so much.

IN MEMORIAM

BRUSH — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ernest Brush, who passed away Dec. 25, 1971.
Sadly missed and make no more.
Those we loved him more than we, Those we miss are with us still, Many thoughts are with you dear, Memories are our treasures here.
— Lovingly remembered by wife Annie, son Ernest and family.

GARROW, Johan — In loving memory of my dear husband who passed away Dec. 24, 1969.
Not in death lost, not in grave, But in our home still dwells a memory sweet of thankful praise, Which neither time nor death can raise.
Days of sadness still come over us, Tears in silence we shed, Thinking of you and wishing you were not dead, For they little know of the heartache we have within the heart concealed.
— Ever remembered by wife Annie.

CARD OF THANKS

The sisters and nieces of the late Mrs. Margaret Ann Hall (nee Bowerman) wish to express their sincere appreciation for flowers, cards and sympathy received during the illness and sudden passing of our sister and aunt at Belleville General Hospital, December 19th, 1974. Special thanks to Rev. Ralph Bell.
Thank you all.
— Mrs. Cecil Batchelor, Mrs. Martha Fraser, Belleville, Mrs. Iva Fraser, Toronto.

As a CN pensioner treated in the Belleville General Hospital, I would like to thank sincerely the nurses and staff members for the special attention and kindness shown to me during my recent stay and consulting words. Sincerely yours, Mrs. Ethel Hawkins, Thanksgiving, Belleville-Ontario.

Continue NATO Support

LONDON (AFP) — British Defence Minister Roy Mason says Britain must continue its support for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) to counter "the continual threat to Western security by the massive and growing military power of the Warsaw Pact countries." Britain's Labor government has indicated it intends to make only minimal cuts in its NATO defences.

Hard for Heath

LONDON (AFP) — Draft election procedures for leadership of Britain's Conservative party released here will make it difficult for party leader Edward Heath to retain his post as head of the party if Heath is defeated Tory chief once and for all in 1975. The new rules propose that the party leader must stand for re-election each year. In addition, the successful candidate will need to receive an absolute majority in the first round plus 15 per cent more votes than the nearest rival. The Tories currently comprise the members that would require 15 votes against 117 for the nearest rival, with no abstentions. In 1965, Mr. Heath didn't get such a margin.

Forecast for 1975

More Jobless, Higher Prices Tightened Belts Lie Ahead

By BUD JORGENSEN

OTTAWA (CP) — More people will be out of work in 1975 and household budgets will be squeezed while prices go up just about as fast as they did in 1974.

These predictions, based on government and private economic forecasts, may sound bleak but the economy is expected to be one of the strongest among industrial countries in 1975.

Unemployment is expected to average between six and seven per cent, compared with about 5.4 per cent in 1974. Some forecasters expect the unemployment rate to reach about eight per cent in some months.

Most economists expect consumers will be cutting down on spending plans and they likely will be spending less on big-ticket purchases.

However, business spending on new plant and equipment is expected to be considerably greater than in 1974 and this means spending to create new jobs in subsequent years.

The government's inflation goal is to hold increases in the consumer price index to 10 per cent. The increase in 1974 was about 10.5 per cent.

Predictions by private economic forecasters range between nine and 12 per cent.

Thomas Bolton, president of Dominion Stores Ltd., predicts food prices will rise 15 per cent.

Most predictions are that inflation here will be less severe than in most other industrial countries.

The value of the Canadian dollar is expected to decline slightly, which tends to make imports more expensive—bad news for shoppers.

However, a cheaper dollar tends to make exports more competitive and exports account for more than one-quarter of total production.

Handling of the economy was an election issue in 1974 following the unprecedented Commons defeat of the minority Liberal government on a budget last May.

The Progressive Conservatives advocated wage and price controls to contain inflation. The Liberals pointed to conditions in the United States, where inflation was worse and controls had failed. The July 8 general election result gave the Liberals a majority.

Finance Minister John Turner announced a guidelines approach to inflation in December. Federal officials plan to ask business and labor leaders what limits they would consider acceptable and by February attempt to begin negotiations on guidelines. He hinted at further action to back up the guidelines if necessary but declined to elaborate.

The best performance came during the first three months of the year. There was no growth in the second and third quarters and while fourth-quarter figures have not been compiled there are some indications of a slight decline. Exports, consumer spending and housing components, are down.

Real growth, discounting the effects of inflation is expected to be about four per cent in 1974, due to the first quarter performance.

Predictions for growth in 1975 range between two and four per cent.

A recession in the United States has had an immediate impact because roughly one-sixth of total production is for export in the U.S.

A Toronto Dominion Bank forecast says the prospect for foreign sales is "the most significant demand factor influencing the current performance and near-term outlook" for the economy.

There has been no growth or decline in production for most of Canada's major trading partners. These countries have restricted production, partly due to higher prices for oil. Cutting production also has been tried as a way of containing inflation but these attempts have not had much success.

The oil crisis which hit most industrial countries was less of a problem here in 1974. Domestic production is about equal in consumption and federal-provincial agreements established a two-price system, insuring the domestic price for crude oil at $8.39 a barrel or about $1 below the world price.

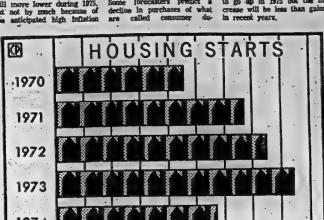
Petroleum product prices will go up in 1975. For gasoline the increase probably will be at least five cents a gallon.

One of the most contentious sets of proposals in the May budget, on which the government was defeated, was aimed at increasing substantially the federal share of resource revenue, mainly from oil.

In a new budget, tabled in November, the federal take was scaled down.

The industry contended that the combined federal-provincial tax did not leave enough for exploration and development of new reserves.

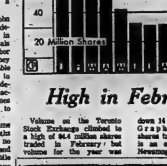
A National Energy Board report late in the year said self-sufficiency would end by about 1980 without significant new discoveries.



Wage earners had been falling behind inflation rates, on average, but since about mid-1974 average wage gains have been greater than increases in the consumer price index.

Housing construction is in a slump. The industry started construction on about 215,000 housing units in 1974, the worst year since 1970, and all predictions are that the total for 1975 will be lower. Mr. Turner says he hopes it will be possible to achieve 200,000.

Interest rates have been declining and mortgage rates usually are the last to fall or rise in cyclical changes in rates. Mortgage rates likely will move lower during 1975, but not by much because of the anticipated high inflation rate.



Fewer new homes being built means fewer purchases of furniture and appliances. Some forecasters predict a decline in purchases of what are called consumer durables — such items as appliances and furniture.

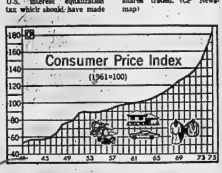
Economists generally expect total consumer spending to go up in 1975 but the increase will be less than gains in recent years.

Housing Down

Housing construction is in a slump. The industry started construction on about 215,000 housing units in 1974, the worst year since 1970. Predictions are that the total for 1975 will not exceed 200,000 units. Fewer homes being built means fewer purchases of furniture and appliances. Mortgage rates will likely move lower during 1975 but not by much because of an anticipated high inflation rate. (CP Newsmap)

High in February

Volume on the Toronto Stock Exchange climbed to a high of 94.4 million shares traded in February but volume for the year was down 14 per cent from 1973. Graph traces monthly shares traded and December is an estimated figure.(CP Newsmap)



Up and Down

Volume on the Vancouver Stock Exchange showed some strength early in the year with 93.2 million shares traded in February. But with spiralling inflation and monetary instability the market hit a low level in September with only 33.9 million shares traded. (CP Newsmap).

Markets Down

Volume on the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges were down for this year despite removal of the U.S. interest equalization tax which should have made Canadian shares more attractive to U.S. buyers. April showed the only increase for the year with 32.4 million shares traded. (CP Newsmap)

Index Keeps Rising

Household budgets will be squeezed during 1975 while prices go up just about as fast as they did in 1974. The consumer price index for 1974 is expected to reach 165.7 an increase of about 10.8 per cent, Thomas Bolton, President of Dominion Stores Ltd., predicts food prices will rise by 15 per cent in 1975. The average index for 1975 (broken line) is expected to reach 181. Graph traces the consumer price index, based on 1961 prices, from 1941 to 1975. (CP Newsmap)

Foreigners Increase

LONDON (AP) — Nearly three million foreigners live in Britain, according to the latest figures announced here. In the 10 years from 1961 to 1971 the number living in the country increased by 35 per cent to 3.5 of the population.

The Parable of

"The Hotel Man and the BEDBUGS"

Once upon a time there was a hustling young newspaper advertising salesman who called upon the operator of a small hotel in his town. He suggested that the hotel man begin a schedule of display ads to increase the use of his hotel for guests of local people who did not have overnight accommodations for out-of-town guests.

The local hotel entrepreneur agreed there was merit in the suggestion and that advertising to local people for this purpose could result in an increase in his hotel's occupancy rate.

He felt, however, that he could not afford "large enough" ads to do the job. He told the energetic and imaginative young space salesman that "nobody reads small ads".

The not-to-be discouraged newspaper man thought for a moment and then said, "Mr. Jones, I know people do read small ads. In fact, I'm so convinced they do that I'm going to run a series of two-inch ads for you absolutely free."

This perked up the ears of the slightly reluctant innkeeper, who was still smiles when Mr. Adman said, 'But, I want to write the copy in the ads myself." This didn't seem like a too unreasonable request, so Mr. Jones responded with "O.K., but what are you going to say in my ads?"

"Nine words, Mr. Jones, is all I want in your ad. It will simply read: 'The Jones Hotel has the biggest bedbugs in town.'"

To which the now nearly apoplectic innkeeper responded, "You'll drive me out of business!" and received the quick rejoinder: "Mr. Jones, you said no one ever reads small ads."

MORAL:

People do read small ads. Many a large business started with small ads, and only because the small ads produced results were they able to become big enough to run larger ads. Don't put off telling people about your products or services just because you can't compete flawless with larger businesses . . . call today for an Intelligencer display advertising account executive to help you set up a small-space advertising campaign.

Fathers of Fantasticks Return to Main Stem

NEW YORK (AP) — Harvey Schmidt and Tom Jones are ready to report in after extended voluntary exile from Broadway.

"We'll know soon whether we want to keep on," says Jones of their experimental begin, "or go back to more commercial theatre activity."

Schmidt and Jones are the composer and lyricist of that mini-epic The Fantasticks which has been running off-Broadway 14 years and has grossed 96 million from 8,378 productions around the world.

Then, moving up to the Main Stem, the pair provided scores for 110 in the Shade and I Do, I Do—events which established them as the boldest musical collaborators since Rodgers and Hammerstein.

The hit skein ended with Celebration, a romantic allegory soothed by sustained popularity in black and college performances.

Alfresco enabled them five years ago to get off the showbiz merry-go-round and set up a workshop to test new forms of musical expression.

"Since we teamed up 20 years ago at the University of Texas this was always the aim," said Jones, who does most of the team's talking.

"The Broadway musical is the greatest form of theatre in our time. But it doesn't always have to be what it has been. Such a great form contains many possibilities that cannot be tested under usual commercial limits."

A battered old six-storey brownstone house in a seedy section of Manhattan once known as Hell's Kitchen was found in which to pursue assorted dreams.

Over the door scrawled heavy with graffiti by rambunctious pupils from the high school next door, hangs a board with the word "Portfolio," a name adopted from an early show the pair wrote.

Schmidt and Jones have schuticked the studio themselves, but beyond $1,500 monthly rent prefers not to know what the venture has cost and aren't sure whether the place is incorporated.

"We have a tangible manner," is the way Jones dismisses such matters.

Dropped out of her baby-hurly in mid-career under such circumstances might seem self-indulgence, but that is strenously denied.

"The path periodically invites a hundred or so people in to see a work in progress and, asserted Jones, "they let you know loud and clear if anything verges on the pretentious."

As the next step in revelation, the team is throwing the doors open for month-long presentations of four main projects so that the public and critics can judge.

On a modified Elizabethan stage trimmed with masks, props and costumes designed by Schmidt—a successful commercial artist before The Fantasticks—will be shown a new version of Portfolio, then Philemon, a revised Celebration and The Rose Room.

The partners hesitantly flirt with basic creative goals in somewhat mystical terms. "We don't want to sound pretentious," said Jones.

The Fantasticks and Celebration, as far as the authors are concerned, related to the cycle of the seasons that loomed so large in primitive society. Some of the new work delves more deeply into man's psychic underground.

"We have frequently offers while here to do shows for Broadway," Schmidt said. "It's easy for people to think we're just the same kind of closet drama just doing easy things to gratify ourselves. But what we are doing is harder than doing a show for David Merrick."

The most traumatic experience Jones ever had was one satisfactorily exception for Celebration—"the most original thing we've ever done up to that point."

To his partner, however, "The most traumatic thing in trying to create initially something you like yourself. The rest you can endure somehow."

Vladimir Horowitz Warns Against Too Much Practice

NEW YORK (AP) — "I'm an old trooper," said Vladimir Horowitz, the classical pianist usually described by far more reverent phrases. "I know the more you practice, sometimes, the worse you get.

"There people who think they should repeat a difficult passage 165 times, when they're on the stage, they repeat it the 166th time. You don't have to take a chance some times; you may hit wrong notes but we're all human. If you repeat it too much, it goes mechanical.

"I practice in general not more than one hour to 1½ hours a day. I don't miss. Those pianists who travel very much, they have no open parts to do it. Sometimes they don't have an instrument to use. Then they come back home and play five hours a day."

Horowitz, 70, can practice every day and take a daily breath-a walk near his Connecticut home, because he travels so little that when he does each concert is a real "occasion." This year, Horowitz played in Cleveland, and smilingly said Cleveland thought it was seeing a ghost. He also played at the Metropolitan Opera House, his first New York concern in six years and the first at the Met by a solo classical artist.

"I read so much in the paper that he did a lot in real life," said Horowitz. "I think it is our duty to do something for such institutions. I hope other artists will do it too."

All proceeds went to the opera.

"When I was 18-19 years old and studying at the Kiev Conservatory, my teacher was giving me lectures because instead of learning a prelude and fugue of Bach, I was learning the (opera) scenes of Goetterdaemmerung and Die Meistersinger by heart," Horowitz said. "I was interested in general in good music, symphonic or operatic—it is good music which brings success in the country."

Horowitz retired from playing in public in 1953 and made a comeback in 1965 at Carnegie Hall. Since 1965 his few recitals; none as soloist with a symphony. Maybe he'll play with a symphony again in the spring, he said.

V. HOROWITZ

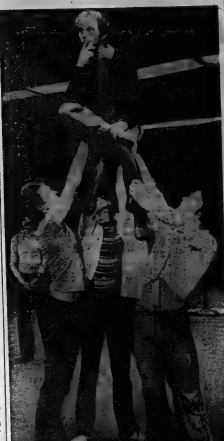
"The trouble with playing with orchestra is rehearsal and repertoire. I don't rehearse too early in the day and I don't play at night. It has to be afternoon, when my concentration and strength are at their peak. If it is a special opportunity or special concert, I would do it."

Horowitz, unlike most of today's concert pianists, likes to play short pieces as well as long ones.

"The long-playing record brought the ambition to put those long pieces of music—30 minutes. They put a long piece on an LP; they do it in recitals. The piano literature is so great on short pieces as on large pieces.

"If you play something only three pages long, you have to have your own fantasy and your own feeling. Believe me, it is easier to play a long piece. It makes a good impression; people think: 'He is a good musician.'"

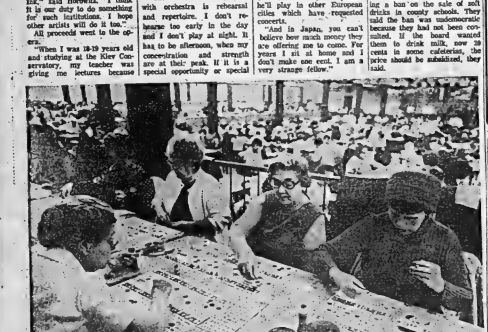
Travelling is no fun, Horowitz said. That's why I sit home five years and don't travel. Frankly, I'm afraid to fly, but I can do it. When it goes up, I have to touch the hand of my wife and hold it. After that, it is fine."



Mrs. Horowitz, daughter of Arturo Toscanini, is also a pianist. Horowitz has left Columbia Records. "If a record comes out, it must not be kept like a military secret. It is better that you must advertise." He is "flirting" with a couple of European companies.

Horowitz will play two concerts in London next June. He doesn't know yet whether he'll play in other European cities which have requested concerts.

"And in Japan, you can't believe how much money they are offering me to come. For years I sit at home and I don't make money. I am a very strange fellow."



Protest Drink Ban

RENFREW, Ont. (CP) — Five thousand students of Renfrew County signed a petition to the board of education protesting a ban on the sale of soft drinks in county schools. They said the ban was undemocratic because they had not been consulted. If the board wanted them to drink milk, now 10 cents in some cafeterias, the price should be subsidized, they said.

Oscar winner Joel Grey is at the top of a human pedestal of chorus boys blondey as he goes through dance routine for his new musical "Goodtime Charley" in New York. Grey's last role on Broadway, was in "Cabaret" five years ago — the role that won him a film award and sent him to hollywood to stare in Cabaret for the movie version.(AP Photo)

Hernia Requires No Special Diet

By G. C. THORESON, MD

Dear Doctor: Please tell what foods I cannot eat. I was told I have hiatus hernia.—V.G.

You should avoid highly spiced foods and alcohol, which will increase stomach acidity and in turn irritate the hernia.

There really is no special diet for hiatal hernia patients. The important thing is to avoid any heavy meal or meals late at night.

Limit night snacks to something harmless—like milk and crackers.

Antacid may be used about an hour after eating to counteract any acidity.

If there is an ulcer in the hernia (or burning and bleeding would be the symptoms of this), then an ulcer-type diet of small, bland frequent feedings is used.

Obesity can aggravate the hernia so, if you need to lose weight.

Dear Dr. Thoreson: I am 62 years old and have never—Ed.

I got to know a very nice man. He would like to get married. I am worried because I don't think I could have marriage relations as I am very small. Do you think anything could be done to remedy this?—P.S.

You may be placing undue emphasis on an unproven condition.

I suggest you be checked by a doctor. You should have a pelvic examination anyway.

You probably are more normal than you think.

Dear Dr. Thoreson: Some time ago I read in your column about the bad effects of excessive consumption of licorice, but I can't remember just what. Can it cause certain diseases or aggravate some condition one already has?—R.B.

Too much licorice can cause a condition called pseudo-aldosteronism. This featured by a loss of potassium (an essential element in the body's chemical balance) high blood pressure, headache, and heart irregularity.

It's possible—but not very common. If you have some of the above symptoms and are an overzealous licorice-eater, then maybe you ought to cut down. But unless you are having such troubles, I wouldn't worry about nibbling your "licorice" now and then.

Dear Dr. Thoreson: My husband, in his 50s, has been having blood in his semen the last few months.

The doctor checked his prostate and found nothing wrong. He told him not to worry about it, but we do.

Isn't unusual bleeding the symptom of something wrong? What is your opinion?—Mrs. E.J.M.

Unusual bleeding usually means something is wrong, but sometimes it is difficult to pin down.

His having been checked and found okay is important.

One point: You should be checked yourself to make sure you are not the source of the blood because of some disorder of the cervix or vagina.

Dear Dr. Thoreson: Ten weeks ago I calculated bright red blood and semen. I am 55. Eight weeks ago I had a wax treatment and left blood stains.

Six weeks ago I went to a urologist and he told me he did not understand my condition and we should wait for a time. He said he had seen this only once or twice in his experience. There is no blood in my urine.

I have no pain or discomfort. I did not have a cystoscope because I feel that my doctor is only playing around and does not understand what is wrong with me. Would you shed some light on this?—R.S.

Blood in the ejaculate is usually harmless, however alarming it may be to the patient. However, it is not common. A urologic examination (by cystoscope) is in order, to determine the state of the prostate gland and blood vessels in the urinary tract, as well as the kidneys themselves.

You don't appear to have much confidence in your urologist. In that case, have your personal physician refer you to another—but it sounds to me as though you refused a cystoscopic examination on [illegible] the urologist doesn't undertake to diagnose nor case before examining you. That doesn't sound reasonable to me.

Missing British MP Arrested in Australia

MELBOURNE (CP) — A member of the British Parliament who disappeared five weeks ago in Florida was arrested Monday in Australia on a charge of entering the country illegally, police said.

Detective Chief Supt. Mick Patterson said 49-year-old John Thomson Markham was arrested entering the country on a false passport and was scheduled to go to court on Christmas Day.

The detective gave no explanation for Stonehouse's disappearance.

Associated Press quoted police sources saying Stonehouse had been travelling under the name of Markham and was arrested in a seaside suburb of Melbourne on a tip from Interpol, the international police organization. But Reuters news agency said the false passport was in the name of John Norman.

Patterson said Stonehouse entered Australia at Perth airport on Dec. 19, 20 days after he disappeared in Miami Beach, Fla.

"Stonehouse has been frequenting Melbourne post office receiving information from England. He may have been trying to get out of Australia," the detective said.

MP since 1957

Stonehouse has been a Labor party member of the House of Commons since 1957 and was aviation minister and then minister of posts and telecommunications in Prime Minister Harold Wilson's 1964-70 Labor government. He was on a business trip to the United States when he disappeared on Nov. 20 after telling friends at his hotel he was going for a swim.

Stonehouse's wife, Barbara, told reporters in London that she believed her husband had drowned. But the Miami police refused to close the file on the case because the body had not been recovered.

British newspapers speculated that Stonehouse had been killed by the Mafia when a body encased in concrete was found near the beach on which he was supposed to have taken his last swim. But investigators proved that the body wasn't his.

Two British newspapers reported that a Czech agent who defected six years ago, Josef Frolik, claimed Stonehouse was a spy for the Communists. But Wilson told the House of Commons last week that Frolik's story was investigated at the time and no evidence was found to support his allegations. Another report, also denied by Wilson, linked Stonehouse to the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency.

There was also newspaper speculation that Stonehouse had gone underground because of reverses in international business deals he was trying to swing, including trade contracts with Bangladesh and a contract to sell Rolls-Royce cement to Nigeria. His wife denied this.

Police said Stonehouse apparently flew to Melbourne from Hawaii seven days after his Miami disappearance, then visited Singapore and Denmark before returning to Australia on Dec. 19. The same false passport had been used to get earlier visit to the U.S. and a trip to Lebanon.

They said the arrested man had been under police surveillance for two weeks.

Counter-intelligence Head Of CIA Resigns His Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — James Angleton, named in published reports as overseer of alleged illegal spying by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), told The Associated Press today he has resigned as head of the agency's counter-intelligence operations.

Angleton's resignation became known after President Ford ordered Bill Colby and Henry Kissinger to get a report from the CIA "within a matter of days" on the allegations of spying on U.S. citizens within the United States.

Three congressional committees otherwise announced Monday that they would launch separate investigations of the matter when Congress returns next year.

A spokesman for Kissinger said Monday that the secretary "has never seen any survey of American citizens by the CIA and he doesn't know if any such exist."

But later, administration sources disclosed that a CIA survey titled Restless Youth existed. Kissinger's desk in March, 1968. They described it as a general, philosophical discussion of the youth movement abroad with references to the attitudes of U.S. students and youth during the 1960s.

Angleton, 57 and a veteran of 31 years in the intelligence field, said he will leave the agency at the end of the month. Angleton said he is resigning because he felt he is guilty of any wrongdoing but because of what he said are the interests of the agency

The New York Times had reported that he headed a "spying operation during the Nixon years that files on 10,000 U.S. citizens and performed breaking and surveillance in the United States

Informed sources said the resignation had been arranged late last week in a meeting between Angleton and CIA director William Colby. It was understood that Angleton's public identification had been a factor in the resignation.

Another source, familiar with U.S. counter-intelligence operations, said the FBI knew about any CIA spying and that former FBI director J. Edgar Hoover had been adamant that CIA not approach anyone in this country.

World May Become Better, But at Price of Freedom

OTTAWA (CP) — The Economic Council of Canada says the western world eventually may become a better place to live, but only at the loss of more individual freedom.

Underlying social trends, such as one toward more social and economic equality, suggest a shift toward more justice, humanity and wisdom for future generations, states a 90-page background study released Monday. But they also indicated a more toward a...ture controlled society.

A source within the CIA confirmed the existence of such a file and said it had been maintained by the U.S. Intelligence board, a committee whose members include the heads of the government's various intelligence services.

The board compiled a dossier on Anderson after publication of classified documents in his syndicated column had blown the cover of CIA agents abroad, the source said.

Angleton had come to the attention of one of the congressional investigations of Watergate, a source familiar with that investigation said he got the clear impression that Angleton's operation was very secret and was feared by other CIA employees.

...are called 'social indicators.'

In its final chapter, the report's author D. W. Henderson identifies "four future trends governing the future evolution of our society," all of which point to better times ahead.

The trend toward social and economic equality can be seen by movements for women's liberation, ethnic and racial equality, reduction of poverty and others, states Dr. Henderson, an economic planner on the council's staff.

Another major trend is a shift in emphasis from materialistic objectives to humanistic concerns such as health care, environmental quality and job satisfaction, he states.

The third trend that could deeply influence society is the increasing, basic understanding of science and technology.

Inventions in natural sciences, such as atomic energy and radio transistors, follow from understood principles, increasing the opportunity to manage society better.

Finally, the report suggests society will become more controlled and communal and less individualistic as population pressures force governments to limit more individual freedoms.

Watergate Case Nears Conclusion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attention at the Watergate cover-up trial is focused on the absence of Richard Nixon as defendant or witness in the case that drove him from the United States presidency.

Judge John Sirica started Monday to comment on the pardon granted Nixon by President Ford but then restrained himself.

"It's too bad—well, I better not say what I'm thinking," said the judge after the jury had been sent from the courtroom to begin a two-day Christmas recess.

The jurors will spend tonight and Christmas Day with their families in a hotel banquet room under the watchful eye of 37 marshals.

The issue of the Nixon pardon came up during lawyer William Frates' closing argument to the jury on behalf of his client, former Nixon aide John Ehrlichman.

Frates recalled that prosecutor Hamon Javal had likened the five cover-up defendants to members of an orchestra, saying that while some may play far less than others, all are essential parts of the total orchestration.

"Javal and prosecutor, we're missing one person here, the orchestra leader, that's who we're looking in this case," Frates said.

White House Gate-crasher Surrenders After Fake Bomb Threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials were reviewing White House security measures today following a Christmas morning gate-crashing by a self-professed "messiah" who kept guards at bay for hours with bogus explosives.

Treasury Secretary William Simon said the incident, which came 10 months after another man crashed an army helicopter on the White House lawn, demonstrates the need "to learn how similar things could be prevented from happening again".

President Ford and his family were on a skiing vacation in Colorado Wednesday when the man rammed his car through a White House gate.

No shots were fired during the four-hour confrontation at the man, dressed in Arab garb and wired to what guards feared were explosives, stood near the north portico where presidents frequently greet foreign dignitaries.

After he surrendered, the Secret Service said agents found that the intruder, identified as Marshall Fields, 42, of Silver Spring, Md., had no explosives.

Fields, son of a late state department official who had served in Arab countries, was taken to a mental hospital for observation.

In a rambling statement mailed recently to several Washington-area news organizations, a man identifying himself as Fields declared he would take action against the government on Christmas Day — "as the Messiah to those who wish to believe," the statement said.

Simon said one of the questions to be considered by security officials would be whether to put up stronger gates.

A Secret Service spokesman said the response of agents Wednesday would have been different in Ford or members of his family had been at the White House. He did not say what measures would have been taken.

Police said Fields made a U-turn on Pennsylvania Avenue in front of the White House about dawn, "gunned" his car through the east-lane northwest gate and then sped up a winding 180-yard driveway to the White House.

What had started as a quiet Christmas morning became a tense stand-off between Fields and White House security men who fanned out over the grounds, keeping a distance from the intruder.

On his hood, Fields wore a piece of white cloth tied to resemble an Arab kerchief. He held his gloved hands in the air.

When he was told to keep his hands in front of him, Fields complied, but he held what appeared to be a detonator in his right hand.

Fields was questioned by White House security men and then turned over to Washington police, who took him to hospital for observation. A Secret Service spokesman said that was expected to take at least five days.

The Secret Service said Fields is the son of Marshall Hill Fields, a former official of the U.S. Agency for International Development who died of cancer last May. He had served as an education specialist in Iraq, Libya and the Sudan.

The younger Fields, who had learned Arabic while living abroad with his parents, began acting erratically after his father's death, psychiatrists said.

The intruder surrendered after hearing at his car radio a broadcast by the Howard University radio station of his demand to talk with Ambassador Yaseh Kaiss, Pakistan's ambassador to the United States.

A spokesman for the Pakistani embassy later said the ambassador had never heard of Fields and refused to see him. Police said they had no idea why Fields wanted to talk with the ambassador.

Silent Night, Lonely Night

'Twas the night before Christmas, and all through the streets, not a creature was stirring but police on their beats. City police Constable Gary Chilgrass, on duty Christmas Eve, glances wistfully at a Christmas tree in a Front St. store window as he checks for unlocked doors, and contemplates Christmas morning with his wife and 14-month-old daughter, Jennifer.

Christmas Messages

Queen Suggests Common Assault

LONDON (Reuter) — Queen Elizabeth called on her subjects Wednesday to forget their quarrels and join in a common assault on the host of problems which "seem to have happened at once."

"There have been floods and drought and famine. There have been outbreaks of senseless violence. And on top of it all the cost of living continues to rise everywhere."

The Queen said the British parliamentary system had shown itself over the centuries to be a good device for bringing progress out of conflict.

Holiday Cyclone Cripples Darwin

DARWIN (AP) — Disease from polluted water is threatening survivors of the Christmas Day cyclone that devastated this northern Australian city.

Hospital officials said today the number of children being admitted with illness caused by drinking polluted water has exceeded those with injuries caused by the killer storm.

The city of 48,000 has been without safe water, sewage service and electric power, and authorities fear outbreaks of cholera and tetanus. Lack of electricity to keep refrigerated food has added to the threat of disease.

The Australian Air Force began evacuating critically injured survivors. It flew in more than 20 planeloads of medical supplies, drinking water, food, blankets, clothing and medical nurses and took more than 200 persons to hospitals in east-coast cities, more than five hours away.

At least 44 persons were known dead in the cyclone that reared out of the Timor Sea before it struck on Christmas Day and leashed Australia's largest territory's port for four hours with winds up to 130 miles an hour and heavy rains.

Hundreds of the city's 47,000 residents were injured or missing. Survivors reported 80 per cent of the city was damaged or destroyed.

The Australian Broadcasting Commission reported that 25,000 people might be evacuated.

The Royal Australian Air Force said flying continues to Sydney, on the southeast coast, five hours' flying time across the country. Domestic airliners, executive jets and other private planes were pressed into service.

Darwin is separated from other populated areas of Australia by hundreds of miles of desert and prairie.

Normal communications were wiped out by the storm that demolished houses, sank ships, smashed parked planes, hurled cars across streets and sent windowpanes and iron roofing flying through the air.

Continuing rains and winds gusting to 70 miles an hour compounded the misery of the survivors and hampered relief work.

Czech-Canadian Faces Hijacking Charges

ROME (CP) — A Czech-Canadian is charged with hijacking an Air India jumbo jet that he threatened to crash here on Christmas Day.

Josef Honsowy, 31, was overpowered in the cockpit and arrested at Fiumicino airport after the plane landed safely. The pilot circled the city for two hours, but the other 154 passengers in the cabins behind were not told what was happening.

There were conflicting reports on he home town of Honsolec, a native of Czechoslovakia. He told Reuters news agency that he has lived in Hamilton since 1968. The Associated Press and Agence France-Presse quoted Italian police as saying he was from Ottawa.

The pilot said Honsolec threatened him with a two-inch pocketknife and a heavy flashlight and told him he wanted to make the plane crash.

The co-pilot and the flight engineer finally jumped him and disarmed him after a brief scuffle.

Police said Honsolec was carrying 20 counterfeit Canadian $100 bills and a ticket from Rome to New York. Authorities said he told them he was afraid of being robbed by other passengers who had been hostile to him.

Honsolec is also charged with possessing counterfeit bills.

The plane flew on to Paris and New York.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul said in his 1974 Christmas Day message that the birth of Christ is "a source of happiness and hope" and prayed for the success of the 1975 Holy Year he launched the night before.

The 77-year-old pontiff looked tired as he spoke on an overcast day to a crowd of more than 20,000 in St. Peter's Square and a television audience of millions. OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield says he is "a very imperfect politician" who is far short of the gifts which permitted his predecessor, John Diefenbaker, to sweep the country in the federal elections of 1957 and 1958.

In an interview taped for broadcast today on the CBC television program Some Honorable Members, he said he considers his assets in public life are a degree of detachment, stability and a sense of concern.

"But it's very clear, for example, that I don't make a striking impression on people when I meet them," he said. "They don't remember the first day they met Bob Stanfield for the rest of their life."

Mr. Stanfield said when he became national Conservative leader in 1967 after being Nova Scotia premier, he knew no provincial premier had really succeeded in Ottawa. But he came close to succeeding, he says.

He says he intends to step down from the party leadership even if the party cannot find a suitable replacement and asks him to stay on.

MP Detained Another Week

MELBOURNE (AP) — John Stonehouse, runaway member of the British Parliament, was ordered held today for another week while the Australian government decides whether to deport him for entering the country on a false passport.

He disappeared Nov. 20 in Miami Beach, Fla., while on a holiday trip. He arrived in Australia a week later under the name Joseph Arthur Markham. He was arrested Tuesday in a Melbourne apartment where he was living under the name of Donald Clive Mildoon.

He has been reported involved in a number of complex international business deals, including a $15-million Romanian-Nigerian cement deal that friends said fell through while he was in Florida.

Winter Comes Through for Christmas

City residents returned home Tuesday evening for what seemed to be a wet, bare Christmas this year. But winter would have none of that, and Christmas morning found a wonderland outside. A windless snowfall decorated every tree for Christmas, caught the breath of onlookers with the scenic beauty.

Thieves Grab $3,300

NAPANEE — An estimated $2,000 in cash and $1,300 in jewelry was stolen from the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Doulas, on Highway 2 about two miles west of Napanee the day before Christmas.

Investigating OPP Constable Dave Galloway reports Mrs. Doulas and a female neighbor, with several children, were in the house when two men came to the door and forced their way in. They tied up the women and then donned stocking masks. They were joined a short time later by a masked companion carrying a revolver.

About half an hour later local electrician George Normile and his son, Kostas arrived to install some lighting fixtures.

Kostas Normile knocked at the Doulas house door, was grabbed and trussed up. Mr. Normile told police he saw a brown 1974 Chevrolet Monte Carlo parked in the lane with the motor running.

Police Report Quiet Holiday

City police reported just one major occurrence over the holiday — a break-in at the Belleville Plaza Laundromat early Wednesday evening.

A police spokesman said vandals entered the premises by forcing the lock on a plywood door, smashing the door in the process. They also broke vending machines glass.

However, nothing was taken from the building, said the spokesman. Damage was estimated at $25.

In the holiday period from 6 p.m. Tuesday to 9 a.m. this morning, city police investigated seven minor traffic accidents, and handled 47 occurrences, "about the average Christmas," said the spokesman.

Belleville provincial police also enjoyed an average holiday. During the period from 6 p.m. Tuesday to 7.35 a.m. this morning, they investigated nine minor traffic mishaps and handled 91 occurrences, as well as assisting numerous motorists whose cars became stranded in Tuesday night's snowfall.

'Hello, Mr. Puppet.'

Apartment Gutted

Two panelists, blackened windows mark the spot of upstairs apartment blaze today in this two-storey apartment building at 304 Station St. Three firemen were slightly injured in the 2½ — hour fire, which began shortly after midnight. An Ontario fire marshal's investigators is underway.

Three Injured Fighting Blaze

Three Belleville firemen were slightly injured in the apartment fire early today at 304 Station St.

Firemen were summoned at 12.35 a.m. to the two-storey, rough-cast structure, owned by Tom Rogers at 94 Grier St., and discovered a blaze behind the stairs in a bottom floor closet.

A department spokesman said once that fire was extinguished, Capt. Elmer Helm and fireman Jerry Bagaders went upstairs to investigate the source of heat, smoke, and were blown downstairs by a back draft.

Capt. Helm suffered a bruised chest. He entered Belleville General Hospital for x-rays.

Bagaders was merely shaken.

The spokesman said the upstairs fire ignited an apartment, one of four in the building. He declined to release the name of the tenant, pending further investigation by the fire marshal's office. He said the tenant was not in the apartment when the blaze began.

Only one other tenant, who lives at the rear of the building, was home at the time. Two others were away for the holidays.

The spokesman said it is believed the apartment was composed of one room. All the furnishings and belonging were destroyed. The rest of the building sustained some water damage.

No estimate of damages was available. One other fireman, Jack Finkle, received a minor cut while fighting the fire.

Special School Aids Needy Tots

By HARRY HOLHALL
Staff Reporter

There are six youngsters in the classroom.

There are three involved professionals — two teachers and one supervising head teacher.

But the significance of the class can't be measured statistically.

The project is a special nursery school. And the ratio of teachers-to-kids indicates the originality or its aims.

The undertaking is for preschoolers with special needs. Housed in leased quarters on the second floor of the Belleville Day Nursery building on John St., the program is designed for children with social or behavioral problems which cannot be met in normal nursery schools or kindergartens.

"Its goal: To aid such children adjust their potential to fit a regular preschool environment — in effect a special pre-school.

The school became operative in September, directed by Belleville General Hospital's psychiatry department.

The project took its first break with the Christmas holiday this week.

The precise dimensions of demand for such a project within the community are difficult to define, says head teacher Mary Sutherland. But there's no doubt of the need.

Already, the school has a waiting list, she says.

"We have more referrals than we have places," adds Mrs. Sutherland.

But the specific goals of the program mean classes must remain limited in numbers — retaining the emphasis on highly-personalized contact between teacher and student. In an emergency, one more child can be admitted to the project.

"The emphasis here is on an individualized program for each child's needs. Six children in a class right now remains the maximum," says Mrs. Sutherland.

Need for such a nursery first became apparent to volunteers working in various city-area preschool programs. It was officially approached earlier this year when a community committee approached the Ontario health ministry. The ministry eventually provided the funding for the undertaking, to be administered as one of BGH's mental health program directed by Dr. Bert Ozon.

Age grouping involved is two to five years. Childhood problems identified for the project's attention include hyperactivity, withdrawal, unmanageability, excessive clinging, language and communication difficulties.

As a mental health facility, the program involves both children and parents. For the youngster it provides both assessment and treatment; for their parents, guidance.

A social worker provides primary liason between home and school, counselling parents and arranging for any required social services. Advice is also available on child-rearing practices.

Parents have the in-the-spot opportunities to observe the project's personalized techniques at work.

What they life is a program where the main thrust is more therapeutic than educational. The youngsters are graduated when it's felt they are ready to enter normal preschool kindergarten settings, says Mrs. Sutherland.

Economic Boosts

Like those freights that pass through Belleville loaded with scores of cars. Imports seem to predominate and there appears to be money enough around to purchase them.

Over in Prince Edward County Lake Ontario Cement has signed an agreement with Martin Marietta Corporation of Rockville, Md., to supply a whopping $30 million worth of, portland cement either over a three-year period starting April 1976. And again in Picton, at the private enterprise level, a young Ottawa man, George Cimermanis, has big plans for the Globe hotel which he has just bought recently.

Mr. Cimermanis sold insurance for seven years, but tired of big city life and is moving to Prince Edward County what he was looking for in the way of lifestyle. An atmosphere in fact many others have found in this area.

The sailing Olympics in Kingston in 1976 is a coming event in which the new Picton resident sees potential where the hotel is concerned.

Hotel management in this area has its attractions, as this development proves.

Not much sign of recession either in events such as these.

Brotherhood

Companies in economic straits could take a tip from the action of workers at a maintenance shop in Nitro, W. Virginia, who have volunteered to share work days and pay.

Eleven mechanics saved eight colleagues from pre-Christmas layoff. Now all 19 will remain at work, on an every other week basis.

It is a sort of variation of the three-or four-day week, and if it means less money in this instance . . . well there is that week off to relax and do those things that don't get done otherwise.

There is another important side to it; as a job supervisor who had the plan cleared by head office, put it: "This is the most remarkable example of human kindness I've ever heard of."

Indeed, it is an example that might be followed in similar circumstances elsewhere.

Weekend Rowdies

It is a sad situation when the police have to admit to inability to curb recurring vandalism and disturbances by rowdies.

Not that they don't do a good job; they do, but when the demands of those before they arrive, and of course they can't be everywhere.

It might be asked though if a little subterfuge might restrict such activities.

Consider the case of the service centre restaurant at the Highway 28 and 401 interchange in Port Hope. The restaurant has decided to curtail his round-the-clock operation on weekends following an incident when a rowdy group created a disturbance and annoyed the waitresses. Once, when a customer tried to intercede he was pushed outside and beaten.

Cobourg OPP say all the drunks go out after hotel closing and make trouble. They have laid charges but the problem continues. Unmarked police cars and men inside have been placed since the locals know them and nothing happens.

The police suggest the manager could lay charges himself, but wouldn't that invite further trouble and leave him and his staff in personal jeopardy? Subterfuge then? Surely the police could be on hand, and cooperate, at the opposite hour. It is a situation that should not be tolerated and the only ones who can stop it are the police.

Wear And Tear

It's too bad that time and the elements are causing wear and tear to steam engine 2234 and to its caboose over there at Zwick's Island.

And while we might stop short of saying "we told you so," it was in fact suggested in this space some years ago that a transportation museum would be a more appropriate resting place for the railroad exhibits.

Such a habitat could house other historic relics as they became available and prove yet another attraction in a growing community.

Controlling Immigration

Andras' Task Made Difficult By Party's 'Bleeding Hearts'

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA- There was a classic confrontation the other day in the Commons between the archetypal Conservative bottom-liner and the Liberal bleeding-heart.

At issue were the regulations Manpower and Immigration Minister Andras' hopes Parliament will approve in his shifting of immigration years from high to low unemployment, or even half to the face of the threat of rising winter unemployment.

Introducing Mr. Andras, too, might be the public opinion polls which consistently have shown an increasing majority demand — the latest taken only a few days ago — that the federal government become much more selective in its admission of immigrants.

He is not shutting the door, not even putting it ajar, simply nudging it a little.

But you should hear the flak that's flying.

He has been pelloted by fugitive Ralphies all in Canada illegally; other border-jumpers and airport crashers have been marching around, shouting lace slogans outside his Commons office, and in the House itself, the special pleaders have the pressure on him.

On the right is Ron Huntington, the Conservative MP who beat Prudence Minister Jack Davis in his Vancouver riding of Capilano in the last election.

On the left is avid Collenette, Liberal MP for the Toronto riding of York East who defeated Conservative Ian Arrol in the 1974 vote, and before running for Parliament was a backroom political operator of a large dimension, the Ontario Executive Director of both the provincial and federal Liberals.

First off the mark was Mr. Huntington who complained about the open door Canadian border allowing American "con men, swindlers, fraud artists to swarm in and loot the national till, and draft dodgers, criminals and even terrorists to feel welcome to welfare."

He spoke of the dismantling of "activist yippies in the forefront of every insurrection and riot that has taken place, all dedicated to continuing confrontation."

David Collenette, listening intently, was more and more becoming more and more restless, but held his peace.

Not for long.

For Mr. Huntington went on to report that in the last seven years, "we have brought in more non-white than ever before population" of Indians, Eskimos and Metis.

"What's wrong with that?" sang out David Collenette.

"Nothing except we're having a great social burden on us," replied Mr. Huntington. "The pressures and problems we are having in this area of Metis do not exist in China or India which do not permit white immigration."

"Racist!" shouted David Collenette.

"I am no racist," shot back Ron Huntington. "I am a concerned Canadian representing concerned people who are worried about the lack of enforcement of immigration laws."

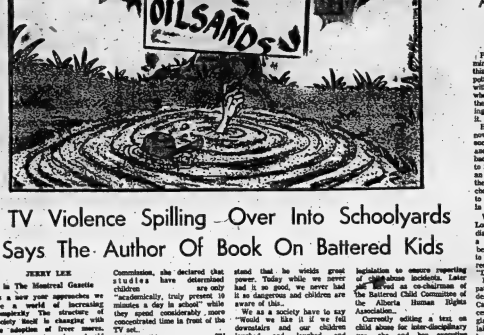
"What's your riding?" sang out David Collenette, smelling like a prosecutor.

"Chilliwack," answered Ron Huntington, and went on to ask if the cabinet had any solution to the problem of uncontrolled mass immigration resulting in "cells of discontent and growth of more and more ghettos".

"Yes, sir," purred David Collenette, "tolerance."

"But tolerance and compassion are developed by the immigration of masses of people foreign to our ideologies and way of life," replied Ron Huntington. "They come in pinochels of 200 at a time and there's no way we can absorb them."

"Then you have would you do it?" chipped in Liberal Ronnie Leader Mitchell Sharp.



"I'd like to ask if our immigration from Asian countries is such large numbers it's helping to solve world population problems," replied Ron Huntington. "Each year the populations of India and China increase by the equivalent to that of the population of all Canada."

"Do you want to shoot them?" asked David Collenette.

"No," snapped Ron Huntington. "But you want to feed them and I don't. I've been here more. The Canadian social fabric is being destroyed by ever-immigration. There is nothing racist in saying that and it has to be said."

And so it rattled on between left and right and neither David Collenette objected when referred to as a "bleeding heart" nor Ron Huntington to being spoken of as a "hard nose."

Which linked they are, and which under the direction by Mr. of Robert Andras in trying to steer the immigration flood to easier.

TV Violence Spilling Over Into Schoolyards Says The Author Of Book On Battered Kids

JERRY LEE
In The Montreal Gazette

As a new year approaches we are a world of increasing complexity. The structure of society itself is changing with the adoption of freer mores. There is a loosening of old disciplines and a gain in the children of our day, beset in addition by the pressures and violence of city life and by much relatively new phenomena, as high-rise living, was suffice. The following article and editorial commend reflect some of these new problems where they involve physical abuse of the child.

Violence in the schoolyard has made going to school a dangerous adventure says a champion of children's rights.

"Television technology of violence are being played out starting in Grade 1," says Mary Van Stolk, author of The Battered Child in Canada. She is amassing reams of grisly information for a book to be called Violence in the Family.

"A small child can get kicked in the stomach, knocked down or even subjected to extortion. It leaves from talking to many children that it exists. One mother of a third grader found her daughter stealing money. When she followed the child, she discovered a bunch of girls extorting money from the child each day. I heard children say 'if you don't give me that I'll beat you up' and the blows are real and the terror is real" said Van Stolk.

Van Stolk says the lid is on the subject of violence in the schools but she knows from her research that "it is the common experience and our biggest shame. We close our eyes to that sort of brutalizing."

Van Stolk sees links among all manifestations of violence in society. She sees television as education and that President of the Canadian Radio - Television Commission, she declared that studies have determined children are only "academically, truly present 16 minutes a day in school" while they spend considerably more concentrated time in front of the set.

Van Stolk's concern over TV violence has been substantiated by a U.S. study that revealed early viewing of violent television caused later aggression by boys. For girls, aggressive girls with the means to express aggression vicariously.

Van Stolk said their research is now revealing that girls are also identifying more with the violent heroes and less with the victims of violence. The result is a manifestation of violence by females resulting in things such as girls' gangs.

Children, says Van Stolk, suffer violence not only at the hands of their peers but from teachers.

"In 1974, we still have, in the Criminal Code Section 43, which permits teachers to strap and strike children. The law should be changed striking a child, if it doesn't permit striking an adult. It is a loophole for four years and, believe me, if I do nothing else for my kids' sake, this Section 43 is going," she said.

Section 43 allows schoolteachers, parents or persons standing in the place of parents to correct a child by force.

"We have a fight on our hands to convince Canadians that isn't good for them. It's a luxury we can't afford."

Van Stolk had expected to finish Violence in the Family this fall but says it will take another year to complete it.

"It's a difficult book. There's so much violence and so much research being done now. In my opinion, spanking is an object lesson in bullying. The child identifies with the parent who is the aggressor. In taking this action, it raised the hackles of the local teachers who are pro-strap. A London survey shows 83 per cent of teachers and 69 per cent of parents want the strap reinstated as a disciplinary device.

A recent telephone survey of a mixture of boards - about 25 - showed no other boards with the total ban as the rule, but allow its use but discourage it. Another, such as both public and separate school boards in Ottawa are reviewing the situation with new guidelines forbidding its use a possibility.

It's a misstep situation at best. Education Minister Wells says he has no intention of banning the use of the strap in Ontario schools. He sees no need to change government regulations which condone strapping school children. At the same time, he acknowledged that Department of Health has supported the policy of firing from the corporal punishment on children in institutions operated by the health ministry.

Strap-strappers seem to share the same forked-tongue position. They talk about their concern for more and better psychological services for some children while whacking the daylights out of the same kids for misbehaving. While their concern is undoubtedly genuine, they weaken it by insisting on "sickies" to Peter whose reputation has spread in the land and to the hallowed halls of academe horticultural science.

"Trouble with this hibiscus," said the lad with the solid green thumbs, "was that it had been set in low light conditions."

Nearby stood a 9-foot weeping fig, the slender branches drooping beyond what a weeping fig should. A cursory examination showed Peter that it had been the victim of overzealous care - too much watering and too strong solutions of a pesticide. It was on the critical list.

Young "Dr." Hart has read the anti-vivisection book, Plants Are Like People, by Jerry Baker, who advances the proposition that being kind to your pet's plants helps to make them flourish. Peter doesn't know how much stock to set by it, but he has a pet hypothesis of his own: affectionate thought waves radiating from people to plants are beneficial to the latter.

"There are high, mystical matters that I think about only rarely," said pragmatic Peter.

Outside of school, almost all my thoughts and feelings are devoted to the plants left in my care."

Youth En Route To Vocation As Wizard With Plants

Hugh Thompson
The Globe and Mail

Peter Hart, a 16 - year - old miracle-healer of plants, likes to think that he treats all of his potted patients in Edwardian style with equal consideration. Still, when a celebrity is admitted to the ward, he can't help lavishing slightly more attention on it.

He happened to have one such now in a Rex Begonia that she once owned by Lady Pellatt. She and Sir Henry had brought it back to Casa Loma from a trip to South America and, when they left an army of servants were living there in some of the rooms. The choice tropical plant was left to have occupied a special place in the castle's conservatory.

When the Pellatts sold Casa Loma and its contents were disposed of at public auction, a plant fancier bought the begonia. A third owner left her to it, and it was she who recently brought it to young "Dr." Hart for treatment.

Peter, who is the practical pathologist at Cawthra Gardens in Mississauga, one of Ontario's largest retail plant centres with an acre under glass, said the case first to be laid eyes on the Pellatts' begonia it was "in a bad way."

He suspected that it was contaminating the plant, and said the first thing he did was to replant it in two pots in steam-sterilized, loamy soil, with sand, peat and perlite. "It is on the critical list," he said as he busied himself with the two potted patients, taking telephone calls and seeing customers who were inquiring about the progress of their ailing plants.

Peter, who is in Grade 11 at Erindale Secondary School, attends the horticulture course on Mondays Wednesdays and Thursdays. He is on duty Saturdays and Sundays in the plant section, where he spends all day. And, of course, he is on full time during Christmas, and summer vacations as well.

This is his second year at the job. He started out for a flat sixty a few minutes with him to realize that he had found the man who has found his life's calling.

"He is indispensable to our operation," said Bud Crozier, Cawthra's manager. "As president, who graduated from the Ontario Agricultural College, is known in animal husbandry, married to the daughter of the Centre's late star," and switched loyalties from fauna to flora.

"Peter has an intuitive knowledge of plant problems and can be reads everything he can lay his hands on. If he hits a snag with a sick plant, he researches and our head grower. If the three of us can't solve the problem, we call upon Professor Richard E. Harrell of the Ontario Horticultural Science Department. However, we rarely have to. Peter is a green thumb, a plant prodigy, can generally diagnose and cure himself."

Mr. Crozier (who is Uncle Bud to all staff and customers) said he met young Hart when Peter was 14 and a frequent visitor and conversationalist at the store. "I see he's quickly recognized his phenomenal talent and I hired him on."

In the bathroom hospital Peter pointed to a 6-foot hibiscus that he had restored to its blooming state after it had looked as though it were on the way out. It was sent in to him by a plant store in downtown Toronto. Several leaves and their "sickies" to Peter whose reputation has spread in the land and to the hallowed halls of academe horticultural science.

China's Press In Game Of Diplomatic Gamemanship

Montreal Gazette

It is strange that China, which has greatly improved its treatment of the international press in recent years, should still try to use it as an instrument of diplomatic warfare. In Canada, the Chinese refuse visas to correspondents for the Parliamentary Press Gallery because the gallery, quite rightly, refuses to accept a journalist from Taiwan who is not accredited.

In Washington, the Chinese recently refused to permit journalists from Taiwan, South Korea, South Africa and Israel to attend a planned press preview of China's archaeological exhibit. The National Gallery of Art, quite rightly, refused to let the Chinese journalists and all who favor a free press must be constantly on guard against attempts to turn journalists into political instruments.

Russia's Political Prisoners

London Economist

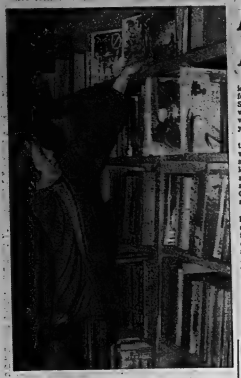
One reason for the stepped up pressure on Soviet political dissenters may be that the Soviet government is less concerned now than it used to be about adverse publicity in the west. Detente and trade, the failure of western psychiatrists, at last year's world conference in Moscow, officially to raise the abuse of psychiatric prison hospitals as a means of punishing Russians who step out of line. And with the softening of dissident capturing the headlines, the Russians seem to reckon that world interest in

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dec. 30, 1976

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton's resignation from the army to go into politics as minister of national defence was announced 31 years ago—in 1943. He ran in two byelections, but lost both times.



1776—John Reeves was appointed first chief justice of Newfoundland.

1776—Washington crossed the Delaware River to attack carousing Hessians at Trenton; it was his first victory.

1917—The United States took control of the railroads for the duration of the First World War.

1922 — An earthquake killed 70,000 in Kansu, China.

1943—The German battleship Scharnhorst was sunk by torpedoes from the British cruiser Jamaica.

Hitting the Books

William Teertzen, 11, Rte 2 Foxboro, Ont., children in Trenton, will be spending some time over the Christmas holiday hitting the books. But it'll be for pleasure rather than for school.

The Trenton Christian School Grade 5 student picks out several adventure stories at Trenton Memorial Library for his Christmas reading.

Some Husbands Not Home For Christmas

TRENTON — One day next May, one Trenton couple will be having a "real bash".

It will be their celebration of Christmas, New Year's, Easter, four birthdays and the arrival of Master Cpl. Gen Caywright's parents from their home in Winnipeg.

It's as good an excuse as any for a celebration, says Norma Caywright, wife of Master Cpl. Caywright.

The master corporal is currently stationed in Ismaila, Egypt, as a member of 110 Air Transport Unit, part of Canada's peace-keeping contingent in the Middle East. He left CFB Trenton for his six-month tour overseas in November and is expected back in Trenton in May.

He is one of some 50 men from CFB Trenton's 2,200 strong military establishment who won't be home for Christmas.

About 25 men from the base here are stationed in Egypt to provide logistics support to Canada's United Nations' troops. Others are at the armed forces base in Lahr, West Germany.

The majority of men were home for Christmas, says a base spokesman: "We try to arrange that all overseas and east-west flights return by Christmas eve."

"They start up again Boxing Day," he said.

How does Mrs. Caywright feel about her husband's absence?

"Not very happy," she said. Since they have no children, there was no tree, no decoration. She had Christmas dinner with friends.

Her husband has asked her to join him in the Middle East during the two week leave he has in February. She's very budget-minded; she said and therefore isn't sure yet whether she'll go.

Theresa Pharand and her three teenaged children remained in Trenton while her husband, Warrant Officer Gilbert Pharand, was also in Egypt during Christmas.

"It's sad in a way, but it's his duty," Mrs. Pharand said. But in another way, it brings her and her husband closer together.

The absence, she'll learn in June, brings the couple closer together and banishes that tendency to take everything for granted she said.

The family said they miss the father but also the comfort from their belief in the armed services role in the Middle East.

"It's much tougher for the men to leave than for the women to say behind," said Mrs. Pharand.

New Traffic Corridor Patrick's Top Priority

TRENTON — Each one of us places a unique and highly individual importance on Christmas.

For Trenton Mayor Robert Patrick, Christmas is a period to express thanks.

"It's a time to reflect how thankful we should be for all the good things that have happened," he says. "Christmas is the day we reflect on the thing that have taken place."

In an interview, Mayor Patrick outlined what he hopes to see completed and what he expects to be begun in 1975.

The reconstruction of Water St. and the subsequent rerouting of traffic to Highway 33 is a prime objective for the new year; as is the relocation of railway lines on the Sidney St. subway.

Once the railway lines are moved, workmen can begin rebuilding the subway. It would be widened to permit four lines of traffic where barely two can now pass.

If all goes according to schedule, the entire project will be complete by 1976.

Of course, he said top priority for 1975 is the completion of the street rebuilding program.

"People are happy with the progress we've made," he said. When completed, it will be a source of pride for Trenton citizens.

Pet project, he said is the establishment of a marina in Trenton.

"Any kind of a marina would be a plus. We have to get something started," he said. "We have to cut the cloth."

However, it is certainly not at the top of the list. Completion of Centennial Park is above the marina, he said.

"It used to bother me at first", confesses Jean, "I sort of felt left out, but I'm too busy with other aspects of their career to become too concerned over it now."

Mrs. Post is responsible for the Post Family's stage clothes. In addition, she assists in setting up the stage props, is ticket taker at the door and acts as chauffeur on their tours and engagements.

At one time the Post Family made all their own bookings. Now a large percentage is done under an agent from Toronto who handles some of the biggest names in country music. Bert Mitford, originally of the Pierce era, has often booked the Post Family on one-week tours with Gordie Tapp and George Hamilton IV.

"Bert has helped us a lot," says Norman Post. He has given us the opportunity to perform with singers with whom we wouldn't otherwise come in contact."

Are You Determined, Or Just a Dabbler?

Have you started to plan your New Year's resolutions yet?

Chances are that you're among the rest of us, and got the urge at the end of every year to wipe the slate clean and start over again.

Next year, you tell yourself, you'll get things done differently. I won't fall back into the old habits, I'll really take charge of my life and improve myself.

Even if it doesn't work out — that way, just thinking about turning over a new leaf can be useful. Even if you don't keep your resolutions, you've examined who you are and where you're going.

Those of us who do make New Year's resolutions fall into three camps. The Determined — those hardy few who "really mean it"; the Well-Meaning But Weak-Willed — the majority of us, who have short-lived will-power; and the Dabblers — the people who aren't sincere at all.

They're all easy to spot. The Determined ones, for example, will vow to lose 20 pounds by March 21 — the Weak Willed will promise to try to lose enough weight to look good in a bathing suit next July.

And the Dabblers will resolve to give up fattening foods, "except of course when you're invited out, and you can't refuse, and also except for birthdays and holidays and Sunday afternoon drives when you love your own cooking and can't resist and ...."

The same kind of categorizing applies to most other areas of resolve as well. Take smoking, for instance.

There are those that quit cold turkey, those that work out an elaborate system of cutting down, and those that decide, with the best intentions in the world, to smoke less.

Did the idea? Where do you fit in?

Here are a few resolutions to think about and choose from before the end of the year. By next week at this time, you'll be well on the road to a New Life ... or already fallen back into your old sinful ways.

I resolve to:

— give up desserts and mean thoughts.

— walk the dog, rain or shine, for an hour every day.

— be clean, neat, courteous and prepared, to do my duty to God and the Queen.

— memorize the metric system and never forget again how to convert Fahrenheit to Celsius.

— make a compost heap, save aluminium foil and string and take my own paper bags to the supermarket.

— stop biting my fingernails, smoking cigarettes and lying to my mother.

— cry for two hours every night after helping with the supper dishes.

— learn to play a musical instrument well enough that I'm not embarrassed if someone hears me.

— stop complaining, nagging, whining and nit-picking.

— think one fine and inspiring thought every morning upon rising, before beginning my yoga exercises.

— give up waltzing matilda and time-wasting television programs.

— recycle beer cans, and never buy non-returnable bottles again.

— write a letter to each of the people whose friendship I value.

— become totally honest and give up social white lies.

— stop smoking forever, and set aside weekly the amount of money I would have spent on cigarettes.

— try one new and exciting recipe every week and get out of the boring old casserole habit.

— build those bookshelves I promised I'd build last year.

— become an interesting, pleasant, attractive, admirable and wonderful person.

— change my ways so successfully that next December I'll be able to give up New Year's resolutions.

To all of you on the brink of a new year, good wishes for happiness, health and success in whatever you resolve.

Divorce Ceremony Ends Bitterness

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — A ceremony to release each other from the marriage vows would get a long way toward easing the pain of a bitter divorce, a Methodist minister says.

Although Rev. Donald Fado has only performed two such ceremonies in his career, he views his proposal as a viable tool to ease the transition between marriage and life as "ex-wife or husband."

There needs to be some kind of therapeutic understanding of their new relationship," said Fado, who serves at the United Church Centre here.

The ceremony is not formal-ized and Fado said the different problems each couple faces would require a different approach in each case.

The ceremony would allow the couple to free themselves of guilt by releasing hostilities and expressing their honest feelings about the broken relationship.

"Underlying my concern as both a minister and as a citizen is shown under the cancerous cancer system that the good things that happen but we never mention divorce. Why not?" Fado said the idea of announcing the divorce serves a purpose for both the couple and their friends.

"Just a simple note, either handwritten or printed, would do a lot to avoid many of the awkward situations that follow

Use Credit With Care

TORONTO (CP) — Credit is part of everyday life these days but careful thought and planning are required for its proper use.

That's the message contained in a new booklet on consumer credit just published by the Canadian Bankers' Association, the industry association of the 10 chartered banks.

"Used wisely to help you do the things you want to do, credit is a very useful tool; you must use it and never let it run you," the booklet says. "You are running the show."

Some of the advice offered:

—A good credit rating and knowledge of cash and credit use are vital in handling the big money decisions which you will make during your lifetime. That will include the needs of your family and perhaps insurance protection in case of death.

—Savings are important and you can't afford to be without them. The old idea that you should save 10 per cent of after-tax income isn't as unrealistic as it sounds when you remember that this includes insurance protection and pension plans.

—When you have saved a nest-egg, think of investing it, but think cautiously and after obtaining good advice.

—Whether you borrow the money or decide to invest some of your savings in the stock market, investment requires knowledge. Some interest in what makes the market tick and some time to study it," the bankers' association says.

"A disastrous way to invest is simply to lay the money down on some get-rich-quick stock. If you do, the chances are that you will lose your savings."

Consumer credit is simply defined as "using someone else's money—for a certain price and for a certain time."

"Consumer credit is used by different people in different ways. If a person finds that travelling is the only way he wants to spend his holidays then he might borrow for a trip or use one of the available no-down-payment plans.

"Or perhaps buying a house is more important to an individual or family than having an exciting holiday every year. Lots of people think so."

Just about everyone uses consumer credit "because they will be able to afford to pay more conveniently at a later date for something they want or need to have now."

There are many different sources of consumer credit—banks, department stores, credit unions, consumer loan companies and sales finance companies.

The interest rates should be checked just as any good shopper does in making a wise purchase anywhere. It is wise to find out precisely how much your loans will cost.

AROUND TOWN with LANA ROBINSON

(. . . an advertising feature designed to keep you better informed of what's now around town.)

This is the week in which we look at some of the past year and say "never again". Right? This week is our week for self-reflection and/or deep down underneath all our ridiculous and impossible resolutions, is a secret and poignant wish that we really aspire to be better than we have been; more patient, more considerate, more productive, more tolerant, and more committed to becoming and not just to enduring.

Here are some New Year's Resolutions from some people you and I both know. And whether these resolutions may seem humorous or not, they are all saying: "Have a kindly and generous 1975 in your lives."

Don't Be Timid

New Bernard Interiors, 67A Campbell St. have some good resolutions for you if you're thinking of changing your decor next year:

1. Don't, for heavens' sakes, think you have to have the whole decorating scheme planned out in your own little head. That's the job for an interior designer.

2. Don't be timid in the concepts you do have. Your home is you and should reflect your identity, not your mother's or your Aunt Matilda's.

3. Decorating properly isn't a once a year occasion. Doing it will require time and money. And such an investment of your time and money necessitates the help of an experienced professional.

4. Paul Bernard is exactly that.

5. Call him this year at 962-0076.

Softening Saves

Since we're on the subject of home improvements, if the water at your house doesn't have the satisfy and softening benefits of an Aquafine Water Refiner, then you should do something about it in 1975. Not only will you have contributed to improving the quality of life and washing for you and your family, the dishes, and the clothes, but you will also save money on detergents, bath preparations and shampoos. In fact, you won't need them at all. Call for an Aquafine Refiner at Moira Schuster - 962-4504.

Old Faithful

The Sidney Inn, 363 Main St., West, is a New Year's resolution you can flip under "emergency," and "usually open". Because Sidney Inn usually is — seven days a week until 11 p.m. Now that's convenience, isn't it? Just whether you need groceries, cold drinking beer, gifts and wrapping paper, carpeting, fresh fruit and vegetables, in a snack bar with ice cream for the kiddies, you'll find all these at the Sidney Inn — complete with friendly atmosphere.

Cars on Move

Now when it comes to Vader's Car Sales, there are two important resolution you should make. One is to visit the new showroom and garage facilities Vader's are now completing on Dundas St. just west of Trent Valley Arts Centre (please for details of their grand opening). And the second one is, if mileage performance and new car credibility are your resolutions for 1975 car purchases, then Datsun is the car and Vader's is the place. (P.S. There are still some great '74s around at great '74 prices.)

To Your Health!

One of your resolutions concerning your family's health should be a visit to McCoy Pharmacy, 213 Front St. to stock up on family vitamins at those reasonable McCoy family prices. And while you're there, note the information rack on one of the counter is front of the pharmacy area. Here you can pick up free copies of information booklets on topics of family health, such as the true facts about colds, immunization, and nutrition. McCoys' can help you get and feel better, but they'd rather see you healthy all the time. The best in 1975 from the McCoy family.

Homes Can Glitter

Bellerive Glass and Mirror, 254 Pinnacle St., can help with home improvements too, such as aluminum doors and windows, patio doors, and storm doors, not to mention the beautifying attributes of mirror from Bellerive Glass. There's a whole new world of home improvement using glass and mirror and it's an easily attainable one with the help of the people of Bellerive Glass and Mirror. The Macalisters and their staff wish you a joyous and profitable 1975.

House on Horizon?

Ged Roblin Real Estate, 117 North Front St., have some pretty positive resolutions for 1975: they want to help you fill your property requirements, whether sale or purchase, in the most efficient and pleasing manner possible. This has always been a Ged Roblin service attitude and one that we commend each of. If a property change is on your horizon for 1975, let the friendly and competent staff at Ged Roblin change horizon to actuality. Call any of their staff at 962-9005.

Service A Gem

W. Wenzscott and Son, 247 Front St., have been in the jewellery business in Belleville for many, many years. And they've never lost their enthusiasm for this business and serving the people of Belleville. You can really sense this when you visit their store. And though I know I'm taking some liberties here, I really think that Mr. and Mrs. Wenzscott and their staff really have one major wish for all of you in 1975 — and that is that you all be happy

Keep Yourself in Stitches

Self-improvement is always a major category of any set of New Year's resolutions. Learning to sew or practising an already-existing talent in needlework would be good resolutions in this category. Then, so should a visit to the Quinte Sewing Centre in Belleville. Here, you'll meet well-versed staff, all of whom are themselves seamstresses, will help you translate that love for sewing into concrete terms such as garments and for your family and accessories for your home. They'll also help you choose the proper pattern of Kina, White or Bernina machine to help you in your ambitions.

They Sell Living

Wrays Home Furnishers, 396 Front St. is another name to add to that home improvement list. Carpeting, lamps, tablet, clothing, kitchen, and bedroom suites can bring your ensembles are part of the furnishing help you can get from Wrays. But they're only part. Wrays don't just sell furniture; they sell living and they concern themselves with why you're buying what and where it will be. A resolution from Wrays might well be to explore your own home environment and improve on it too, with Wrays assistance.

Plan Trips NOW

Davison and Davison Travel, 188 Front St. have a New Year's resolution of a very practical nature to suggest. Please let your travel plans, at whatever stage of their maturity, down to the Davison and Davison office so that the competent travel consultants there can make certain that you get where you want to go when you want to get there. Procrastination is one fault we should all try to attack on your resolution list. And if you're planning an Alaskan cruise in summer Bermuda holiday or Holy Year pilgrimage, you should see Davison and Davison now.

Celebrate Casually

The management of the Hotel Belvedere, 300 Front St., invites you to celebrate New Year's Eve with them. The draw for the evening is casual, but tasteful and you can ring your New Year in to the sounds of live entertainment in the country and western vein. The staff at the Hotel Belvedere wish all their friends and patrons the best in 1975.

And I wish the same to all of you.

Leftovers Can Be Tasty And Fancy!

Now that the big day is over, what are you going to do with all that leftover turkey? If you're wise, you'll turn it into several inexpensive main dishes bearing little resemblance to the usual "cold sliced turkey again" leftovers so often served after Christmas.

2½ cups water
½ cup skim milk powder
three tbsp. flour
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. dry tarragon
¼ tsp. pepper
2 cups diced cooked turkey
14 oz. can whole onions
2½ cups cooked vegetables (peas, lima beans, carrots green beans)
Pastry
½ cup flour
½ tsp. salt
2 tbsp. margarine
2 tbsp. water

In a saucepan, combine water, milk powder, three tablespoons flour and seasonings. Stir-cook over medium heat to boiling point. Add remaining ingredients, then transfer to six-cup casserole. Place china "pie bird" or custard cup into centre of chicken mixture to help hold up pastry topping.

To make pastry, combine flour and salt. Cut in margarine until it is the size of large peas. Blend in enough water with a fork to make pastry hold together. Shape into a ball, then roll out on floured surface to ¼" thickness. Prick with fork. Arrange pastry over casserole, pinching edges firmly to edge of casserole. Bake in a hot oven of 400° until bubbling hot and crust is lightly browned — about 20 minutes.

two eggs
¼ cup chicken broth
one cup milk
two cups fine soft bread crumbs
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. grated onion
¼ cup finely chopped celery one tbsp. finely chopped green pepper one tablespoon lemon juice three cups ground cooked turkey one-third cup canned sliced mushrooms
Lemon Sauce

Beat eggs in medium bowl. Add chicken broth, milk and bread crumbs; let stand until bread absorbs liquid. Add remaining ingredients except Lemon Sauce; mix well.

Turn into greased 8x12-inch loaf pan. Bake in 350 F. oven for 55 minutes. Cool in pan 10 minutes before turning out. Serves eights.

Serve with:

Lemon Sauce

1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
1¼ cups chicken broth
2 egg yolk
¼ cup light cream
4½ teaspoons lemon juice

Melt butter in saucepan; remove from heat and stir in flour. Gradually stir in chicken broth. Cook, stirring constantly until mixture boils. Beat together remaining ingredients; gradually stir into mixture in saucepan. Stir over low heat until sauce is thoroughly heated and slightly thickened. It will not get as thick as most sauces.

Curry-in-a-Hurry

Here is a curry dish that is not only easy to prepare but it is a great way to use leftover cooked turkey. The curry flavour is fairly mild so if you are a curry fan, you may want to add more of the powder. Accompany with typical curry condiments such as coconut, raisins, chopped peanuts, sliced bananas or chutney.

one tbsp. vegetable oil
one medium onion, finely chopped 1½ tsp. curry powder
one medium apple cored and diced (leave skin on) one 10-ounce tin cream of celery, mushroom or chicken soup ¼ cup milk
two cups cubed cooked turkey
Fluffy rice
Curry condiments

Heat oil in frypan. Add onion and curry powder and stirring for two-three minutes. Add diced apple and cook/use cooking until apple is tender but not soft. Reduce heat to simmer. Stir in soup, milk and meat. Cook until mixture is heated through, stirring occasionally. Serve over fluffy rice, accompanied by curry condiments. Serves four.

Turkey and Vegetables

two cups cooked turkey
one tbsp. corn starch
¼ cup water
three tbsp. soy sauce
one tsp. sherry
½ tsp. sugar
¼ tsp. ginger
¼ green pepper
½ onion, chopped
one-third cup pineapple chunks

Cut turkey in bite sized strips; combine cornstarch, water, soy sauce, sherry, sugar, and ginger. Mix with chicken. Place ¼ of chicken mix on each of four pieces of aluminum foil. Top each with strips of green pepper, onion and pineapple. Close up foil, and place on a baking sheet and bake in preheated 400 degree oven for 30 minutes.

Turkey Broth

You can even use up the cooked carcass to make broth. Remove any meat from bones and break up carcass. Place in large kettle and add two quarts of cold water. Add vegetables and seasoning to taste like carrot, onion, celery leaves, rosemary, thyme, tarragon pepper. Bring to boil, cover, reduce heat and simmer 1½ hours. Strain and cool broth and refrigerate in closed container. (To cool set pan in cold water and change water often).

Patty Shell Turkey

Patty Shell Turkey is quick, easy and delicious. It's turkey in a beer-flavoured mushroom sauce with slivered almonds served over flaky patty shells and it makes a great supper dish.

6 patty shells, baked
two cans (10-oz.) cream of mushroom soup, undiluted one can (1 pound) peas, drained one can (3 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained two cups cooked turkey, diced one package (3-½ oz.) slivered almonds
one cup beer

In large saucepan over low low heat combine mushroom soup, peas, mushrooms, turkey and half package of almonds. Slowly stir in beer. Heat thoroughly.

When heated, divide creamed turkey evenly between baked patty shells. Place top of patty shell over turkey mixture. Sprinkle a few slivered almonds on top. Serves six.

Patty Shell Turkey is a tasty way to use up your Christmas Day leftovers in style.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Praisley

Praisley — Loney

Frankford United Church was the setting for the December 7 double ring ceremony uniting Margaret Yvonne Loney and Larry Michael Praisley, performed by Rev. Wesley Herbert.

The bride is the son of Jack and Mona Loney of RR 2 Frankford, and the groom is the son of Michael and Olive Praisley of Port Alberni, B.C.

Given in marriage by her father and mother, the bride wore an empire-waisted long-sleeved gown with a white lace bodice, mandarin collar and scalloped cathedral train. The bride's veil of double tulle with a scalloped lace edge fell from a lace headdress, and her bouquet was a cascade of roses.

Matron of honor Sharon Huer wore a gown with a blue flowered bodice, puff sleeves, blue skirt with an empire waist accented by a blue velvet ribbon bow. She carried blue and white mums.

Bill McMullen was the groom's best man and Russel Loney and Ray O'Day were ushers.

A reception in the Fiesta Room of the Skyline Restaurant followed the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Praisley now reside in Prince George, B.C. since returning from their honeymoon in Nassau.

Cultural Conditioning Makes Mute Wives

Dear Ann Landers: This is for the husband who complained because his wife had a lot to say while seated beside him in the car—"Slow down," "Hurry up," "Run that red light," etc., but "is bad she was like a store-window dummy." She had no ideas whatsoever.

There's a good reason for this. It's called Cultural Conditioning. Some women try to fight it. I've succeeded. Most decide it isn't worth the hassle.

In our society the man is accustomed to taking the initiative where sex is concerned. If she suggests something at a time that isn't suitable to him, he may become annoyed. When he wakes up at 6 a.m. expecting creativity and passion, she is likely to be passive. "Ka-a-a store-window dummy."

I'm a young advocate for women's rights and I believe that sexual problems can sometimes be solved by talking them out, but it is very difficult for a female to go against her training.

I wonder if that husband who wrote to you would ever let his wife drive when they were in the car together. I'll bet the answer is no!—Bruised

Dear Bruce: Thank you for an interesting analysis. While I agree that cultural conditioning is a potent factor, more and more women (and men) are breaking away from the established patterns of conversation and heading off in other directions. The passive, woman is fast fading from the scene, and I say it's about time.

Dear Ann Landers: I was particularly interested in the letter from the man with the bashful kidney because I have, too. Only I'm a woman.

Where do we get our bashful kidneys? From our parents—usually mother. And this is why I'm writing to Ann Landers, to tell her that millions of young mothers so they won't do to their children what their mother did to me.

When I was very young I was plumbed on the potty and ordered to "GO." Well, I just couldn't. My mother scowled and take me off in a few minutes. Within a quarter of an hour, usually when we were not expecting it, I'd ask to be taken to the bathroom. My mother would become furious and I'd either wet my pants or develop another bashful kidney.

Now when I put my own children on the potty I turn away and busy myself with my hair, or I run the water and fix my stockings, all the while making light conversation. There are no bashful kidneys among my youngsters.

Once when I heard you lecture you said you view your column as an opportunity to educate people. I hope you will print this letter in that category.—Been There

Dear Been There: Thank you for giving my readers the benefit of your experience. I'm grateful to you for taking the time to write—and think.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married for 30 years. We aren't exactly swimming in money but we've both worked and manage to pay our bills.

My mother-in-law has the habit of asking us (always in the presence of guests or relatives) if we "need a new dollar." We've never asked her for any money nor have we accepted any. Why she does this I don't know. It's very embarrassing.

How can we get the point across without hurting her feelings?—A and C

Dear A and C: Never mind her feelings. She isn't paying much attention to yours. The next time Mrs. Greatheart pulls this stunt, say, "We didn't need any financial help and never have accepted a dime from you, so why do you continue to ask that question?" That should settle her hash—permanently.

Boxes on Boxing Day

The day after Christmas, Boxing Day, is a holiday for many people but most would find it difficult to explain why it is.

The custom of Boxing Day goes back to medieval England when the peasants would pay a visit to the Manor House the day after the great feast. They would receive "Christmas boxes" as presents, probably made up of left-overs from the lord's banquet.

It wasn't until the 19th century that the day became a holiday and by then the customs of the day were changing. More recently money was placed in small boxes for tips, such as milkmen and postmen, who served the household throughout the year.

Today, however these boxes have been replaced by tins or small gifts which are usually given the last day before holidays.

But Boxing Day continues, and serves as a well-loved day to unwind after the Christmas rush.

Dear Doris: I am healthy in every way except for my greasy skin — which causes pimples — and I am very active.

I was wondering whether my sugar intake is more than necessary. Although I never eat candy or "sweets" I have jam on my toast in the morning and a fair amount of sugar on my cereal and in coffee.

Throughout the day I eat large quantities of fresh fruit.

Skin Trouble.

Dear Trouble: Nutritionists declare that refined white sugar figures far too prominently in our lavish North American diet. So, you have conditioned — most of us — to have an abnormally sweet tooth.

Furthermore, we don't need anything like the sugar we consume, and can get what we need out of natural sweets, like fruit. Dentists recognize sugar decay very easily, and able specialists consider too much sugar and fat contribute to poor skins.

Zero Population Growth Advocated for Canada

VANCOUVER (CP) — The vice-president of the Family Planning Federation of Canada says the time has come for Canadians to re-examine the idea that the country needs more people.

Mary F. Bishop told a meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs that Canadians must be better informed on all the implications of population growth.

Canada now is almost at a replacement level with a growth rate of 2.1 children a couple, she said.

"Therefore it is time to look into the question of the benefits and disadvantages, if any, of zero population growth."

Mrs. Bishop said zero population growth does not mean an end to economic growth and should not frighten business interests.

There was still a potential for growth in the post-war baby boom generation. Because of that boom, there are more people and if the 2.1 rate continued there would be some population growth.

Canada cannot be compared to the United States because most of the U.S. is habitable and only one-third of Canada is, she said.

"It's impossible to say at this point what the maximum population Canada should be and therefore we should look at it from a different point of view."

She said that if zero population growth becomes the ultimate goal, a slight reduction in the 2.1 rate and closer controls on immigration would result in a Canadian population of 35 million by 2041.

Mrs. Bishop said family planners and demographers feel birth control programs are essential ingredients in any social justice program.

If women were given the knowledge and means to control their own fertility, they would be fifty left of the population growth.

Crib Deaths Explained

VANCOUVER (CP) — The secretary of identifiable phenomenon of crib death may be caused by involuntary spasms in the baby's larynx, a medical seminar here was told.

Crib death occurs during sleep without warning in seemingly healthy babies.

Dr. L. J. Goldberg of the pediatric dentistry at University of California's Centre for Health Sciences in Los Angeles said the worse thing parents can do is keep the infant awake when sleep is needed.

He said research conducted at University of California on very young kittens indicates that a spasm of the larynx can be a major cause of sudden death.

Dr. Storey said acid in a baby's regurgitation might, in certain circumstances, have the same effect.

Damage Heavy In Two Mishaps

Philip J. Ainsworth, recently received his Master of Education degree at the Queen's Fall Convocation exercises Nov. 8, 1974. Mr. Ainsworth is the son of Mrs. Alma Ainsworth of Bloomfield and the late Marley Ainsworth. He is a public school. Principal employed by the Hastings County Board of Education at Batawa Public School. In receiving his degree, Mr. Ainsworth had the first thesis to be accepted in Education Administration from Queens.

TWEED — Two single-car accidents on Christmas Day caused more than $3,000 damage. Both drivers were alone and neither was charged, as police blamed bad road conditions for the mishaps.

Just after midnight Christmas Eve, Gary Joseph Cassidy of Tweed had control of his car on Highway 37, five miles south of Tweed. The car rolled and came to rest on its roof. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

Early Christmas afternoon a westbound car driven by William Francis Beatty of Kenmore, Peterborough, hit a hydro pole and mailbox before coming to rest in the ditch. Damage in this case is estimated at $700 to the pole and mailbox and $1,500 to the car. Poor road conditions were a contributing factor.

Mayor Injured

PICTON — Picton Mayor James Bird was treated and released at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital recently following a three-car collision on Main St.

Marney St. Sad Sack

'Tis the season to be jolly, old stone face. Why, somebody even dressed the cast concrete statue up with a sprig of evergreen for the festive season to help liven up downtown Belleville's Marney St. It'll well may be he'll cheer up for New Years.

Gold Under Many Christmas Trees

By ROBIN CHASE

'Twas the season to be thrifty, or so one would have deduced from daily news media reports of an economic recession and inflated prices.

But Christmas shoppers in Belleville turned that hypothesis upside-down this year by giving the city's jewelry stores their best business ever.

"Even though the price of gold is at an all-time high, people seem to be buying gold," commented Bruce Lynch, manager of Ed Logue Jeweller Ltd.

The increasing price of gold, which hit a record $184.50 an ounce Monday in London, has raised the price tags on all lines of jewelry made from gold, but that did not deter holiday gift buyers from purchasing higher-priced items.

Pointing out there was no trend this year to buy less expensive goods, he said he feels effects of an economic slowdown have not manifested themselves in this area yet.

"If hasn't hit this area, I don't think," said Mr. Lynch. "Most of the bad news has come from the (United) States."

He explained the city is growing, and there are more people earning good wages. He also noted recent industry layoffs have "haven't had time to reflect in the economy."

Mr. Lynch said sales were recorded for gift items up to $300, diamond rings starting at $100, and expensive watches and charms. "It's been a good year, as far as we're concerned."

Erin Dougherty, manageress of Nelson's China and Gifts, exclaimed, "they were payed cash. I was surprised there wasn't more Charge-a."

"It's been surprising really. In spite of everything we've hears about the economy," she commented. "For the big items, it's amazing. Our shelves are empty."

Gerry O'Connor, owner of O'Connor's Jewel Box, said there has been "a larger percentage of cash customers in this year than in any other. Some of the lay-a-ways started in September, the earliest I've ever seen."

He said shoppers were going for genuine items rather than simulated ones — "a definite interest in a high-grade jewelry." He added there was a run on gold goods in various forms with neck chains most popular.

"In 45 years of business, we've never had a season like this," said George Wonnacott, owner of W. Wonnacott and Son. "We've had the biggest year in gold that we've ever had. Price doesn't mean anything."

"People have the money to spend," he elaborated. "If there's any thought of a recession, sister people are saying money in the bank is worthless if the bottom falls out."

Mr. Wonnacott said shoppers were buying "every price range in watches" except for the very lowest.

"People are buying the middle and top end," he said.

"Price-wise, it doesn't make much difference," reported a spokesman for Coles Jewellers. And Al Reid, manager of Ronald Keel Jewellers, added, "It's not affecting them very much. The biggest percentage is in cash sales."

"(I don't think people are holding back too much," said Bert Lewis, owner of Bert Lewis and Son Jewellers. "There are a lot of cash sales."

Olive Rose of the jewelry department at Strout's Jewelry and Gift Shop summed up the holiday shopping madness this way: "If they see something, and they like it, that seems to be it."

Child Born With Cataract Develops Perfect Vision

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Henry Brent, director of the Hospital for Sick Children's cataract lens clinic, said he believes a 7-year-old Jamica Willie of Toronto is the only living person born with a cataract who has developed vision in the affected eye as good as in her affected eye.

Dr. Brent credits Janice's mother with bringing about the achievement. She kept a patch over the girl's good eye forcing her to use her poor one.

Dr. Brent said when the family moved to Toronto Janice was less young to have had her vision tested. When tested her vision fa found that the normal eye had become "a bit lazy."

The child had the cataract removed when she was six months old and living in British Columbia. She was later fitted with a contact lens which is periodically changed at the clinic.

A cataract clouds the lens of the eye so that light cannot get through to the retina to permit vision. Cataracts have a variety of causes, including injury and may sometimes run in families.

Dr. Brent said babies as young as six months old can be fitted with soft contact lenses at the clinic and that by the age of five or six most children can handle lenses.

Soft lenses accustom children to wearing a lens "and if they need a hard lens later for better vision they accept it more readily," he said.

Dr. Brent said contact lenses may also be needed for children whose eyes differ greatly in vision since, with conventional glasses, the picture is distorted when a strong lens and a weak one are combined.

Frank DiMarco, 8, another patient at the clinic, developed a cataract as a result of a hockey injury which cut the cornea, the transparent tissue in front of the eye.

Three eye specialists at the hospital, Dr. Tom Pashby, Dr. J. S. Crawford and Dr. Lionel Chalmers, conducted a study of eye injuries resulting from hockey. They found that in one year, there were 267 eye injuries and an average cause the player lost the sight of an eye.

The doctors are working with the Canadian Standards Association to establish standards for safety hockey masks, strong enough to stop a bullet, which would fit snugly to the face.

Polls Show PCs Slip As Ontario Vote Nears

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario faces the prospect of a jarring or fall election in 1975.

And buoyed by polls which show a slip in government popularity and recent byelection victories, opposition leaders hope that the 31-year reign of the Progressive Conservative party may be over.

Opposition Leader Robert Nixon sees Liberal victories in three of four byelections since the 1971 election as a rejection of the leadership of Premier William Davis.

Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democrats, is buoyed by an upset NDP win in the formerly Tory stronghold of Brantford.

"In Ontario, the rejection process is very strongly underway," he says.

Neither leader, however, discounts the possibility of a snap election if civil servants go through with the threat of an illegal strike and if contract disputes involving thousands of Ontario teachers aren't settled.

For the premier, the months ahead are likely to be busy ones. He is expected to maintain his hectic pace of speech-making and travelling around Ontario as he attempts to explain government policy.

The fourth session of the 29th legislature will be returning in January after the Christmas break.

Legislation in the new year is likely to include regulations on electoral boundaries, redesigning some Ontario ridings and adding eight new seats to the 117 already in existence.

There is likely to be a revamping of the Liquor Control and Liquor Licence acts and other legislation governing teachers, which may contain a clause imposing compulsory arbitration of disputes.

Unless there is a snap election this winter the government will likely bring down one more budget—in March—which it hopes will contain enough incentives on which to fight an election.

Treasurer John White has already indicated that he won't raise provincial income taxes. That is likely to mean a record deficit budget for Ontario.

The deficit on a budget of almost $8 billion for the current fiscal year is expected to approach $200 million.

Mr. White expects Ontario's economy to be affected by the inflation which is a worldwide problem.

But, he says, because of the soundness of its economy, Ontario will be better off than most other jurisdictions in North America.

While some areas are expecting major jumps in unemployment, Mr. White expects Ontario's to rise only marginally from four per cent to 4.5 per cent of the population.

Mr. White himself is the focus of speculation when political observers discuss the possibility of cabinet changes.

The treasurer has already announced that he won't run again in the next provincial election, and has said pervasively that he is willing to step down if the premier wants to break in a new man before the next election.

The consensus is, however, that there won't be another major cabinet shuffle before Mr. Davis goes to the people.

As election is looming in

Appeals For Amnesty

LONDON (AFP) — Amnesty International appealed here to Canadian President Ahmadou Ahidjo to free an estimated several thousand political prisoners. Amnesty's secretary-general Martin Ennals wrote to Ahidjo asking him to extend last July's amnesty to common-law prisoners to political detainees. He said hundreds of people were held without trial in "administrative internment camps," the major one at Djoungo in the north. Other prisoners were held at Maroua, Yoke and in the capital Yaounde.

Ontario's future and all three parties are gearing up for it. Present standings: 74 Progressive Conservatives, 33 Liberals and 20 New Democrats.

Jean Renoir became one of the greatest masters of the art of cinema. In this book he portrays the places where he has lived and worked in Europe and Hollywood and India. He tells us why he became a maker of films, but most of all he shows us himself, a man of great simplicity, immense creativity and profound humanity.

Cobras Can Help Arthritic

BOMBAY (CP) — Cobra venom, which can kill a victim within an hour, can be used in small doses to treat arthritis, an Indian scientist says.

Dr. A. Majumdar, director of the Indian Mahan Lal Centre for Rheumatic Diseases, said the arthritis patients have been treated successfully with the venom.

Dr. Majumdar, an authority on the ancient Hindu system of medicine known as Ayurveda, said the medical use of cobra venom is mentioned in ancient Ayurveda textbooks but modern doctors have been reluctant to experiment with it because of its lethal effect.

He said the patients at the Institute had received an oral dose of a few milligrams of purified cobra venom daily for about three months.

He told the Press Trust of India the World Health Organization has asked the institute to forward details of the treatment to a Belgian scientist who is also experimenting with cobra venom for medical purposes.

The Ayurveda system, said to be more than 3,000 years old, is recognized by the Indian government. Officials of the Indian health ministry are encouraging a combination of the Ayurveda and Western systems of medicine.

The medical correspondent of the Times of India group of newspapers said the credit for using cobra serpentina, an herbal extract for treating hypertension, goes to Ayurveda and added: "It now is up to Western analysts to find out precisely how the many alkaloids in cobra venom combat arthritis."

Meanwhile, snake-catchers are protesting a boon in their dangerous business.

Sheik Kamruddin, a professional snake-catcher who exports cobras to Western countries where their venom is used to make serums to cure snake bite, said "Business has not been good as not many people are bitten by deadly snakes these days. But I'm told there are at least five million arthritis patients in Europe alone."

Gets New Command

LONDON (AFP) — Brig. Kenneth Perkins, director of defence operational plans in the British defence ministry, will soon take command of United forces next February, it was announced here. He will assume the rank of major-general and will succeed Maj.-Gen. T. M. Crossy.

Environmentalists See Links Of Pollutants with Cancer

OTTAWA (CP) — The environment was pushed out of the limelight in 1974 by relative newcomers to the Doomsday Gang—famine, energy and inflation.

But environmentalists, convinced that their concern are too vital to be kept in the wings, published evidence which, while still inconclusive, suggests industrial society is out of tune with Mother Nature.

Ominously, the findings heralded 1975 as the year of the chemical assault on human health. Researchers forged links between human cancers and numerous environmental pollutants such as vinyl chloride, plastics components, arsenic, asbestos, ozone and aerosol propellants.

Robert Shaw, federal deputy minister of the environment, put the situation in perspective in a recent interview.

Five to 10 years ago, politicians and the public started listening to concerned scientists and financed their environmental research, he said. Now the research results are beginning to show.

A confessed optimist, Mr. Shaw said his optimism has been sorely tested in his job as the senior civil servant in charge of environmental improvement.

Researchers scrutinizing the landscape found new potential hazards in some drinking-water supplies. The high cancer rate in New Orleans was linked with that city's water, which comes from one of the most chemically polluted rivers in the world, the Mississippi.

A recent booklet from Mr. Shaw's department, called The All-Canadian Cleanup, notes eight Canadian rivers has also are "in real pollution trouble," a fact not missed by government health officials who have recommended a national drinking-water survey.

Ironically, the possible cancer-causing compounds are apparently formed during the chlorination process intended to rid drinking water of disease organisms.

Other evidence, including some produced by the federal atmospheric environment service in Toronto, suggests that the freons used as propellants in aerosol cans are destroying the protective ozone layer in the upper atmosphere.

Scientists say the ozone is the upper atmosphere will allow cancer-causing ultraviolene light to penetrate the earth's protective envelope, with greater intensity.

Aerosols were in the news again in December when U.S. researchers warned that compounds of zirconium should not be used in anti-perspirant sprays because they may cause respiratory disease.

Then there was the vinyl chloride scare. Last spring, at a Royal Society of Canada symposium, Dr. Robert Quelette of the Mitre Corp., a mental-etiology, warned that a potentially disastrous pollution threat is mounting from the largely unregulated use of organic compounds.

Shortly afterward one of these compounds, vinyl chloride, was implicated in the deaths of several American industrial workers from a rare and deadly form of liver cancer known as angiosarcoma.

As many as 700,000 people around the world are exposed to the vinyl chloride danger, some of them in Canada. Health officials here are expected to introduce regulations prohibiting use of the substance in materials for food packaging.

Also linked to cancer is arsenic which may be breathed by workers in the production of pesticides, glass, ceramics, metal alloys and .ell products.

The federal government, recognizing there is too little control over the estimated 10 000 chemical compounds known to be toxic to humans, introduced an environmental contaminants bill in the Commons late in November.

Beaufort Sea Drilling

Recoverable reserves in the Mackenzie Delta — Beaufort Sea region have been estimated by the Geological Survey of Canada at six billion barrels of oil and 90 trillion cubic feet of natural gas. Exploration in the Beaufort Sea involves possible environmental impact from underwater blowouts or oil spills, and effects on animal life on which the native people have for centuries based their livelihood. Environment Being Studied

Oil Search Has Spread To Beaufort Sea Coast

CALGARY (CP) — The search for frontier energy resources to meet Canada's future requirements has spilled out of the Mackenzie Delta into adjacent offshore areas of the Beaufort Sea.

Recoverable reserves in the Mackenzie Delta-Beaufort Sea region have been estimated by the Geological Survey of Canada at six billion barrels of oil and 90 trillion cubic feet of natural gas. About half lie under the Beaufort Sea.

Exploration in the Beaufort involves possible environmental impact from underwater blowouts or oil spills and effects on animal life on which the native people have for centuries based their livelihood.

A statement by the Committee for Original People's Entitlement (COPE) says:

"All around the edge of the Beaufort Sea the native people are trapping foxes or hunting white whales and seals and catching fish that run in from the sea.

"In the winter the people from Holman Island, Paulatuk, Sachs Harbor and Tuktoyaktuk travel far out onto the sea hunting polar bears.

"Some of the permit blocks where drilling will be done first are right in the area where the people from Tuktoyaktuk hunt polar bears. Others be close to the coast in areas which are critical to seals, white whales and waterfowl."

It is mainly in response to the native people's concern that a one-year, $5-million environmental study program is under way in the Beaufort Sea.

Under an agreement signed May 13, 1974, the industry is contributing $4 million to the program, consisting of 29 separate studies covering aspects of the environment. Other studies are on-going federal projects at a cost of $1 million.

The federal government is maintaining control over the licensing of exploration permits and offshore drilling in the Beaufort Sea will not commence until the studies are completed.

Some oil companies have already started exploratory drilling in the Beaufort Sea from man-made islands but these operations are classified by the department of Indian and northern affairs as land-based rather than offshore operations which would require floating bases.

However, the native people do not consider the program a sufficient safeguard.

COPE, which has asked that offshore drilling be delayed at least three years, said the one-year program is unlikely to find all the answers, as the environment in the Beaufort Sea is "probably the most hazardous the oil industry has had to face anywhere in the world."

Representing the industry in the environmental study program is the Arctic Petroleum Operators' Association. Eighteen oil companies holding permits in the Beaufort Sea are funding the program.

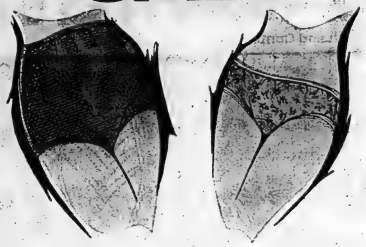
The 29 studies in the program cover eight categories of research—seabirds and mammals, marine life, existing pollutants in the Beaufort Sea, physical oceanography, meteorology, environmental assessment, sea ice studies and oil cleanup.

A. E. Pallister, president of Pallister Resource Management Ltd. of Calgary, consultants to the industry in the program, says the native people are being kept informed of what the industry is doing in the Beaufort Sea.

Meetings with the native people to explain the environmental program were held at Tuktoyaktuk, Aklavik, Inuvik and Sachs Harbor in October, he said. Another series of meetings is scheduled for January.

The industry's participation in the program indicates its willingness to protect the environment, and the federal government, which has the final say, will see to it that no undue environmental damage will be caused by exploration drilling."

—There has been "an avoidance" of the issue.



The program started last June and is scheduled to end in the spring of 1975. If all goes as planned, offshore exploration drilling in the Beaufort Sea will commence in 1976.

Industry sources say it is only a matter of time before energy resources from the Mackenzie Delta-Beaufort Sea region are marketed in southern Canada and, if surplus to Canadian needs, the United States.

Two groups have already proposed natural gas pipelines from the Mackenzie Delta—Canadian Arctic Gas Study Ltd. and Foothills Pipeline Ltd.

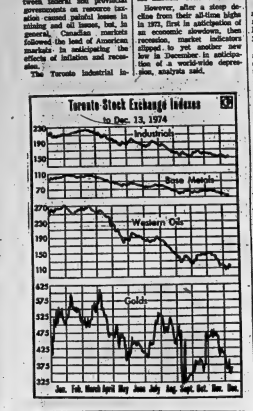
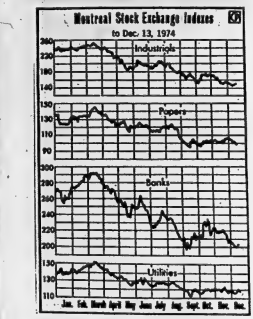
Steady Stream of Bad News Makes Stock Prices Slump



By SANDRA INGLESBY
The Canadian Press



A steady outpouring of gloomy economic news took a heavy toll on stock markets this year. Prices slumped to their lowest levels in years amid dwindling trading activity.

In Canada, the dispute between federal and provincial governments on resource taxation caused painful losses in mining and oil issues, but, in general, Canadian markets followed the lead of American markets in anticipating the effects of inflation and recession.

The Toronto industrial index closed at 151.91 on Oct. 4, lowest since July 1970. The Dow Jones average slid to a 12-year low and the Montreal industrial index to a four-year low. A subsequent rally from these levels, prompted by a decline in interest rates, created some short-lived optimism that Oct. 4 had been the market bottom.

However, after a steep decline from their all-time highs in 1972, first in anticipation of an economic slowdown, then on recession, market indicators slipped to yet another new low in December in anticipation of a world-wide depression, analysts said.

Markets showed some strength early in the year, partly in expectation of the end of the Arab oil embargo which came March 17. The Toronto industrial index closed at its high for the year of 227.32 March 14. But, rising inflation emerging world recession, high interest rates, and monetary instability caused the Toronto and Montreal Stock Exchanges to hit their lowest levels in several years early in October. The Toronto industrial index closed at 151.19 on Oct. 4, the lowest since July 1970 and the Montreal industrial index slid to a four-year low. (CP Newsmap)

The Toronto industrial index had fallen back to the 159-level by mid-December compared with its record close of 227.32 in October, 1973, and its 1972 record close of 223.57. The Dow Jones average fell below 600 once again in December, compared with its record high of 1051.70 of January, 1973.

Markets abroad also slumped badly, with the Financial Times index of the London stock market at a 10-year low.

Although a number of analysts thought markets had over-reacted they said that until it becomes clearer just how long recessionary problems were going to last, predictions for the 1975 markets would be difficult.

However, one advantage for domestic markets was that the Canadian economy should continue to grow, though at a moderate pace, next year. Once the world economic situation shows some improvement, Canadian stocks should become more attractive, observers said.

Shares of oil and mining companies were particularly hard hit as Canadian markets this year. Provincial governments increased taxes and royalties on this sector and the federal government countered, in both the May and November budgets, by decking that these payments would no longer qualify as tax deductions in computing federal income tax.

Fears of reduced earnings and drastic cuts in exploration by resource companies pushed the western oil index to Toronto to an eight-year low in December and the base-metal index, which also reflected weakening metal prices, to an 11-year low.

Western oils advanced from these levels following Alberta's decision to reduce oil and gas royalties. Analysts said the move and any further compromises between the federal and provincial governments would brighten the outlook for these shares in 1975.

Speculative activity in gold, and commodities, had also increased in 1974. The Toronto gold index closed at an all-

Pollution Controls Produce Much Sulphur

CALGARY (CP) — Development of new commercial applications for sulphur to increase market demand is the objective of the Sulphur Development Institute of Canada (Sudic), a joint government-industry effort.

World sulphur production is exceeding demand while increasingly stringent pollution control measures in oil, gas and coal production are adding to the sulphur surplus.

Alberta, Canada's leading energy province, has a stockpile of 13 million tons.

Most of Canada's sulphur comes from non-voluntary production—as a byproduct of the sour gas product—and about 95 per cent is produced in Alberta.

Sudic was formed in July, 1973 to co-ordinate and help fund research into the commercial applications of sulphur. Its annual research budget is $1 million, of which roughly 35 per cent comes from the federal government and the remainder from the Alberta government and 23 oil and gas companies involved in sulphur production in Alberta.

"We have funded and partially funded several research projects with promising results," Dr. Donald R. Muir, Sudic president, said in an interview.

Dr. Muir said Sudic does not conduct its own research but contracts with appropriate organizations and funds up to 10 per cent of the research undertaken by non-profit academic groups.

Funding is usually on a 50-50 basis if research projects are contracted to industry.

So far, Sudic has contracted about 15 projects. All of them, Dr. Muir said, are "market-oriented" as opposed to pure academic research.

Tests have been conducted in the Northwest Territories and Calgary on a sulphur foam developed by Chevron Standard Ltd. as an insulating agent in road construction.

Dr. Muir said three or four inches of sulphur foam, used as a permafrost insulator in road construction in the North and covered with three feet of gravel, can replace seven feet of gravel.

The test in Calgary will evaluate the sulphur foam's effectiveness as an insulating material to prevent heaving of roads by frost.

Since gravel is scarce and sulphur foam can be manufactured in-place at the construction site, Dr. Muir said this material shows promise for full - scale commercialization.

A process developed by Shell Canada Ltd., adding sulphur to asphalt paving mix, can produce high-quality pavement from low-grade aggregate or sand.

"The process will improve the economics of road building by permitting the use of local sands in areas where high-quality aggregate is not available," he said.

When molten sulphur is mixed with aggregate and allowed to cool, a process being developed by Sulphur Innovations Ltd. of Calgary it produces a concrete with strength equivalent to regular cement concrete but with improved resistance to water, acid and salt attack.

"This has great significance, particularly in the manufacture of precast products which are subjected to particularly harsh environments."

The durability and strength of regular precast concrete can be improved by impregnating it with molten sulphur. Dr. Muir said sulphur impregnation is not new but researchers with the federal energy department have recently developed a simplified method of impregnation for Sudic's help.

While Sudic was established only last year, industry now has used to develop new uses for sulphur long ago. Alberta Sulphur Research Ltd., based at University of Calgary, was set up by industry 19 years ago.

Sudic now is helping fund seven projects by Alberta Sulphur Research, Dr. Muir said.

Dr. J. B. Hyne, research director of Alberta Sulphur Research, said with the development of the Alberta oil sands, sulphur output in the province will increase rapidly.

The 300 billion barrels of synthetic crude oil estimated recoverable from the sands would yield 780 millions tons of sulphur—or four times the province's proven sulphur reserves based on 1970 est.

Dr. Hyne said both Ford Motor Co. and British Railways have developed batteries which use sodium and liquid sulphur in place of the traditional lead and sulphuric acid. And researchers in Canada have developed a chemical laser beam using a carbon disulphide oxygen flame.

Carleton Pupils Go To Paris

OTTAWA (CP) — The city of Paris will be the classroom for a novel art history course at Carleton University of Ottawa.

For one month starting May 21 the satisfactory course will expose students to a range of Parisian art collections from medieval monuments to Picasso paintings.

In the medieval section of the course, classes will be held in the Bibliotheque Nationale, the Louvre and the Musee des Arts Decoratifs. Carleton's medieval specialist for the art history department, Diane le Berrurier, will direct a course survey of medieval art, sculpture and manuscripts.

Prof. le Berrurier will also point out artistic features of the Saint Denis, Notre Dame and Chartres cathedrals.

Clifford M. Brown, co-ordinator of the course, will lecture on classical art and Renaissance works in the Louvre and the Musee Jacquemart.

Students will examine the Louvre and Luxembourg Palaces as examples of French Renaissance architecture.

Also at the Louvre a third Carleton art history professor, David Burnett, will lead a study of Baroque paintings and drawings.

In a survey of 19th century paintings in the Orangiere and the Jeu de Paume, Prof. Burnett will emphasize revolutionary developments in French painting from Delacroix to Picasso.

The course directors plan to have field trips outside of Paris. Trips are proposed to Chartres, Amiens, Rouen, Chantilly, Versailles, Fontainebleau and the chateaux of the Loire Valley.

Gas to Cost More

LONDON (AP) — Motorists in Britain will have to pay up to 25 cents more for a gallon of gasoline in future, an increase of about 20 per cent since last month, raising the average price to about $1.25 a gallon. Energy Secretary Eric Varley said in a written parliamentary statement that the oil companies needed increased prices because of the higher price for crude oil charged by the producing countries.

Hockey School Gets Pat On Back from Coach

With the rising cost of commodities these days it's getting hard to put a decent sized feather in your cap. For that matter it's getting so you can't even afford your cap.

Nevertheless, for what it's worth (and once inflation gets a hold of it that might not be too much), here's a feather that the boys running the Belleville Basic Hockey School may proudly display.

The four gaolers and instructors (one and the same — Floyd Crawford, Ty Beckstead, Lionel Botly and, chief, Dr. Lionel Dechrli — have finally had their efforts recognized.

Moe Hunter, former Bobcat coach, is now coaching the Dixie Lee Minor Peewee All-stars. Hunter has enrolled his entire squad on Ontario Minor Hockey Association youngsters in the School. As a matter of fact, he's had them there for most of the School's first semester and he likes the results so well he's contemplating enrolling them for the second semester.

"We enlisted them at the school to give them a little extra ice time," said Hunter, "and to allow the boys an honest opportunity to improve their skating and fundamental knowledge of the game."

Those two items are what the Basic Hockey School is all about. The instructors stress them above all else.

"We've noticed the difference in the boys' game this Monday," the School has helped. I think it's hound to help anyone that enrolls."

Take 3.

There you have it for anyone who might be slightly skeptical of the project, the Belleville Basic Hockey School is selling. That more evidence we need does it need than that of a local coaching great?

"We're glad to see such a tremendous response to our efforts," said Bradshaw, the School's spokesman, "everyone seems to be pleased about what we're doing."

Bradshaw explained that there was another all-star club in town hoping to secure enrolment for the second semester, which begins January 19.

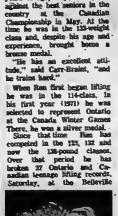
The School takes the first 100 boys who apply. (It is restricted to boys between the ages of eight and 14.) Then there they are broken down into three groups according to their respective ages.

Registration, by the way, is open to anyone meeting those qualifications. Call them at 613 for a 13-week course ending March 16. That includes an hour of ice time each week and 15-20 minutes of chalk talk before each on-ice session.

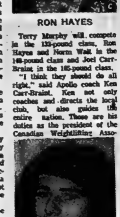
For those interested, you can register anytime between now and January 16, at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street. The way things are going though, don't wait too long.

Apollo Weightlifters Prepared for Games

All facts carefully weighed (if you'll excuse the expression), the Apollo Barbell Club should leave quite an impression on Thunder Bay come the end of December.

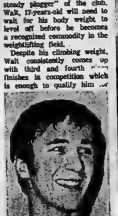


There are four members of the local weightlifting establishment travelling to the Port Arthur — Fort William region for the Ontario Winter Games, December 27-29.



RON HAYES

Terry Murphy will compete in the 123-pound class, Ron Hayes and Norm Walt in the 148-pound class and Joel Carr-Brainl in the 185-pound class.



"I think they should do all right," said Apollo coach Joel Carr-Brainl. Ron not only coaches and instructs the local club, but also guides the entire nation. Those are his duties as president of the Canadian Weightlifting Association.

KEN CARR-BRAINT

TERRY MURPHY

NORM WALT

JOEL CARR-BRAINT

cian. He is also one of the only two weightlifting coaches in Canada that are certified by the international association.

Apollo's best bet for a gold medal at the games is Ron Hayes. He's been at this sport on a serious basis, for four years now, at the national level.

"Ron should probably take a gold," said coach Carr-Brainl. "He's only missed it once, and that was because he was beaten by Hayes in a weightlifting tournament in Belleville on Saturday. The two, 148-pound lifters went right to the wire before Ron was declared the winner.

Though still a junior at 19 years of age, Hayes competed against the best seniors in the country in the Canadian Championship in May. At the time he was in the 132-weight class and, despite his age and experience, brought home a bronze medal.

"He has an excellent attitude," said Carr-Brainl, "and he trains hard."

When Ron first began lifting he was in the 114-class. In his first year (1971) he was selected to represent Ontario at the Canada Winter Games (Terry, too, was a silver medal).

Since that time Ron has competed in the 123, 132 and now the 138-pound classes. Over that period he has broken 12 Canadian and Canadian teenage lifting records. Saturday, at the Belleville meet, he set three more provincial marks with a 290-pound press, a 330-pound clean and jerk and his 479-pound total.

Carr - Brainl feels Hayes is sure to be the nine-man team that will be shoots to travel to the Canada Winter Games in Lethbridge, Alberta in February.

"Another youngster with a good chance is Terry Murphy," said the coach.

Murphy is 17-years-old, but has only been at the weightlifting game for 10 months.

"He's very nervous before he competes," said Carr-Brainl, "He trains very hard. Sometimes he'll train five times a week for about three hours every practice."

Murphy's latest accomplishments include a second-place finish at a meet in Sarnia and first place in the Belleville meet.

"Every time he competes he improves," said Carr-Brainl. "He's been a steady climb since he started."

Norm Walt, a wiry 148-pound lifter, has been with the club for four years. Norm has always had problems getting down in the sport.

"Every time he starts to gain a little, as far as ability is concerned, his body weight shoots up another category on him," said the coach.

Carr-Brainl calls him "the steady plugger" of the club. Walt, 19-years-old will need to wait for his body weight to level off before he becomes a recognized commodity in the weightlifting field.

Despite his climbing weight, Walt consistently comes up with third and fourth or finishes in competition which is enough to qualify him for the Ontario Games.

The fourth member of the Apollo Club going to "Yonder Bay is Joel Carr-Brainl.

"Like Norm he has a hard time keeping his ability on the same level as his weight," said coach Carr-Brainl (yes, they're related — father and son). "Once he starts to reach an ability level parallel to his class he gains weight and moves up a class."

Getting It Together

Apollo Barbell Club lifters Terry Murphy, Norm Walt, Ron Hayes and Joel Carr-Brainl give with the muscle as they sweat through training sessions in preparation for competition in Ontario Winter Games at Thunder Bay this week.

Cougars Trim All-stars

COBOURG (Special) — Support is one thing that the Cobourg Cougars of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior C league didn't lack in Monday's All-Star game played in Cobourg.

1461 people bought tickets for the contest in which the home team came up with an impressive 7-4 victory over the All-Stars.

Cobourg goalie Ron Fowler was the main reason for the 1-1 score at the end of the first period. Fowler was faced with a total of 15 shots in the opening period while his team only managed 6 shots on the opposition.

Ian Williams was the big gun for the winners picking up a hat-trick and a helper in his team's winning effort. Terry Irwin was next in the scoring end of things for the Cobourg team with a pair of markers.

The home team held a 4-3 lead at the end of the second period. Jim Coombes, of the Lindsay Muskies had two goals in his teams losing effort with Jeff Legere and Boyd Knox of Bowmanville Eagles rounding out the scoring for the All-Stars.

Each team was assesed only 4 minor penalties during the course of the contest in which the All-Stars out shot Cobourg by 37-34.

4 BMHA Teams In Tournament

Four Belleville Minor Hockey Association all-star teams will be taking part in the annual Trenton Minor Hockey Association Silver Puck Tournament this weekend.

Both atom teams, the McDonald's minor and the Trenton-Food City majors are to action Friday while the Dixie Lee peewee minors go at it Saturday, and the McInroy Construction bantam minors, Sunday.

Finals in all three divisions are scheduled for Monday, December 30.

Belleville representatives kick off the action in all three divisions.

Friday, the McDonald's atoms look up with Trenton at 8 a.m. with the Trenton Food City majors meeting with Cliff Legere and Boyd Knox of Bowmanville Eagles rounding out the scoring for the All-Stars.

Each team was assesed only 4 minor penalties during the course of the contest in which the All-Stars out shot Cobourg by 37-34.

On Saturday, the peewee opener features the Dixie Lee team and Trenton at 8 a.m. Other minor teams in the event are Picton and Frankford.

It's McInroy Construction meeting Trenton in the first game of the bantam series, Sunday morning at 8 o'clock. Rounding out the minor section of the bantam set are Kingston Township and Oshawa.

The McInroy team is busy on two other tournaments this year as the squad is at the Calaraqui Community Centre to take part in the Kingston Township minor bantam event and Saturday, it's action in the Kingston City tourney.

In the Kingston Township event McInroy makes its first start Friday against Trenton at 8 a.m. Saturday, Kingston supplies the opposition in a 9 a.m. opener.

It is sponsored by the Quinte Exhibition Raceway and a spokesman for the group expects up to 60 competitors for the 15 scheduled races.

Many readers inquire as to why the results of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association are not blessing the columns of our sports page this year.

That is a very good question. You see, we're wondering the same thing. Before the BMHA's season started we informed the organization of our intentions. We wanted the results sent to us.

The gentleman who did it last year, Austin Watkin, is the president of the league this year. He was informed of our desire to publish the results. In turn he was to inform the convenors of each division. They were to inform the coaches who were supposed to get things off the ground.

As it stands right now the whole thing hasn't even gotten out of the basement. Somewhere along the line there was a communication break in the chain of command.

We've even requested a weekly selecting of a minor hockey player who came up with a strong performance. We had hoped to run a player's picture and his statistics as a series. Somebody else too got left in the basement. (Maybe even below that.)

Anyway, our thanks to one conscientious goof, Ron Comber. He didn't know how you got mixed up with the BMHA, but thanks for your efforts. Mr. Comber is the only one who's sent in anything so far this year.

Oakland the Favorite On Arm of Stabler

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Three quarterbacks who have been named the game before, plus one newcomer to National Football League playoff pressure, will be trying Sunday for berths in pro football's Super Bowl.

The American Conference battle in Oakland pits the Raiders' outstanding Ken Stabler against Pittsburgh Steelers' young Terry Bradshaw, a rugged signal-caller coming off what the Steelers' Coach Noll, called the best game of his pro career last week.

Meanwhile, in Bloomington, Minn., the National Conference title game pairs Los Angeles Rams, guided by poised new quarterback James Harris, against the rugged Minnesota Vikings with 14-year veteran Fran Tarkenton at the helm.

Oakland is rated a six-point favorite over Pittsburgh, and one of the big factors is the passing attack, triggered by the left-handed Stabler.

The veteran was among the top passers in the league during the regular season and was most impressive in driving his team to a 36-16 victory over Miami Dolphins in the playoff opener last week.

Stabler's wide receivers complement each other perfectly—Cliff Branch, the deep threat with the game-breaking speed, and Fred Biletnikoff, with the sure hands, the precise moves and the experience to come through in any zone defense.

But Bradshaw was just as impressive in Pittsburgh's playoff win, when he destroyed Buffalo defense with precise passing and timely runs.

Los Angeles, a three-point underdog in Minnesota in the NFC match, is counting on Harris to rise to the occasion. A strong ground game has paved the way when he has had to, Harris was handed the starting job in mid-season when the Rams dealt Roman Gabriel to Green Bay Packers.

But he still is relatively rebuffed by playoff pressure. He led the Rams' past Washington 19-10 last week, but his mark was considerably eased by six Redskin turnovers.

The Vikings' Tarkenton is the most experienced of the five quarterbacks, a 14-year veteran who can break a game open with his passing or his running. And he will be going up against a secondary which some observers have called the Rams' weakness.

The defensive backfield underwent a mid-season shakeup when Los Angeles coach Chuck Knox promoted Al Clark and Bill Simpson into the starting unit along with Dave Elmendorf and Charlie Stukes.

Bart Back With Pack

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Bart Starr, signed earlier this week to a three-year-contract as head coach and general manager of Green Bay Packers, said he is concentrating during the holiday season on his new role with the National Football league club.

"I'm not as qualified as Vic Ilka is, but I'm learning," said the 40-year-old veteran who spent 15 seasons quarterbacking the club he now will pilot.

He said the chance to run the club he guided to two Super Bowl victories, six divisional and five league titles was an opportunity he could not turn down.

Starr said he could not name five players eligible for the 1975 college draft, "but we have some people upstairs who can and I'll be working very closely with them."

On his subject of assistant coaches, he said: "What I hope to do is surround myself with people (from) diverse backgrounds, who can challenge with their ideas."

When asked how long it would take to get the Packers into the playoffs, Starr replied:"It may take us awhile."

Not Individuals Says Steeler Star

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Joe Greene, Pittsburgh Steeler defensive tackle, says that after the team's 32-14 playoff shellacking of Buffalo Bills last Sunday, he finally feels he belongs here.

Greene, who was named to the All-Pro team by the Associated Press and the American Football Conference this year, was drafted by Oakland and against the Raiders.

"For the first time, the fans are treating me as a person," he said. "Not for individuals, not for one player and against another, but for us," Greene said. "It was a whole new experience and I loved every minute of it, I'll tell you."

Coach Chuck Noll did his best to make Greene and his teammates enjoy their Christmas workout as much as possible, scheduling a light workout for the morning, so players might go home for holiday dinner.

Greene had especially happy Christmas after learning he had joined the ranks of such Pittsburgh favorites as Rip Scherer, Ernie Pye, Roberto Clemente, Arnold Palmer and John Michelosen at the team's 40th annual Dapper Dan man of the year award.

"The award . . . man, I like it . . . but I'm sensitive about awards," he said. "I'll think when I get an award it should have been the name of my defensive partners, too. They really share in this.

Lou Brock

Sporting News Picks Cardinal

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals' Lou Brock, who stole a record 118 bases during the baseball season, was named Sports Man of the Year by the Sporting News Tuesday.

Brock beat out such candidates as tennis star Jimmy Connors, Los Angeles Dodger relief pitcher Mike Marshall and golfer Johnny Miller in a vote by the Sporting News staff.

The 35-year-old Brock, who totaled second to Dodger first baseman Steve Garvey in the National League's Most Valuable Player voting, batted .306 in leading the Cardinals to a second-place finish in the National League's Eastern Division.

Brock's 1974 base-stealing performance gave him 733 lifetime baths, third behind Billy Hamilton (937) and Ty Cobb (892), and rapresented his fourth straight NL stolen-base crown and the eighth of his career.

KELLEHER PURCHASED

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals said Monday they have purchased the contract of infielder Mick Kelleher from Houston Astros for their Tulsa farm club. Kelleher, 27, who originally signed with the Cardinals as a free agent in 1968, appeared with the National League baseball team in parts of the 1972 and 1973 seasons before being add to Houston in October 1973.

Bronco Undecided About the Future

WASHINGTON (AP) — Quarterback Sonny Jurgensen, who turned 40 when the 1974 National Football League season rolls around, says he hasn't decided yet whether he will return to Washington Redskins.

For Jurgensen, the Redskins' 19-10 loss to Los Angeles Rams last weekend in a National Conference semi-final contest was a lowmark in an otherwise outstanding season.

"I'd like to play as long as I feel I can make a contribution," said Jurgensen, an 18-year veteran who has been with the Redskins since 1964 and ended the regular season as the conference's top passer.

"I felt I did make a contribution this year. I've just got to sit down and reflect on the whole season, I'm not doing that now. It's a busy time.

Jurgensen finished the regular season with 167 completions in 267 attempts for 1,185 yards, 11 touchdowns and five interceptions.

However, should he retire, he probably will be remembered for his final game against the Rams in which he threw three interceptions in the 13 minutes he played.

"I was very disappointed about the game," he said. "I got in there in a situation I don't really mind. I felt we could score.

Game Postponed

Cougars' Future Still Up in Air

CHICAGO (AP) — Tonight's scheduled World Hockey Association game between the financially-troubled Chicago Cougars and Cleveland Crusaders has been postponed, the league announced.

A spokesman for the Cougars, whose franchise status has become uncertain in recent weeks, said the postponement was announced by Dennis Murphy, WHA president. Murphy said the game will be rescheduled.

Murphy also said there would be an announcement today about the status of the Cougars.

An attempt to gain financial stability by bringing in new owners, including Cougar players Ralph Backstrom and Pat Stapleton, fell through recently, and it is rumored the club may move to Baltimore, Md.

Allen Licensed to Train Horses

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Baseball star Dick Allen has become a licensed thoroughbred trainer.

The American League homerun champion, recently traded to the Chicago White Sox by the National League by Chicago White Sox, passed his trainer's examination Tuesday.

Allen left after the examination to a friend said the slugger has seven race horses on his farm. The friend said Allen had to get back to the farm because of a sick shortage.

"He's doing all the work, cleaning out stalls and everything," the friend said.

Donald H. Shanklin, steward at Keystone, said Allen passed the Standard written test for trainers.

"He was very adequately prepared," Shanklin said. "He apparently seems dedicated and has put quite a bit of money into this and he'll be a fine addition to the sport."

Allen owns all the horses he will be training. As well as those on the farm, he has four entered at Keystone. Two of his horses ran Nov. 11—a three-year-old named Getting Ready finishing seventh and a two-year-old called Pieces' Dream running fifth.

The 33-year-old Allen, who said he was retiring . . . ! said when he left the White Sox in mid-September, has declined to sign with the Braves, but has never officially submitted a letter of retirement.

"Everybody said I'm retired except me," Allen said last September. "I'm only retired if they don't want me back. I'm going to play baseball next year, even if it's Jenkintown (a Philadelphia suburb)."

But after he was dealt to the Braves, he sent them a telegram, declining their contract offer—at least for the time being.

Of horse racing, Allen said: "To play in a World Series or to develop a good colt, I can't think which would give me greater pleasure."

Things Are Different In National League

By NEIL CAMPBELL
The Canadian Press

What a difference a year makes!

"A year ago Vancouver Canucks were last in the National Hockey League division, hopelessly out of contention for a playoff position.

Los Angeles Kings were fighting to stay within reach of a playoff berth and Buffalo Sabres were fifth in their division, two points behind Toronto Maple Leafs.

After two days off for this year's Christmas celebrations, the Sabres and Canucks are again leading their divisions.

The Kings are two points from the top in their division, and the Leafs are sagging badly, although they still occupy a playoff spot.

ADD TWO TEAMS

Comparisons are complicated by a change in the league's divisional and playoff formats and the addition of two expansion teams—Kansas City Scouts and Washington Capitals.

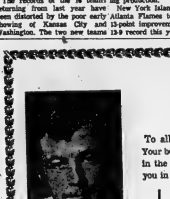
The league went to four divisions this year from last year's two. While 13 teams qualify for the Stanley Cup playoffs this year, only eight were eligible last year.

The records of the 16 teams returning from last year have been distorted by the poor early season performances of Kansas City and the 13-point improvement with a 12-game winning streak.

The Islanders gave up only two more goals last year, but increased their offensive output to 133 goals from last year's 73.

Toronto Maple Leafs' hit hard by injuries this fall, have suffered the biggest decline, with 42 points to last year's 98.

Most of the Leafs' injuries involved defensive players and their goals-against record reflects that. They have given up 146 goals this year, while last year they had allowed only 99 goals in the league's other half.



A comparison of the point totals of the league's other half-dozen teams, with a plus equaling a gain and a minus a decline:

Philadelphia +7; Chicago +6; Pittsburgh +6; Montreal +2; California +2; Atlanta +1; Detroit unchanged; St. Louis —1; Boston —3; New York Rangers —4; Detroit —7.

The rest of tonight's schedule has Philadelphia Flyers at Boston, St. Louis Blues at Pittsburgh Penguins, and Minnesota North Stars at Detroit Red Wings.

CONTRACTS VIRUS

NEW YORK (AP) — Delmonico Hanover, the leading mare sold at auction last month for a record $300,000, has contracted a virus that will force cancellation of her attempt at a second straight victory in Europe's most prestigious harness race, the $225,100 Prix d'Amerique.

ALL ABOUT SCORING GOALS

No matter how one looks at it, hockey is decided on goals. Of course, if you take a look at our line-up with Phil Esposito, you'd have to say he is one player who makes scoring goals look easy.

Espo is off to another unbelievable start this year and all you have to do is look at the National Hockey League statistics. Since Espo joined the Bruins in the 1967-68 season, he's scored 393 goals and 477 assists (excluding this year's totals).

He doesn't look like a superb hockey player because he isn't overly muscular. His skating often seems easy in comparison to others. But Espo has the determination to score.

Watch him closely next time you see him. Watch how he's developed his handling of the puck where he makes playmaking look very smooth and natural. Notice how he positions himself in front of the net always prepared to ward off defenders and shoot at the net.

Espo believes the more shots one has on goal, the better his chances of scoring. He has a habit of also using the proper shot for beating goalies — low to the right or left hand corners. There's no doubt, youngsters can learn quite a bit from this player.

But there are others. Gilbert Perreault and Rick Martin of Buffalo Sabres, Yvan Cournoyer from Montreal Canadiens, Tom Lysiak of Atlanta Flames, Marcel Dionne of Detroit Red Wings and Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers are but a few examples of people who give goalies nightmares anytime they have the puck.

What I suggest for youngsters to do is talk your coach or your father into cutting a piece of plywood and put in front of the goal so that you can practice picking the four weak corners on a goalie — the bottom right and left plus the top right and left.

And before practices, test your goalie at these vulnerable areas with all your shots. Not only will this drill help you score goals but it will assist your goalie in sharpening his reflexes for those top scorers in your league.

Quotes Come Back to Haunt

BILLY HARRIS
Easy, Assignment?

By BEL BUSBIN
CP Sports Editor

Unless you're a saint, you're bound to say something scorching you later regret.

Trouble is, if you're a prominent sports personality your quotes are likely to come back to haunt you.

Take Billy Harris, coach of Team Canada '74, for example.

His most squirm a bit when someone reminds him that, before the hockey series with the Soviet Union, he told a reporter it would be "the easiest assignment" he had ever had.

He was referring to the fact he had such stars as Bobby Hull, Gordie Howe, Paul Henderson and Pat Stapleton on his team of World Hockey Association players.

But it wasn't an easy assignment on the ice where Canada lost four games, tied three and won only one. Nor was it easy off the ice, what with arguments over officiating, disputed goals, reports that the Moscow hotel rooms of the Canadians were bugged, and even a Soviet threat to quit without finishing the series.

The Canadian Press, in a year-end poll, asked sports writers and broadcasters to jot down some of the more interesting off-beat quotes of 1974. A fair number dealt with the Canada-Russia series.

"This is a historic series," said Harris. "We'll restore Canadian dignity in international hockey. . . . Win or lose, we'll make some friends for Canada. . . . We'll show Europe some players with class and some classy hockey that has nothing to do with swinging sticks and taking cheap shots at the opposition."

Then there was 46-year-old Gordie Howe, saying "I'm too old to be tense," before he proceeded to show the Soviets the sharpest pair of elbows in hockey.

And Howe again, on the suggestion that the hotel rooms were bugged: "The only bugs I've seen were ones crawling around in the shower."

Hockey provided a good share of the quotable quotes.

There was Philadelphia Flyers centre Bobby Clarke saying 69 - year - old Clarence Campbell should retire as president of the National Hockey League because "none of the other big leagues have other old guys as their heads."

Clarke later sent Campbell a letter of apology, explaining that his remarks were made when he was angry and "not meant maliciously." Campbell accepted the apology "in good faith" and said "the incident is closed."

Then was Marshall Johnston, coach of California Seals, recruiting in last place in the Adams Division of the NHL, saying: "It's tough to get up for games against those expansion clubs."

There was Montreal Canadiens centre Henri Richard, frustrated about the way he was being used, declaring: "I DON'T KNOW. I'm incompetent," a reference to coach Scotty Bowman.

And there was Harold Ballard commenting acidly on the timid play of some of his Toronto Maple Leafs: "You could send Inga Hendrickson into the corner with six eggs in his pocket and he wouldn't break one of them."

Canadian football also offered some gems.

Ray Jauch, coach of Edmonton Eskimos, asked about a reported injury to quarterback Tom Wilkinson in the Western playoff: "Tom just pulled some fat in his back."

LIQUID CHARGED

ORLANDO, Fla (AP) — Bernie Ladd, former managing general partner of Florida Blazers of the World Football League, has been arrested on charges of embezzling state tax money. The indictment against Ladd involves failure by the financially troubled team to pay about $40,000 in sales tax, on which Ladd, who had control of the team at a WFL meeting last week, is free on a $5,000 bond.

JOCKEY INJURED

CHERRY HILL, N.J (AP) — Apprentice jockey Craig Readcroft was reported in critical condition Monday after a spill at Garden State Park Raceway suffered internal chest injuries and a fractured right arm when his mount, Old Frankford, struck a rail shortly after the race began. The horse was not injured.

Reds Hard To Beat

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Defenceman Joe Zanussi scored a pair of unassisted goals in the third period Wednesday, the second into an empty net with six seconds remaining as Providence Reds downed Springfield Kings 5-3 in the only American Hockey League game scheduled.

The win extended the Reds' unbeaten home-ice string to 16 games.

Tonight's games have Providence at Nova Scotia against the Voyageurs and Hershey at Binghamton entertaining Virginia Wings.

BOBBY CLARKE
Letter Of Apology

He doesn't have any musicles."

Wilkinson, accepting the award as the Canadian Football League's Player of the Year, took a similar line. Explaining why he appeared in a blue tuxedo, he said: "In a black tuxedo I look like a pregnant penguin."

Johnny Rauch, coach of Toronto Argonauts, became something of a prophet when, after his club had blown a game on an intercepted halfback pass: "This may get me fired but I feel I made a good decision."

Owner Bill Hodgson, frustrated after Argos had lost three games on last-minute errors, got rid of Rauch.

John F. Bassett, whose Toronto Northmen became the Memphis Southmen when the World Football League was forced out of Canada by government threats, had a somewhat less prophetic offering.

"We'll take on the National Football League head to head," he said.

True, the Southmen have three Oakland Raiders—Paul Warfield, Jim Kiick and Larry Csonka—under contract for next year but the WFL is no match for the NFL and there is more doubt that the new league will survive.

And then there was David Losh, owner of Ottawa Rough Riders, after a particularly dull exhibition, by his club: "Even I wouldn't want to watch them play."

Outside of the major sports, perhaps the funniest comment was made by a softball player in Pembroke, Ont., who said during a game he just wasn't getting good wood with the new aluminum bats.

Lot of Action Looms In Political Circles

OTTAWA (CP) — After a year of intense political activity—including a general election—the machinery of government appears to be trending carefully into 1975, keeping one friend eye on inflation and the other on the always — delicate state of federal-provincial relations.

And much of the political action might be outside the halls of Parliament this year. After the dramas of 1974, including the defeat of the minority Liberal government and the subsequent general election, the dramatic aftermath likely will flow over into 1975 in the form of leadership conventions.

While the Liberal government may be preoccupied with prices and intergovernment negotiations, both the Progressive Conservatives and New Democrats—and perhaps the Quebec-based Social Credit party—will be busily preoccupied with leadership contenders and votes.

"It could be a fascinating year," says David MacDonald (Egmont). "There will be a lot of action."

There was also a lot of action in 1974, as the two-year-old minority Liberal government, which had received most of the required voting support from the New Democrats, finally saw that support dissolved May 6 in the wake of a controversial budget.

And after being heavily criticized from within for a lackluster 1972 campaign, Prime Minister Trudeau came out this time pledging his supporters that he would work harder this time around. The supporters were satisfied by this, as the Liberals returned with 141 MPs, compared with the 109 seats they won in 1972. And the Conservatives, with Leader Robert Stanfield apparently fighting his last electoral battle in that position, dropped to 95 from the 107 seats won two years earlier.

The New Democrats, caught in the squeeze between the giants fighting for majority governments, saw their 31 member caucus slimmed down to 16. And, to make matters worse, leader David Lewis was personally whipped in his York South, a Toronto-area riding.

The Social Credit party fell from 15 seats to 11—one below the required number for a recognized political party in Parliament.

If victory was sweet for Mr Trudeau, defeat was crushing for Mr Stanfield who had been expected by many to complete finally his long, patient, turtle-like crawl from Nova Scotia politics to the prime minister's office. But it is generally agreed, his lack of party polish and leadership helped end the climb.

"I won't argue with the decision of the electorate," he said, without bitterness. Then, a short time later, he announced he would not lead the Conservatives into another election and that he would make way for a new leader, perhaps in the fall of 1975.

Meanwhile, Mr Lewis began a new career as a university lecturer while Ed Broadbent (NDP—Ontario-Waterloo) took on the role of parliamentary leader. It will require a national convention either to confirm him or replace him.

After fighting the long election campaign, largely on economic issues, MPs spent a relatively leisurely summer and then reassembled Sept 30 to be told in the Parliamentopening throne speech that Canada continued to face a "serious and urgent" problem of inflation.

The government left little doubt that this was the overriding issue of the day, and two months later Finance Minister John Turner made clear in his budget speech it would be the over-riding issue of 1975. Despite near-unanimous claims by Mr Trudeau that the problem had been "wrestled to the ground," it was clear that the best was still on us.

And the year ended with confusion over the progress of the match Mr Turner's budgetary measure — "We must do all that we can . . . to restrain the growth of government" — still raging in the ears of MPs as they began debating a bill to increase their government expenditures" — was demonstrates.

Meanwhile, if inflation remains the major issue in the country, this increasingly complex field of federal-provincial relations is running a close second so far as government attention is concerned. And at one point during 1974, the jurisdictional battles reached a point where Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed predicted that Confederation "as we know it" will be destroyed.

What happened a long smouldering feud was Mr Turner's budget proposal to withdraw the right of oil companies to deduct royalties paid to a provincial government before calculating federal income tax. But like so many other political Confederation - destroying battles, it was back in the simmering stage in a matter of weeks as Mr Lougheed announced a six-point program to encourage exploration. Until then, it was agreed that many of the exploration companies would have the country.

But the issue is by no means settled. Despite negotiations ile ahead, in the view of federal officials here.

Cemetery For Pets Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — Old pets don't die, they just rest—in a nearby pet cemetery. At least that's where they will reside in the Ottawa area if Michael Sammon's plan for an animal burial ground is successful.

Mr. Sammon, a 23-year-old pet-shop employer, has begun preparation of a pet cemetery in nearby Gloucester, where he hopes to handle 250 to 300 burials a year.

He got the idea from an army buddy who has embarked on a similar enterprise in California. But Mr. Sammon said his rates will be a lot more reasonable—$65 for a cat and $125 for a large dog. The California operation charges up to $500 for its services.

While he hasn't received any customers yet, Mr. Sammon has few doubts about the viability of his business.

"I wouldn't have gone into it, if people were not prepared to pay steep rates to have their pets buried," he said.

Many people are upset when they learn that most dead pets are now buried in a common grave at the city dump or mass-cremated by the Humane Society, he explained.

The service offered by his new undertaking will be a complete one. The departed animals will be wrapped in plastic, to comply with health regulations, and placed on a silk bed lashed a varnished plywood coffin.

But, the service doesn't stop there. The funeral director is prepared to read a passage from the Bible with reverence to animals if the "family" so wishes.

On the other hand, should the family be particularly patriotic Mr. Sammon will supply flags from a variety of nations in a size suitable for coffin-draping.

He said customers will learn of his services from an animal hospital or pet shop and call him when the need arises. Should the death occur during the winter months, Mr. Sammon will pick up the body and store it in one of two freezers he has recently acquired, thawing the burial until requested by the family.

Pets will be buried three feet in the ground and placed in pots 12 to 18 inches apart. This distance should prevent people "from stepping on Fifi's grave while visiting Rover."

Publicity in the cemetery is kept at a minimum. One small hand-lettered sign marks the spot and informs the curious.

It reads simply, "Pet Cemetery Gardens."

Global Inflation Top Story For 1974 Throughout World

By R. J. ANDERSON
The Canadian Press

Repeatedly, Richard M. Nixon denied he was involved in Watergate's cover-up and repeatedly he said he wouldn't quit But he was and he did.

His resignation as president of the United States came Aug. 8 and Vice - President Gerald Ford stepped in. Nixon was the first American president to vacate the White House under such circumstances.

But even the stunning aftermath of Watergate could not for long grip the national consciousness of the United States in the face of runaway inflation and the threat of economic recession. The concern of the American people was shared by Canadians and most of the world.

There seemed to be no end in the rise in prices and as the year's close there were clear indications of resistance by the consuming public. That brought on another problem: the North American economy faltered.

In other areas of world tension, no solution came in 1974 to the Irish problem, the uneasy Middle East seemed always to hover on the brink of open war and hundreds of thousands died of hunger in a world of plenty.

Britain's worst economic crisis since the Second World War led to two elections but no solution. And 83-year-old Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia was toppled from the throne on which he had sat for 44 years.

Famine caused by crop failures and blows of nature struck India, Bangladesh and some other developing countries and Canada, among other countries, extended a helping hand. At year's end, however, it was clear that more help was needed. A world conference in Rome to decide on ways and means on how to go about this achieved little.

Archbishop Makarios was deposed as president of the Mediterranean island of Cyprus by Greek army forces July 15 and fled into exile. That didn't make the situation any easier on the island long torn by strife between Greeks and Turks. Turkey sent its troops in five days later.

CANADIANS DIE

A UN peacekeeping force, of which Canada was a part, endeavored to keep the warring sides apart.

One Canadian soldier was killed Aug. 6 when caught in crossfire between Greek and Turkish antagonists and nine members of the Canadian force were killed Aug 9 when a transport plane was brought down by a Syrian anti-aircraft missile while on a flight from Beirut to Damascus.

Makarios returned to Cyprus Dec. 7 and received a resounding welcome from Greek-Cypriots. He said he never would yield in his opposition to partition of the island.

If any monarch seemed secure it was Ethiopia's Selassie who had reigned since 1903. But his government, was overthrown in a military coup Feb. 27 and he himself was deposed in November. The emperor was forced to agree to turn over his personal fortune, estimated to be more than $1 billion, to the new administration.

Around the world: A national speed limit of 55 miles an hour went into effect in the U.S. Jan. 2 as a fuel-saving measure. It was found to be helpful in curbing traffic death tolls. . . . Fire in a 25-storey Sao Paulo, Brasil, office building killed 227 persons Feb. 1. . . . The crash of a Turkish jumbo jet north of Paris March 3 took 345 lives, more than in any other crash in aviation history. . . .

A gunman who tried to kidnap Princess Anne in London March 20 was arrested after wounding a bodyguard. . . . India exploded an underground nuclear device May 18 and Canada, which had provided equipment and technical knowledge, was sharply critical. . . .

A U.S. Air Force SR-71 reconnaissance jet flew from New York to Londodn Sept. 2 in one hour, 55 minutes. . . . A hurricane that struck Honduras Sept. 20 killed 9,000 persons. . . .

Watergate Orchestra Missing 'Conductor'

WASHINGTON (AP) — At least one defence lawyer at the Watergate cover-up trial is dismayed that the absence of former president Richard Nixon from the courtroom will be in the minds of the jurors when they begin deliberations [illegible] "Ladies and gentlemen, we're missing one person here, the orchestra leader, that's who's missing in this case."

[illegible] scheduled to conclude his summation today. The jurors, sequestered since the trial began Oct. 11, will have Christmas Day with relatives at a local hotel. Deputy U.S. marshals were present during the Christmas party and traditional dinner to assure that the trial was not discussed.

Before adjourning Monday, District Judge John Sirica and prosecutor James Neal said they wanted to know how far Fraties intended to carry his orchestra leader analogy.

Lawyers for former assistant attorney-general Robert Mardian and Kenneth Parkinson, one-time lawyer for Nixon's re-election committee, will follow Fraties in presenting argument to the jury. The prosecutors then will present a rebuttal argument.

The jury already has heard summations from Neal and lawyers for former attorney-general John N. Mitchell and former White House aide H. R. Haldeman.

The case appeared likely to go to the jury Friday or Saturday.

Throughout the 13-week trial, the absence of Nixon as either defendant or witness has been raised during the absence of the jury.

Nixon had been subpoenaed as a witness by Ehrlichman and the prosecution. Sirica order[illegible] a panel of three doctors to examine the former president [illegible] report their[illegible] recommendations about when Nixon's health would allow him to be questioned. When the doctors said Nixon could not be questioned before Jan. 6, Sirica ordered that the trial continue without him.

Jurors Joined for Turkey Banquet

WASHINGTON (AP) — While [illegible] a typical family Christmas [illegible] afternoon.

Webb said 11 members of the Watergate panel, which consists of 12 regular jurors and five alternates, took part in the dinner with 21 guests and 21 deputy U.S. marshals.

The marshals were on hand to make sure there were no conversations about the trial [illegible] the jury has been kept sep[illegible] ...ered since Oct. 11.

Webb said the other six jurors and alternates chose to have their Christmas dinner privately, dining on the same turkey meal.

The panel's two-day Christmas recess ends today when defence lawyer William Fraties resumes closing arguments on behalf of one-time White House domestic adviser John Ehrlichman.

Lone-hand Luke of Foreign Policy Found Heat Catching up with Glory

WASHINGTON (CP) — Henry Kissinger, the lone-hand Luke of United States foreign policy, is facing a new year with an old vow to share the glory and the heat that goes with being secretary of state.

As he did a year ago, Kissinger is calling for an Administration-led foreign policy. His there are indications that members of his own department and critics on Capitol Hill have adopted a "show-me" attitude.

For the 38th secretary of state, 1974 was the year the miracles faded and the bear caught up with the glory.

As the year opened, he stepped into the public spotlight of U.S. affairs at a time when the country desperately needed a figure untouched by Watergate and the guilt and scandals which had brought down a vice-president.

And almost in sight of the White House work crews painted out the spray-can sentiment... "Killer Kissinger," from a bridge abutment.

As New York Times put it:

"Kissinger ... once seemed able ... to rival King Canute and command the tides of history. His latest appearance ... is more that of the desperate Dutch boy bobbing back the flood."

Under Richard Nixon, Kissinger had the support of a president well versed in international affairs—backing and guidance that may be less strong under Gerald Ford.

Critics who had not been inclined to take on the presidential pet gave vent to their pent-up frustration as Nixon came increasingly under fire.

The first open indication of Kissinger vulnerability came in Salzburg where, unexpectedly, the secretary of state threatened to resign unless given a clean bill of health by the Senate in regard to rumor-recited charges that he had been involved in the bugging of telephones of reporters and his own staff.

He got the absolution, but there was a widespread reaction in the press to the effect that nobody—including the secretary—was indispensable.

The flashpoint came when Kissinger attempted to circumvent the laws calling for a severing of aid to any country—in this case Turkey in her incursion into Cyprus—that used U.S. weapons for any purpose other than defence.

The issue led to Greece pulling her military forces out of the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance.

Senator Thomas Eagleton (Dem. Mo.) summed up Senate anger:

"Our distinguished secretary of state is famous for his ults. He ults toward the Soviets in Vietnam. His most famous ult was his pro-Pakistan ult. His current ult, his pro-Turkey ult, is no wiser than the others."

Kissinger's successes in opening relations with China, parrying detente with the Soviet Union and championing the cause of nuclear arms control had muted dissent under Nixon.

There were suggestions, however, that his preoccupation with headline and crisis areas, he was neglecting important—if less critical—areas, none more than Canada.

There had been talk of a Kissinger trip to Ottawa for bilateral talks ever since he took office, but the only visit he made to Canada, however, was a flying trip to Ottawa for a NATO meeting. Bilateral issues were not raised.

Still, his success in negotiating the Arab-Israeli disengagement during 34 days on no-stop shuttle diplomacy throughout the Middle East was regarded as a brilliant coup.

But even that dimmed with time. Kissinger had gained assurances that Sadat and other Arab leaders would try to rally support for interim agreements with Israel at the Arab summit meetings. The proposal foundered on the [illegible] question.

Dayar, a Tel Aviv newspaper which supports the government, commented:

"It is doubtful whether the secretary of state will succeed in regaining his lost image of miracle-worker."

Late in 1974, Kissinger—who lugged a staggering 250,000 miles of travel behind him in little more than a year—went back to the Soviet Union for a new round of strategic arms limitation talks.

Whatever success was attached was viewed by critics back home as a partisan political ploy.

The same critics had muttered earlier that Kissinger's travels in Peking and Moscow and his Vietnam peace negotiations had been moves to help Richard Nixon.

This time, the critics were more outspoken and Kissinger appeared more vulnerable. Some claimed that the Vladivostok accord should be viewed as a Kremlin-White House understanding to promote President Ford at the expense of Senator Henry Jackson.

The Democrat from Washington state, a man with presidential aspirations, is regarded by the Soviets as one of the foremost hard-liners as far as Russian aspirations are concerned.

Kissinger, as Nixon's close adviser, had been a chief architect of U.S. foreign policy for 6½ years before becoming secretary of state. He succeeded William Rogers, who resigned from a department shorn of prestige and authority—a situation artfully but small measure from White House manipulation of the power.

Kissinger ruled with an iron hand in a department which had lost a core of disillusioned professionals under Rogers. The department continued to lose good men under the more demanding Kissinger; others were shifted to make way for his appointees.

One of these was former undersecretary William Porter, made ambassador to Canada to make way for Middle East expert Joseph Sisco.

"The secretary—possibly in share some of the growing heat and possibly to restore harmony within his department—hinted of better things to come as 1974 drew to a close.

"We cannot base foreign policy on star performers," he told a meeting of foreign service officers.

In the rumbling monotone that has been the voice of U.S. policy from Peking to the gates of Damascus, Kissinger said:

"We cannot rely that somebody will come along every few years to manipulate events."

Sets World Record

LONDON (AP) — A 24-year-old organist claims he has set a world record by playing a church organ for 80 hours, 25 minutes non-stop. Vyan Cressy said he played every note in the Church of England hymn book, beating the previous record set in London in April by 30 minutes. The old record was set by Paul Derrett at St. Andrew's Church, says the Guinness Book of Records.

Retired Coal Miner Posts 'Jesus Saves' Signs All Over

MIDDLESBORO, Ky. (AP) — Along the highways and back roads are thousands of crosses and signs proclaiming "Get Right With God" and "Jesus Saves."

It's the lifetime work of one man — a retired coal miner from western Kentucky, whose signs stand in all 50 states and 25 foreign nations and provinces.

"People tell me they think it's a company that does it or somebody hired to put up them signs," said H. Harrison Mayes, an oddball man who's been spreading the Lord's word for more than 35 years.

As a young man Mayes was severely injured in a rock fall in the mine. Doctors said he would die but Mayes believes the Lord saved him, so "I figured I would devote the rest of my life to warning others to follow his word."

Mayes erects most of his signs along interstate highways because "it's where the masses travel."

He knows the laws limiting advertising on highways, but doesn't always abide by the rules and regulations. "It's all that Mayes doesn't belong to a church or a religious denomination A larger obstacle is that he doesn't pay to erect his signs.

"One guy told me to take my sign down—that he could get $200 for a sign like that on his property," Mayes said.

The design and size of the signs has changed over the years.

In 1917 Mayes began painting messages on the rocks in the mountains near his home. Later he began making small wooden signs, then started producing crosses made of concrete poured into wooden molds that he built himself.

Each cross weighs about 1,400 pounds.

Mayes has since turned to the construction of aluminum signs on wooden frames, which are durable but much lighter.

Mayes manufactures about 180 signs a year in a workshop at the rear of his house, which is built in the shape of a cross.

The door of his cluttered office, where he keeps files on all the signs he has erected, is marked "Heh Nah's Theological Seminary."

When the signs are ready Mayes hires a truck and driver and begins a cross-country trek to place the signs.

Mayes' wife, Lillie, is responsible for another side of the operation—messages in whisky bottles dropped into the sea. The half-inch contain cards printed in 16 languages, including Chinese, advising the finder to "repent to God. Meet God."

The bottles are mailed to friends and postmasters who put them in rivers or the ocean.

Army Isle Welcomes Tourists

SINGAPORE, (Reuter) — "Welcome to our happy island, we wish you joy on it." says the pretty Chinese girl accompanying you on the rickety old boat going to Sentosa.

For her the lush island of Sentosa, off Singapore's southern coast, is home but for the tourist it is Singapore's latest and prospectively greatest tourist attraction, nearly three square miles of woodland, golf courses, lagoons, amusements and planned hotels.

Authorities view the island—whose new and symbolic name is the Malay word for tranquility—as a key to Singapore's development as a residential tourist centre.

Officials are concerned that while more than one million people come to Singapore last year, the average length of stay was only three days.

The result has been the Sentosa Development Corp., charged with transforming the island into a tourist centre rivalling any in the world.

The corporation benefits from the long occupation of the British army, which had a garrison on the island when Singapore was still a major British base.

Only minor structural modifications are needed for the buildings, the long and cool colonnades, immaculate lawns, sea views and commonsense rooms once familiar to British soldiers.

Inside, the plumbing, wiring and cooking facilities are being drastically overhauled. At least one of the eight planned hotels is to be in the super-luxury class.

The homesickable officers' houses and army offices which dot the island are being transformed into chalets, while other chalets and beach huts are being built from scratch.

The first hotel is expected to be completed by 1976. Meanwhile the island has already completed many tourist facilities.

Top attraction is undoubtedly the cable car linking the island with the top of Mount Faber, a 345-foot hill on the Singapore mainland. The cable car passes directly over the entrance to Singapore harbor and gives an unrivalled view of the new Singapore skyline, with its soaring skyscrapers, hotel towers and model-styled public housing.

For the wealthy, there is the Sentosa Golf Club (annual membership fee $4,370) Reputed to be one of the finest clubs in Southeast Asia, it has a 18-hole championship course bounded on one side by the sea and on the other by a wooded hill.

At the eastern tip of the island is the Carsalorium, a unique assembly of coral marine life, with intricate patterns of shells and coral worked into colored maps of Singapore.

If Sentosa embodies the island's hoped-for tranquil future, then its former name, Pulau Blakang Mati, recalls more sombre days.

The name can be translated as "island beyond the dead." While this is usually interpreted as being merely an undeveloped island, it gained a sinister new connotation with the discovery of 15 skeletons along a beach on the Causeway-mainlander this year.

The skeletons showed some signs of violent death, but where they came from is not known. The most common belief is that they may have been illegal Indonesian immigrants slain on or before their landing on Sentosa. The fate of the present small Malay fishing village and Chinese commercial communities on Sentosa is in doubt. Originally they were to be developed as part of the program but the plans appear to have been dropped.

While only a few hundred people are involved, it is, after all, their home and way of life that will be at stake when the overseas tourist invasion really gets under way.

Wave Motion of Sea Might Supply Energy

EDDINBURGH (CP) — A team of Scottish scientists is investigating the possibility of obtaining virtually unlimited supplies of energy from the wave motion of the sea.

The team, led by Dr. Stephen Salter of Edinburgh University, has been studying the problem of extracting energy from the movement of waves across the upper depths. The approaches to the British Isles, especially the western approaches to the Hebrides, appear to be particularly suitable.

The government's central policy review staff has launched a feasibility study on the project by the National Engineering Laboratory at East Kilbride, Scotland.

Seeking a structure that would convert the random forces of waves into direct ones and would stand up to the worst sea conditions, the Salter team developed a special form of vane, shaped rather like a cam on the camshaft of a car engine.

Experiments in a wave tank showed that wave-rotated cams extract power with an efficiency of more than 90 per cent. Most of the cam would be submerged to absorb maximum energy.

The team proposed that a power station would have a string of about 40 cams attached to a backbone cylinder. Rotation of the cams would pump pulses of water through to a turbine, turning the energy into electricity.

There are also prospects of storing the generated power. This could be done by using it for electrolysis—extracting hydrogen from sea water and pumping it into tanks—the oxygen being released.

A sea-going power station would be a concrete and steel structure, perhaps 3,000 feet long. It would require stabilization tanks and ballast. Such a structure would be too big to be towed about by the sea. But it can drift slowly with the prevailing currents.

The station might be towed out to sea, turned broadside on to the waves at the most suitable location and start generating power. It would slowly drift back and eventually discharge its hydrogen load on shore.

Ten such stations could generate about 500 megawatts—the sort of power that would be a commercial proposition in modern grid networks. They would produce power on a larger scale than solar energy schemes at present envisaged, and would be better arranged for countries where the sun's radiation is not high all year round. They would be at their most productive in the winter when power requirements are at their peak.

Bethlehem Fears Israelis Planning to Annex Town

BETHLEHEM, Israeli - Occupied Jordan (AP) — Buses roll into Manger Square and discharge tourists just a few steps from where tradition says Christ was born.

Hawkers hustle postcards, chewing gum and olive-wood crucifixes while the Church of the Nativity towers nearby.

But beyond the tourists' Bethlehem is the above, single and municipal offices—political currents have been awakened.

The Israeli defence minister, Shimon Peres, has paid a call on Bethlehem's elders and told them: "Bethlehem is an inseparable part of Jerusalem."

Israel annexed the Jordanian-controlled Arab section of Jerusalem in the 1967 Middle East war and unilaterally made all of the once-divided city part of Israel.

Peres' remarks about Bethlehem came at a time when the face to the Little Town's notables such as Mayor Elias Freij. For months, the mayor has been expounding the view that Bethlehem is Palestinian and that its political future can be settled only when Israel withdraws from the town it captured in 1967.

The notables see only one meaning in Peres' statement: Since Jerusalem already has been made part of Israel, the Israelis must be planning to annex Bethlehem as well.

Bethlehem is only five miles and a few olive groves south of Jerusalem.

"Bethlehem is not a part of Israel, never has been be," says Freij. "We refuse any foreign domination whatsoever."

Peres' statement is the first important pronouncement by an Israeli leader on Bethlehem's future in several years.

Israeli policy-makers have been busy negotiating with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for apeace with Egypt and Syria. Contacts with Jordan, Bethlehem's ruler until 1967, have dealt only with arrangements along the Jordan River, far from the hilltop town.

Bethlehem, the home of 32,000 Jordanians, is not yet up for political grabs.

Withdrawal from Bethlehem, say some Israeli military men, would bring Jordanians and Arab guerrilla guns too close to Jerusalem. Others argue that in the age of missiles and super-bombers, geography is a minor factor.

Aside from the political future Bethlehem has painful internal problems.

The municipal budget is just over $700,000 a year, hardly enough to cover inflation costs, and Freij, sees no way of streamlining the antiquated tax-collecting system.

Tourists bring revenue to the souvenir shops but none of it reaches municipal coffers. The Israeli occupation brings the town a small allowance and Freij can borrow from Jordanian banks.

He just took a $170 000 loan from Jordan to build a civil centre in Manger Square. The centre is a first step in an ambitious plan to convert the square from its present status as a parking lot to a Roman-style plaza with a garden and fountains.

The project would cost millions. The mayor has established the Bethlehem Foundation, a tax-exempt organization registered in the United States, to finance development. The board of governors includes American politicians and artists.

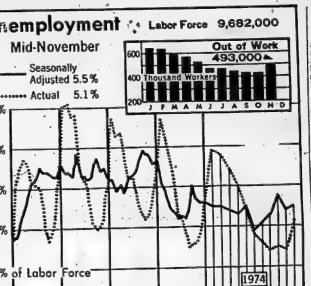
Meanwhile, the Christians and Moslems of the town adopt to Western styles. Young Arabs grow shoulder-length hair. Miniskirted women sit in Manger Square's coffee shops or go about in European cars on shopping sprees to Jerusalem or seven Tel Aviv.

Thousands of Bethlehemites work in Jerusalem for Israeli wages but inflation has driven the cost of gasoline to $1.53 a gallon.

Pinball machines recently came to Bethlehem, to the horror of the older citizens. Freij had all 78 machines carted away. "I sent them to hell where they belong," he says.

Freij, a 52-year-old Christian, complains that his co-religionists abroad neglect Bethlehem.

"I'm sorry to say that Bethlehem is remembered only once a year, on Christmas Eve.



"Christmas-card companies use our name. On Christmas suddenly everyone says Bethlehem. We are not a registered trade mark, so we can't charge for it, but we expect a little more consideration."

Proud Of Consumption

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — Tahitians boast of being the biggest beer drinkers per capita on earth. Brewing is the largest industry in the islands after tourism. Two breweries operate around the clock to quench the thirsts of the Pacific island population of only 120,000.

Unemployment Rises

Unemployment in Canada rose once more in November, primarily because of a drop in full-time employment of women, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday. The November rate was 5.5 per cent on a seasonally adjusted rate compared to 5.4 per cent in October. The actual unemployment figure — not counting those with seasonal jobs — was 493,000 or 5.1 per cent of the 9,682,000 in the labor force. (CP Newsmap)

Cautious Mayor

MANCHESTER, England (CP) — Story from a Lancashire newspaper: "After inspecting the new bridge, which has been completed three weeks ahead of schedule, the mayor crossed the river by boat to meet representatives of the work force."

Art Galleries Meet Big Vancouver Demand

VANCOUVER (CP) — Spurred by buyers who look on art as a hedge against inflation, a 16-block area of Granville bridge is fast becoming the main gallery centre of Greater Vancouver.

Since 1969 at least a dozen galleries have located in the pocket and business is booming.

Terbin Christensen, owner-manager of the Art Emporium, expects his gallery to gross $5 million this year — $1 million more than last. His problem is finding sufficient stocks of good pictures to meet growing demand.

The Galerie Royale, opened only recently, is faring equally well. Manager Bill John says half a dozen paintings sold from one exhibition included works costing $5,000.

Prices promise to continue climbing Mr. Christiansen says French art will jump 25 to 30 per cent. Accelerating the boost are indications that Arab state rulers are beginning to invest some of their oil riches in the Western world's art.

The variety of work is as large as the quantity is small. Both the Emporium and the Royale have online original Canadian pieces including an Emily Carr and Kriephoff.

Aside from these and its 20th century French collection, the Emporium has branched into lithographs and etchings while the exhibition at the Royale displays works painted on aborbite with finger and cloth.

Black Play Premiers

NEW YORK (AP) — Can you imagine Superfly feeling at home in the Land of Oz?

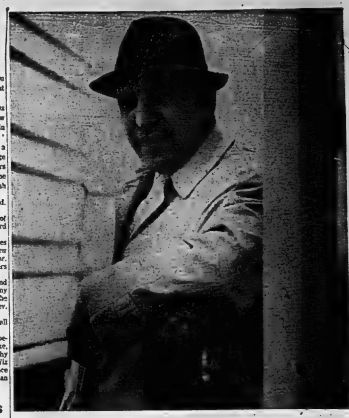
He just might if he visited Oz as it is visualized in a new Broadway musical opening in New York City next month.

The Tin Woodsman wears a breastplate made of a garbage can. The Cowardly Lion wears his mane Afro-style. And the Straw Man sports a very dudish cap.

Even the title is streamlined. Simply, The Wiz.

It's a hip, all-Black version of the venerable tale, The Wizard of Oz.

Most of the traditional scenes are still there, but with a new twist and with a Black favor. It's appreciate, the producers say, for all ages.



Oz is still emerald green and the munchkins are still tiny people. But the Wizard, er, The Wiz, is a cross between Rev. Ike and Little Richard.

The songs and lyrics are all new, but they are rock.

The dialogue has an especially urban flavor. Like, "groovy, man," when Dorothy is told at the gate that the Wiz no longer lives here, the place has been turned over to urban renewal.

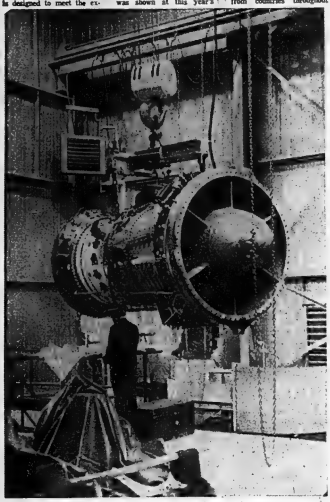
Heading the new CBC-TV series, Science Magazine is eminent geneticist Dr. David Suzuki. The eight-program series, which debuts Monday, January 13 at 10:00 p.m., will give viewers information on the world of science and technology which control our lives.

Rogers Ends Show



PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — It happens to all television shows sooner or later, Mister Rogers' Neighborhood is going out of production next summer.

Fred Rogers, the low-key, soft-spoken host who has enthralled an estimated seven million to 10 million pre-schoolers with simple lessons about themselves for the last eight years, plans to begin making television specials for adults as well as children.

After the last new episode is taped next June at WQED, Pittsburgh's public television station, Rogers plans to re-edit the 500 individual shows into what he calls library form.

The 300 shows will provide enough material for daily airing for about two years.

After he leaves the Neighborhood, Rogers plans to address the concerns of older viewers directly. "I'd like to do some very serious things. I'd like to address the problems of adoption, divorce, death."

Pipeline Jet Engine

An aircraft-type jet engine which normally powers the newest wide-body planes, is shown being installed at the Trans Canada Pipelines compressor station at Burstall, Sask. The engine which produces 28,000 horsepower, will help move natural gas through the pipeline system and increase operating efficiency. (CP Photo)

Says No To 'Knievel'

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — An entertainer who uses a motorcycle in her dance act can't bill herself as Eva Knievel, a judge ruled. Circuit Judge Sam Goodfriend denied Cynthia Anne Morgan's petition to change her name to resemble that of motorcycle daredevil Evel Knievel. The woman said not prove the change "would not in any way invade the good will of others," the judge ruled.

Your Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

Aries March 21-April 19 You'll say some things today in front of others you'll wish you could retract, unless you think carefully before criticizing anyone.

Taurus April 20-May 20 Be sure you're not just kidding yourself regarding something you've convinced is a bargain while you're out shopping.

Gemini May 21-June 20 If you stick your nose in someone else's business where it doesn't belong, it will cost you something out of your own pocket.

Cancer June 21-July 22 You're much too sensitive now regarding the real or imagined slights by another. You're likely to withdraw and cause a cold war.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22 Be selective who you tell your new plans to at this time. One of your friends has a way of putting a damper on your enthusiasm.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22 You're drifting slightly of course from the goal you've set for your self. Your aims are too scattered to be effective.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 22- Use your judgment now to fashion and how much real support you have for your plans. If it's not enough, wait until you have it.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Be careful in any type of commercial dealing you have, because you're not quite as sharp as you think you are.

Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Realism is important in your decisions today. Be especially cognizant of what it means to you in a material way.

Capricorn Dec. 22 - Jan. 19 You're better off working on your own than to team up with one who grumbles about swapping she is asked to do.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19 You're going to find several good reasons to shove aside responsibilities you should attend to right now.

Pisces Feb. 20-March 20 If you're entertaining at home this evening you will find it necessary to drop a few hints to your guest about the lateness of the hour.

DEMIGRANTS HIGHER

VIENNA (AP) — Austria, traditionally a first haven for emigrants from East Europe, had 1,576 persons seek asylum in 1972, most from Hungary, Austrian officials report. This was a five-per-cent increase over 1972.

Moog Synthesizer Seen Key In Psychology of Sound Study

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A Memorial University scientist has been looking at a "sound" approach to psychology. And he thinks he has found it with the use of a Moog synthesizer.

Dr. Mike Zagorski said the electronic musical instrument offers insight into the process by which men translate perception into action.

"Since the time of Plato, science and music have enjoyed a naturally beneficial relationship, new music and new instruments creating new problems for science and technology; science and technology creating new theories of music," Dr. Zagorski said.

Sound Approach

Dr. Mike Zagorski (centre), of Memorial University's Psychology Department, strikes note on Moog synthesizer that might tell him more about the relationship between mind and sound. Dr. Zagorski says the electronic musical instrument offers insight into the process by which men translate perception into action. He is shown surrounded by a group of his students. (CP Photo)

The advent of the electronic age spawned first electrical sound recording and amplification, fully electronic instruments and now even computer-assisted composing and performing. "It suggests that entirely new modes of human hearing are being explored."

The most widely-known of these sound-generating and sound-modifying systems was the Moog synthesizer, developed by American engineer Robert Moog.

The Moog synthesizer has manual controls, including a keyboard, ribbon, "two-dimensional joystick" and foot pedals. Dr. Zagorski has made the synthesizer read computer printouts as well.

"Only a small percentage of sounds simulate traditional musical instruments. The effect of much of the sound varies, from sounds which are vaguely familiar to out-of-this-world sounds to which the listener is unable to relate anything he has ever heard."

Dr. Zagorski said that it became apparent some time ago that the psychology department needed a sound lab for teaching and auditory research. The Moog synthesizer provided the ideal facility.

"The basic synthesizer costs about $6,000, far less than the sound lab would have cost, and has certainly been the most economical way of getting at this kind of equipment. It is much more versatile than other apparati would be—its mobility allows us to take it to classrooms.

"In addition, we find we can use it to generate visual patterns and in visual research. We've had very little trouble with it—it's almost idiot-proof."

Dr. Zagorski said that to the best of his knowledge this is the first place in North America where the Moog has been used for this kind of work."

"Students have been using the synthesizer for lab projects that have significantly improved understanding of how men perceive auditory and visual patterns."

Dr. Zagorski said the Moog can be used to produce pulsed and moving visual patterns by feeding the appropriate signals into TV monitors or oscilloscopes.

"This way we can benefit by comparing auditory and visual information processing."

The study of sound-mind relationships began during the Second World War when sonar operators had to listen for sonar echoes in a noisy background or look for blips on a snowy screen. It was discovered that certain kinds of noise interfere with other sounds.

Experiments showed that people tune themselves into certain specific kinds of sound, attending on a pitch and shutting other sounds out. If the pitch is changed, the person will stop hearing the sound, although it is one that would be heard if he were tuned to it.

One experiment that Dr. Zagorski and his students have been conducting requires a subject to pick hidden sounds or visual figures from bursts of noise or snowy patches.

Typically, the subject starts the task by saying the equipment is not working. He hears no sound or sees no figure. When he is told to guess, the subject does much better than one would expect, scoring perhaps 97 per cent correct.

Dr. Zagorski said that the experiment shows that the subject can process information of which he or she claims to have no knowledge.

"Recent psychological research into vision and hearing shows tat we process a lot of information subconsciously. We find that our subjects, after three weeks of listening for two hours each day, say they now can "hear" the sounds, but their original score remains the same."

A possible application of the research is transforming sound signals into vibration-patterns on the skin of deaf persons. Dr. Zagorski said that with a better understanding of the structure of acoustic perception, a way to transform these patterns into an understandable language may be developed.

Dr. Zagorski and student Jim Hanley have investigated the possibility of giving airline pilots various sounds to indicate altitude, direction, etc., so as to leave the pilot's eyes free to make visual contact with the ground.

"This is a case of a complex, rapidly-evolving decision environment in which an erroneous decision would be costly."

Other areas being into the research are business and consumer decision-making. "Understanding how people make decisions in the face of a Moog can help us understand how people make decisions generally."

Arabs Interested In Purchasing Pan Am

NEW YORK (CP) — A spokesman for Pan American World Airways said Wednesday he could neither confirm nor deny a report that Iran is negotiating for the purchase of a majority interest in the financially troubled airline.

But the spokesman said of the report in The French financial weekly La Vie Francaise: "It seems to be speculation. If there were any talks, they were just exploratory."

He said he could neither confirm nor deny that negotiations were going on, because the company has recently been holding discussions with several groups regarding its future.

Some, but not all, of these talks have been made public, he noted.

Pan Am revealed recently that it was holding exploratory merger talks with two American airlines.

The spokesman said United States laws regulate the amount of stock a foreign government can hold in an American company.

Hussein Only Backer

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Jim Taylor of Brampton says that he has received a letter saying that King Hussein of Jordan will send him a cheque for $1 and to help him in his attempt to reach the North Pole on a motorcycle.

Mr. Taylor, 39, said Tuesday he wrote to the heads of various countries, asking for a donation and permission to carry their flag with him on the 500-to one-mile trip he plans from Ellesmere Island to the North Pole in March. A letter he wrote to Canada's secretary of state was referred to the department of Indian and northern affairs which said it had no money to give, he said.

Mr. Taylor said the letter was signed by Marwan S. Kasin, secretary-general of the Royal Hashemite Court, and said King Hussein will send the cheque soon.

Pringle Stands by Jail Sentence

HAMILTON (CP) — A judge who sentenced a Hamilton man to three years' imprisonment for breaking, entering and theft, said it would be a mockery of the law if the man were not put behind bars.

Gordon Van Dusen was found guilty last week along with co-defendant Diana Phyllis Tinmore, 20, of Hamilton of breaking into a school and stealing office equipment.

Mrs. Tinmore was given a suspended sentence Monday and placed on probation.

Judge John Pringle, who passed sentence on Van Dusen, pointed out that the man was 26 years old for manslaughter at the time of the school break-in, and he rejected a request by the defence lawyer that the defendant not be sent to prison.

"There may be some thing wrong with the prisons of this country but they serve one useful purpose," said the judge. "They protect the public from predatory criminals who look the life you have chosen for yourself."

Defence lawyer Morris Percoak said Van Dusen had rehabilitated himself after being sentenced in 1968 to 18 years for the beating death of a St. Catharines man after a drinking party.

DISCOVERED IN 1800

Coal gas was discovered in 1800 but was first utilized for street lighting in London in 1807.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN, CONSUMER ADVISOR

CONSUMER RESOLUTIONS FOR 1975

With Christmas celebrations behind us, and a bright New Year ahead, these resolutions can help us not only maximize satisfaction — but stretch our budget and family health as well. Please do make and keep them!

I resolve to use products on hand, weekly food ads and Canada's Food Guide when planning my meals and shopping list.

I resolve to take my time into account when considering value of convenience foods.

I resolve to encourage my family to watch the snaps that their appetites are taking, I will not serve over-sized portions.

I resolve to try at least one money-saving private label brand product per shopping trip.

I resolve to read labels — and to use Unit Value Pricing to help me compare cost per unit of different brands, grades, sizes and kinds of foods and household products.

I resolve to become a conscientious consumer by reading, asking questions, investigating material in Miracle Food Mart's Consumer Corners — and familiarizing myself with Miracle Food Mart's Consumer Bill of Rights.

And do resolve to have a wonderful 1975!

Twin Plagues Face Darwin Survivors

DARWIN, Australia (AP) — Relief officials warned today that "hundreds of lives" might still be lost in cholera or tetanus epidemics in the wake of the cyclone that devastated Darwin.

Forty-five persons were known to have died in the four-hour storm that roared out of the Timor Sea before dawn on Christmas Day. A police spokesman said he did not expect this figure to increase much but another official said the possibility of a cholera or tetanus outbreak was a grave problem.

Emergency inoculation centres were set up in Australia's chief northern city.

Water contaminated by ruptured sewage lines was the chief immediate threat. Thousands sought rain water in pots and pans or crowded into toilet buildings for emergency rations from the small stocks brought in by relief planes.

Medical authorities warned that all water must be boiled before being drunk.

Latrine trenches were dug.

Tetanus was feared because many of the city's 40,000 people were cut by flying glass and debris as Cyclone Tracy's 120-mile winds tore their homes apart.

Most houses in the city and rural areas immediately around it were wrecked. An emergency centre official said at least 20,000 persons—more than double the previous estimate—would have to be moved to other cities until Darwin was rebuilt. But a police spokesman said makeshift temporary accommodations were adequate for the moment, and there was no panic.

Officials estimated the damage at more than $130 million but said it was probably much higher.

Reports of looting were received by the police, and they were issued shotguns during daylight hours for the first time. The police also began issuing shotguns to selected civilians for protection against looters.

An armada of military and civilian planes shuttled in and out of the battered airport, bringing relief supplies and workers and taking away evacuees. The injured and the women and children went first.

The centre spokesman said he hoped to have 3,500 gone by tonight. Several hundred seriously injured were flown out Thursday.

The homeless are being taken to cities all around the continent, and being temporarily housed in private homes, government hostels, naval barracks and hospitals.

Racetracks and fair grounds are also earmarked for refugee camps.

Two giant C141 transports from the United States Air Force were scheduled to join the airlift today. Officials in Washington said they would bring water purification equipment.

Press in Vital Battle

ZURICH (Reuter) — The press is fighting its last battle for freedom and even for survival, the International Press Institute IPI said today. Kuwait To Guard U.K. U.S.

KUWAIT (AP) — Kuwait's oil minister says this oil-rich Persian Gulf sheikdom will never reduce oil production to the detriment of harming Britain or the United States, because that is where it keeps its money.

Gold Rush Continues

LONDON (AP) — The European gold rush resumed today as the London market price was set at a record high of $191.50 an ounce.

The five London bullion dealers fixed the price for morning trading at the record figure, continuing a trend that began last Monday in anticipation of a buying spree Dec. 31, when the U.S. government lifts its 41-year-old ban on the purchase of gold by Americans.

The market closed Tuesday for Christmas at $187.25.

Beer up 40 Cents Liquor 50 Cents

TORONTO (CP) — An increase in the price of liquor, wine and beer was announced today by the Ontario Liquor Control Board. The increase is effective Jan. 6.

The board said the basic increases will be 10 cents on a 25-ounce bottle of liquor, 40 cents on a 26-bottle case of beer and 20 cents on a 26-ounce bottle of wine.

Beer, now selling for $5.80 for a 26-bottle case, is being increased to $6.20. Cost of imported beer remains unchanged.

A 25-ounce bottle of Canadian whisky, now selling for $5.95, is being increased to $6.40. Other spirits, in all price ranges, are being raised similar increases.

All 26-ounce bottles of wine, imported and Canadian, are being increased 20 cents. The increase will be slightly higher for larger bottles of wine.

The board said the price changes are necessary as a result of increased excise taxes announced in the last federal budget and which went into effect Nov. 18. Since that date, the increased taxes have been absorbed by the board.

The board added, however, that the new, higher prices will provide additional revenue to Ontario wineries and Canadian breweries which requested higher prices to help offset increasing costs.

Skating Free-for-all

Dozens of Belleville residents, mostly youngsters, took advantage of the two-hour period of free Boxing Day skating sponsored by the Kinsmen Club Thursday afternoon, for some holiday recreation. There were beginners, some slipping, some sliding and on occasion, some falling, who practiced their strides, and there were the "old hands", breezing around the Memorial Arena for relaxation, dodging the occasional falling beginner.

Cancer Found Week Ago Kills Comic Jack Benny

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Jack Benny, the master-believer miser whose deadpan humor broke up audiences from vaudeville days into the age of television, is dead of cancer of the pancreas. He was 80.

His wife of 42 years was at his bedside when he died at his home late Thursday night.

Benny's long-time manager, Irving Fein, said the comedian had been kept under heavy medication because of severe pain. Dr. Rex Kennamer, Benny's personal physician, described the cancer as inoperable, Fein said.

Stomach pains troubled Benny recently and discomfort forced him to cut short his last public appearance earlier this month. But Fein did not disclose the cancer until it showed up on x-rays last Friday, Fein said.

The manager said exploratory surgery was vetoed by doctors because of the entertainer's age.

In addition to Benny's wife, other family members were present when he died. Mrs. Benny, the former Sadie Marks, is popularly known as Mary Livingstone, the name she took when she joined Benny on stage. The couple adopted one daughter, Joan.

Visitors to Benny's bedside up his last day included California Gov. Ronald Reagan, entertainer Frank Sinatra, comedians Bob Hope and Danny Kaye, and Benny's friend of 50 years, comedian George Burns.

Benny was flown to Los Angeles for tests at Cedars of Lebanon hospital after suffering pains before a Dallas benefit Oct. 19. But doctors pronounced him in good health and he was discharged five days later. He attended to have a television special and take a guest role in a film.

His most recent public appearance was Dec. 8 to accept an award from the Hollywood Women's Press Club.

Benny's career began more than 60 years ago in vaudeville. Decades on radio, television and in motion pictures made him one of the most beloved comics, and he maintained a schedule of personal appearances until recently. But his television appearances of late were kept to occasional guest roles and an infrequent special.

Benny's humor as a fun-budget was built with a cast that included his wife, black comedian Eddie (Rochester) Anderson and singer Dennis Day.

His tightwad image fostered a classic scenario—Benny beaded by a bandit's demand for "Your money or your life." His anguished reply: "I'm thinking!" I'm thinking!"

But in real life Benny was generous and shy.

Although writers like to make me out a very complex, screwed up guy . . . I'm a simple guy, a grateful guy . . . a 14-hour clown . . . and a laugh machine . . . from a tight wad," he once remarked.

He called himself "surprisingly normal," noting he had remained with his only wife for 47 years and had never visited a psychiatrist.

On stage, Benny became the nation's leading booster of his home town, Waukegan, Ill., where he was born Benny Kubelsky, Feb. 14, 1894. He was the son of Orthodox Jewish immigrants from Russia who owned a saloon.

Piercing off-tune squeaks from his violin became one of Benny's radio and television fixtures. But serious performances on the instrument provided his first source of income. He quit school in the ninth grade to take an $8-a-week job playing in the pit of a local theatre.

Several years ago his home town named the Jack Benny junior high school in his honor.

He hit the road in 1911 in a touring act billed as "Salisbury and Benny—Fresh Grass! Opera to Ragtime." He once said that girls began paying attention to him then and "that, I guess, is what hooked me for show business."

He made his first stab at radio comedy serving in the navy in 1918. He played Izzy There, the admiral's "chief orderly."

"Everybody else was humming it up, so I guess my (flat-footed) delivery sounded funny by contrast," Benny reminisced.

His vaudeville career blossomed in the 1920s. Later he turned to radio, stage and television.

Columnist Says Army Wanted to Use A-bomb

WASHINGTON (AP) — High U.S. military officials deliberately deceived Dem-president Dwight Eisenhower in 1956 during the Quemoy-Matsu crisis in an attempt to use nuclear weapons, columnist Jack Anderson says.

Citing documents stolen from Daniel Ellsberg's home in the San Francisco area this month and later turned over to a Congressional committee, Anderson said Pentagon officials wanted to use tactical nuclear weapons to destroy China's underground munitions dumps and gun emplacements.

The Chinese at the time were bombarding the two islands held by the Nationalist Chinese. The U.S. had a commitment to defend the islands and this led to the military planning.

The Pentagon falsely informed the White House that available air force planes in the area had no bomb racks that could carry high-explosive conventional bombs and that nuclear weapons were thus needed to do the job, the columnist reported.

Eisenhower and then-State Secretary John Foster Dulles went ahead with tentative plans to use nuclear weapons against Communist China, in the meantime, the Quemoy-Matsu crisis simmered down and there was no actual American military involvement.

Anderson said details of the deception were contained in a 1957 Rand Corp. report by Morton Halperin. When Ellsberg was with Rand, he had official access to the Halperin report and later made a copy of it in hopes he could someday testify before Congress.

The study was among the documents stolen in the burglary of Ellsberg's home but later recovered

CIA Critic Expelled By Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — John Marks, co-author of a controversial book about the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), was expelled today from South Vietnam as a "blacklisted" journalist, government sources said.

A woman companion, Barbara Gunn of Washington, D.C., was expelled with Marks, the sources said.

Marks arrived in Saigon last Saturday on assignment for the weekly newspaper Rolling Stone and had been interviewing politicians who oppose President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Informed sources said Marks was on a government blacklist of journalists considered harmful to the government. They said he was apparently let into the country by mistake.

Marks, a former State Department analyst, is co-author with Victor Marchetti of The CIA and the Cult of Intelligence, a book the CIA sought unsuccessfully to block from publication.

Taskforce To Check Native Education

An Ontario government task force on native peoples' educational needs will visit east-central Ontario next year.

As yet, its schedule does not indicate a meeting in the Belleville area, an information spokesman for the colleges and universities' ministry said this week.

Tentatively, meetings have been set for Peterborough in July and Kingston in October, he said.

The nine-member task force includes president of various Indian and non-status Indian associations, as well as provincial and federal government representatives.

It will begin touring Ontario native areas in January to view educational facilities and hear assessments and recommendations from native peoples. It expects to visit about 17 centres and complete its work by the end of next year.

The task force was set up at the request of Ontario associations of native peoples, said the ministry.

Its chairmanship will rotate among the heads of participating native groups.

Among the native organizations represented are the Union of Ontario Indians, Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians and Metis Settlements and Non Status Indian Association.

U.S. Steel Industry Had Banner Profit Year

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Despite a coal strike which slowed late-year production and inflation which sent costs soaring, 1974 was a memorable year for the United States steel industry.

During the first nine months, profits for several steelmakers broke earnings records set for any previous full year. Third-quarter earnings doubled for the two largest producers, U.S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel Corp.

Over-all, steel profits returned to about six per cent of sales, a margin unseen in the industry since 1966.

Profit projections for the total year were nearly as optimistic, though December was a slow month.

Steel shipments, which hit an all-time high in 1973, trailed the record mark only slightly this year.

Spectacular profits were sparked by the end of federal price controls on April 30. Price increases totalling more than 30 per cent followed soon thereafter, as steelmakers sought to bolster sagging profits.

A heavy worldwide demand for steel kept the mills going full blast while cutting imports of foreign steel.

And an unprecedented tentative pact with the United Steelworkers of America (USW) helped maintain a smooth production flow.

The 24-day coal strike a year's end, despite the order Labor Secretary Peter Brennan issued few major problems for the industry. Most of the automakers and builders were able to increase sales to other industries.

The auto industry reduced steel purchases by two million tons, or 6.8 per cent, in 1974, while construction increased. Railroad, shipbuilding, agriculture machinery, tools and container-producing industries also showed significant increases in their use of steel.

Analysts predicted that if steel purchases by the auto industry fell by another two million tons, it would begin to put a serious crimp in the industry.

But one observer said at least two of the auto-makers ar known to be seeking longterm pacts with steelmakers and that their purchases for 1975 under such an agreement would be about the same as the total for 1974.

Other achievements in the steel industry went beyond the profit and sales figures.

For instance, the year gave us the Experimental Negotiating Agreement, a bitter-tasting concoction of pact which guarantees labor peace through the contract year of 1977.

What formerly had been an industry slowdown for its boom-bust cycles where buyers stockpiled in anticipation and steelmakers pushed production until contract settlements were made, suddenly became an industry where production flow at a constant rate was demand.

The pact calls for arbitration of issues not solved by negotiation and built-in cost-of-living increases for employees as well as a base increase of three per cent a year. The wage package was worth an estimated $2.25 an hour for the 350,000 workers covered.

The lesson was costly to initial ies that produce stainless steel when it was much competitive with domestic steel prices, said Eugene J. Frank, a steel industry expert.

Having become dependent on foreign steel, they found ties to domestic suppliers closed when world demand for steel grew significantly.

Frank said that only in 1974 have steel companies made substantial profits to permit them to begin spending the $4 billion a year needed to increase production by 50 million tons by the early 1980s.

In another precedent-setting move, the steel industry last April agreed to pay $21 million in back wages to some 30,000 women and minority-group workers as part of an industry-wide plan for ending sex and racial discrimination employment practices.

The program resulted from a consent decree entered into by the industry and the federal government. It provides for individual payments ranging from $250 to $1 000 and averaging $600. The steelworkers' union agreed to pay some of the back wages.

Another solid advance in the industry during 1974 was modernization of federal observers say was definite "turnaround" in the impact problem.

The tight world-wide market for the global industry ages of steel production capacity, plus dollar devaluations and soaring prices for raw materials caused jumps in import steel prices during 1973 and part of 1974 to as high as $100 a ton, much more above U.S.-made steel.

Suddenly, near the end of 1974, the world boom for steel softened somewhat and industry prices for the first time began steel to somewhere between $30 to $70 a ton below than domestic steel.

Observers believe that 1975 will be another strong year for steel with shipments close to 150 million tons, second only to the third-best year ever.

Steel prices are almost certain to increase after the first of the year. Most observers figure a five to 10 per cent increase will be necessary just to keep pace with inflation.

The hefty coal contract alone provides adequate reason for the increase, steel companies say.

Frenchmen Fear Fiscal Future

PARIS (CP) — Although affairs minister, left out of President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's cabinet, Breaking several months' silence Debré accused the new president of being slow to act against inflation which, he says, is killing France cruelly.

"Frenchmen have not been told the truth about inflation," Debré says. "Fourcade asks that we wait until the end of 1975 to judge his policies but if he finds that they have not failed, it will be irrelevant.

"We must act now, involving the whole population in economic policy.

"In order for this to happen people have to believe in the measures which are taken and they must be told the truth."

Jacques Fourcade is social and economic adviser to former finance minister Edgar Faure in a Debreau, and Giscard d'Estaing's opposite for the leadership of the Gaullist party says the present government lacks "foresight, courage and determination."

However, he believes all it not lost since France still has "almost unlimited possibilities" d'Estaing's chief opponent in the presidential election. Debré the presidential election. Debré says that proposals for fighting inflation presented by the party during the election have since been "almost totally ignored" may be considered alternatives to present policies.

Debré has said that he is ready to take over with the support of the Communist party and labor. However, he has categorically dismissed the possibility of compromise with the present government.

Space Heaters Need Constant Care

Every winter the careless handling of oil-fired space heaters causes accidents. Such mishaps can be avoided with common sense and a little effort. By following a few simple steps, I will outline to you, make sure that you and your family will be safe, warm and comfortable.

There are four basic steps:

1. Clean the fire pot, furnace or heater, combustion pipe and chimney carefully and check several times during the winter.

2. Make sure the oil is of the proper type, such as No. 1 stove oil (otherwise the oil will not burn properly). Never use crankcase drainings or any oil that may contain gasoline.

3. Levelling of the heater and fire pot (this is an absolute must for proper operation).

4. Draft: this is extremely important. If when the heater is operating, the flame of a match is drawn in through a slightly open heater door, then adequate draft exists.

Always exercise care when lighting the burner, follow the manufacturer's instructions. If these are not available, the following procedure should be followed: Do not attempt to light the burner when excess oil has collected in the fire pot. Remove such excess oil before lighting.

Never light a hot burner, wait until it cools down. Once the burner is hot the incoming oil can quickly vaporize and may explode when you attempt to light the burner.

Make sure that the knob in the "lowfire" or start position, and light as soon as you have oil in the fire pot. Allow burner to warm up before increasing the fire to high, and let it go from low to high.

In addition to the above operating tips, annual servicing of the burner is recommended. Cleaning and maintenance should be done by a qualified burner servicemen who is familiar with this type of equipment.

If you find it is necessary to service the unit yourself follow the information below:

Ensure that the oil valve at the supply tank is closed, turn off electric switch if the unit is electrically driven; remove the smoke pipe and clean thoroughly. If the pipe has a draft regulator or draft meter, mark the position of it on the pipe so you can replace it in the proper position. Renew the smoke pipe wherever it needs it. Clean the flue passages, taking care to break or misplace any baffles. Check the chimney and make sure it is clean and free from obstructions. Carefully clean any carbon from the walls of the fire pot so that the air holes in the sides and bottom are open, when you clean them do not use any tools which might enlarge them, a wire brush may be used to loosen the carbon and scrape it. Take carbon or scale from the bottom of the fire pot. Remove the burner unit, taking care the oil tube that goes into the fire pot does not get bent. Part of the oil tube with a piece of asbestos and wire, the fibre gauge and must be reassembled and replaced. Use oil-tight, heat units are equipped with a constant level control (often called a governor), these valves have a strainer that should be cleaned at least once a season, or when the flow rate drops off.

Reconnect all lines properly, support smoke pipes, turn on the electric switch and heat. Test fire the heater, using the procedure described earlier.

If your heater should overheat, shut off the oil supply, call your fire department but do not attempt to put the fire out with water.

Do not store combustibles in the burner area, keep the area around the burner free from spilled oil.

Suspects Sought In Napanee Theft

NAPANEE — Ontario Provincial Police here and across the province continue their search today for a brown 1974 Chevrolet Monte Carlo believed linked to the robbery Tuesday of the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Dobbs, two miles west of Napanee on Highway 2.

On Christmas Eve, two men forced their way into the Dobbs home and trussed up Mrs. Doulas and a woman neighbor. They were then joined by a masked, gun-carrying companion.

A short time later two electricians arrived to install lighting fixtures. They were overpowered by the bandits and also tied up.

The robbers demanded to know the location of the Dobbs family safe. When this information was refused, they rifled the home and collected an estimated $2,000 in cash and $1,200 in jewelry.

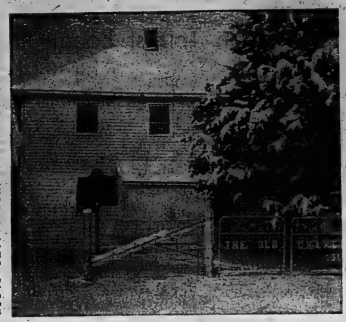
The electrician told police he had seen the brown car in the Dobbs driveway with the motor running before he was herded into the house at gunpoint.

The car was believed to have headed west with the bandits and their loot after the robbery.

Baskets Benefit Shut-ins

TWEED — Six elderly shut-ins had an unexpectedly merry beautiful Christmas — all due to the inspiration of a young couple here.

Ken and Sheila Frost came here from Stirling a year ago. They opened a gas bar and variety store at Bridge and Victoria streets.



This Christmas they established the names of six senior citizens who were unable to go outdoors for the holiday. The Frosts got a Christmas cake and ran a raffle at their store.

From the proceeds they made up six colorful food baskets and delivered them to the shut-ins.

On the Way...

This week's snowfall was a Christmas present for riders eager to challenge the slopes of Macaulay Mountain near Picton. Young and old gathered there on Boxing Day to ski and toboggan.

Country Christmas

Snow fell on Prince Edward County just in time to decorate town and country for the holidays. The White Chapel, just off highway 49 near Picton was cloaked with drifts. Built in 1826 this historic Methodist church is opened once each year in June for an anniversary service.

Snowmobile Rally to Aid Ontario's Crippled Children

Ontario snowmobilers — as many as 30,000 of them — will take part in the largest snowmobiles rally ever held on Sunday, Feb. 2, and the beneficiaries will be Ontario's crippled children.

The Whipper Watson Snowcruns for Timmy will be held on a dozen 100-mile courses in various parts of the province.

Courses are planned in the Bruce Peninsula, Kitchener, Newmarket, Smiths Falls, Haliburton, Cornwall, Espanola, Fort Carling, Sudbury, Timmins, Thunder Bay and Sault Ste. Marie.

The Snowcruns will be conducted in much the same manner as a walk-a-thon with donations or pledges taken and participants set up along the routes.

Fifty per cent of the proceeds will go to meet the needs of crippled children at the community level. The remainder will be used to support regional and provincial rehabilitation service beyond the scope of individual communities.

Hay Rides Popular Winter Attraction

By MARG. RAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

MILFORD — A team of "bearies" straight from a Currier and Ives greeting card are stabled at the Way Stock Farms near Milford, where lazy rides remade last of the Canadian winter.

The huge Belgian horses Bill and King weigh about 1,700 each and hitched to a special sleigh built by Laverne Way, the team is expected to draw the comely maidens through the snow this year.

Mr. Way estimates an annual demand for eight to ten hay rides each winter. Side roads are used to avoid driving on well-travelled streets after dark.

Throughout the winter Mr. Way and his children Blaine, 16 and Brenda, 13, hook the team regularly on the week-end and enjoy sleigh rides through the country.

The big team earns its oats on the farm by drawing out manure and hauling in footing where a tractor might bog down.

A keen horseman, Mr. Way is concerned with the survival of the heavy horse in the Quinte area. His stallion, King, has bred a number of mares this year and, hopefully, in the spring there will be several draft colts in county pastures.

Drawing matches also interest the Way family and this winter Laverne hopes to take King and Bill to a drawing competition in Toronto.

Asked if the advent of the snowmobile had adversely affected the popularity of the sleigh ride, Mr. Way replied "dashing through the snow" still seems special.

The Ways own a snowmobile but this doesn't interfere with their weekend rides behind the big team.

Laverne Way takes pride in his harness for the Belgians and in the winter adds sleigh bells that tinkle gaily in the frosty air.

His father, Sam Way, also enjoys the horses and recalls when Picton boasted a number of livery stables — two at the Town hill and one at each hotel.

His wife's mother used to drive a horse to Belleville through the Little Swamp in a record time of an hour and ten minutes.

He regrets some of the changes that drastically cut the horse population.

His son, however, is promising the return of the heavy horse through competition in the show ring and by his chartered sleigh rides.

Belgian Revival?

Heavy draft horses have a fascination for Laverne Way and he is determined to increase their popularity around his farm and for sleighrides during the winter.

in Prince Edward County. His Belgian team of King and Bill are used for work

Artist Plans Creative Centre for Stirling

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

STIRLING — An artist-businessman who has taken up residence in Stirling has some ideas which could brighten up the community, give it a unique attraction for all to enjoy, and provide a workshop for local artists.

The artist, William Kilian, 33, was trained in commercial art at Volkwang School in Germany. He specialized in calligraphy, a demanding discipline. He painted on and off, and in 1965 became interested in the medium of watercolor.

As a businessman, Mr. Kilian was a lithographer, living in Toronto and Orangeville with his own firm.

This spring, a friend invited him to Stirling, he came, "saw the layout of the town and loved it", and bought Edgar's Garage service station at 49-51 Mill St.

The building was gutted and completely renovated by him, his son Rodger, 22, and a friend Gregor, Andy Engel.

Now, the premises has become Mill Street Studios, centre for creative recreation. It houses Mr. Kilian's paintings and the works of other local artists. So far, oils by Madeleine MacIntosh and Garry Barr have hung on display, plus work by Yeroslavian Danny Kenessa.

Mr. Kilian had his son plan to conduct a color separation business here. Presently they do work for art publications as Eaton's catalogues. Andy Engel will do portrait photography and Rodger's wife Annette will look after the studio and scientific hobby supplies.

"I invite all artists to come and display their work. Of course, we have to take everyone, as we have to maintain a certain standards and quality," Mr. Kilian says.

"I want to appeal to the young people who want to learn to draw and paint. I want to start evening and maybe daytime classes in the spring.

"Upstairs there will be a workshop, where local artists can meet and work. We'll do all this, and if we can get a model, we'll do life drawings," Mr. Kilian adds.

He says his studio will stock hobby supplies, with emphasis on the creative aspects.

"I want young people to get back to creative things — chemistry and physics, making things like telescopes, instead of going out and buying them," the artist says.

To make Stirling "even more attractive" Mr. Kilian wants to work with local businessmen, suggesting the colors and ways downtown buildings could be painted.

As a first project Mr. Kilian points to behind his studio, where the Rawdon Creek is dammed up, creating a drop of about seven feet, and the water always runs over it.

"Using this falls as a source of power, there could be a moving fairground.

"We could take the figure from, say, Alice in Wonderland. They would be powered by a waterwheel, and mechanically linked. Somebody in town who is mechanically inclined could provide the proper gear ratios," he says.

Garage Converted

William (Willy) Kilian, who received formal training in Germany as a commercial artist, swung this background into producing watercolor painting. He primarily produces landscapes. He has set up shop on Mill St. in Stirling in the former Edgar's Garage.

Fire Guts Garage

TRENTON — Christmas Day turned out to be an unhappy experience for the Len Seguin family of RR 1, Trenton.

Fire destroyed their garage and caused some damage to the home before Trenton firemen brought it under control.

The family, however, was able to return to their home for the night after the hydro, which had been cut off, was restored. Cause of the fire has been determined. Damage has not yet been estimated.

Near And Far

In Belleville this year it was an exquisite White Christmas. About the only untoward incident was a Station Street apartment fire with injuries to three firemen. Contrast this with reminders elsewhere of the transient and mortal nature of our world.

In Darwin for instance, devastated by a cyclone. And consider the distances involved there; it will take naval rescue ships six days of sailing from Sydney, although of course evacuation is already under way by air.

Are the weather changes scientists are predicting taking place in the southern hemisphere too? Rosemary Downs, who with Deborah Hutchens spent Christmas in Belleville as an exchange student has told friends here that the Queensland summers seem to be starting later and later every year. She came home from university in Brisbane recently to heavy downpours in Bundaberg, giving rise to fears the floods of that region were coming earlier than usual. Brisbane of course has been a victim of severe flooding earlier in the year, so that the Australian continent has had its full share of natural disaster of late.

Here in Belleville there are memories of Christmas days of infinite variety weatherwise — from mild sunny days with virtually no trace of snow, to one five or six years ago when it was sunny but about five below zero into the bargain. This year's though was perfection.

In Our Time

Some random aspects of the contemporary scene:

This for instance from Howard K. Smith: "We are probably entering an age of scarcity, but I don't believe that it is bad. It is an axiom that disciplined children are healthier than undisciplined children. The same is true of grownup nations."

From the embassy of the USSR in Ottawa: Striking changes have taken place in recent years in the bilateral relations between the USSR and the United States. The main task now is to clear the last remaining roadblocks and obstacles on the way to genuinely equal and full-blooded cooperation — and in the first place, in the economic sphere, in trade."

From Gulf Oil president Jerry McAfee: "The oil industry in Canada will have at least a billion dollars less per year to spend on exploration and development as a result of the Nov. 18 budget."

From the Canadian Press: "A North York committee on violence says the designs of high-density apartment complexes is contributing to crimes of rape, robbery, assault, arson, vandalism and child molesting."

From the New York Times: "Men under 65 who give up smoking cigarets suffer fewer fatal heart attacks in the longer run than men who continue to smoke, according to results of a long-term study of residents of Framingham, Mass.

Strange, then, not to mention east-west relations, and crime, and of course the battle for survival where health is concerned — these are all matters which will continue to occupy the attention of layman and expert alike in the days ahead.

Calculator Boom

A couple of years ago former Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott produced a pocket calculator to show to service club companions at his table at lunch.

"It's a great little device," he told them, and as we recall he said it had cost him $40 or so.

Today of course these calculators are all the rage, as columnist Vincent Egan pointed out the other day. And not only that, but they are becoming almost ridiculously cheap. One of the new customer buys in fact that is coming down in price.

They have so many uses too, although some of us whose math was never up to much anyway might find them merely an added encumbrance.

A young man working one of those new cash register machines in a store at the Mall was asked if they worked on the same principle as the calculators. He replied: "Not really," and added that a total of 15 hours training was required to work the registers.

Sounds as if the calculators are easier to use. Now, if only they would produce something that would ease the work of a writer. . . !

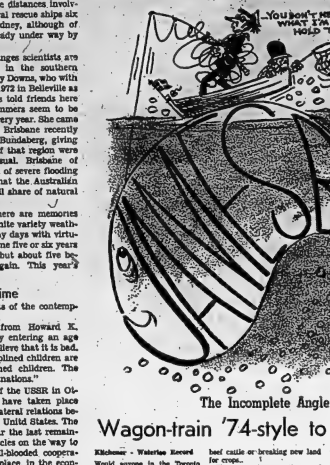
Holy Year Will Mean Tourist Boom In Rome For 1975

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Rome is gearing up for the biggest tourist boom in its history. Between six and nine million pilgrims are expected in 1975 to take part in Holy Year.



This important event in the Roman Catholic Church takes place every quarter century, the last one being in 1950. Hence at that time was bursting at the seams to accommodate a mere three million pilgrims and visitors.

So much happens in our world in the quarter-century intervals between the Holy Years of the 20th century, that no one is found by the last many pilgrims to come because of some world economic recession, or that Holy Year will be a political chess piece to breakdown by Dec. 31 of the same year.

Looking back to 1950, the same dire prognosis had been made about Holy Year during the 1947-48 national turmoil when politics not economics was the reason given for the near-breakdown of Holy Year.

That was the time when the strong Italian Communist Party, like the French one, almost took control of those two democratic nations through the ballot box. The breakdown though came, did not come.

Now will be convened other ecclesiastical pilgrams for Holy Year will be convened about Italian stability by 1975 but more so about the state of the wider world, not only west but also as it has progressed or otherwise since 1950.

The Incomplete Angler

For a church which was intensely conservative in 1950 with a pontiff some now consider reactionary and a Vatican bureaucracy which was the plaything of the Counter-Reformation, changes have been dramatic.

Responding to the massive changes in the world community of the 19th and 20th, the two Vatican Councils of Pope John 23rd and 23 have brought that institution into the modern world for social justice and issues which were truly affect people's lives.

This has had its ever effect on the church with demands for an end to celibacy for priests and nuns alike, the determined doctrinal revolt of the restless Dutch Catholic Church, the necessity for a Vatican representment with the anti-Christ Marxist world.

Editor:
The Intelligencer.

In reference to the three quarter page ad., in Saturday's edition by the Ontario Government. The first ad., is a production of gross misrepresentation and by a supposedly responsible government.

The government has not been tyrtar for three months to negotiate. The government itself took one month to make their reply to the CSAO demand and that was for the first year of a two year contract. It took another two weeks for them to come up with their offer on salaries. Then the union said it wanted a two year contract and the government refused to sign a contract it took the government another month to reply. Yet when the CSAO said it would consider the reply and give a response within one week, Mr. Winkler told the legislature the union was causing totally unnecessary delays. If that is the case, what was he doing?

The government said it has tried to bargain in good faith. The above shows one way in which they have not. Another is that from the time Mr. Winkler has gone out of his way to make public statements which not only exaggerate but are against all rules of negotiations. The full page ads by the Ontario Government is denied was an obvious attack on the employees of the government. On average honestly say this is bargaining for position.

The government says it has given a fair and reasonable offer. It doesn't mention the fact that the government before previously removed down its manpower freezes which got the CSAO members to be forced to ask for a large increase. Also how can this offer be explained to those who have been in the past year or the proposed one. In the cost of living is 12 per cent? Obviously the offer is a cut to the tax-payer. What was the cost to the taxpayer of the three-quarter page ad run in the seven papers? It is costly. Certainly in the many thousands. As to the rules for the Green employees to be paid out the taxpayer nothing. How? Not for seven years at least. The burden carried by the taxpayer will increase every year as they gradually the taxpayers burden increased and the corporations had decreased until now it is 28-32. If the corporations were made to pay their fair share there would be money left over to reduce the taxpayers load. Naturally if this happened the government would not get its contributions from these corporations.

One glaring point of misrepresentation is the fact their convenient neglect to show the latest union offer was, 29 per cent for the first year of living bonus, a fact they were well aware of, before the ad was printed.

It is my opinion, and I am sure it is shared by many, that the government does not want a settlement. They are deliberately searching for an election issue and if they can force an election on anti-union cut an strike, they plan to force them back by legislation and then appeal to the voters for a mandate. If this is the case, and I fear it is, it does nothing to contradict this theory, that it is the height of irresponsibility for a government, to use their own employees for political purposes.

Wagon-train '74-style to Alberta

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

Would anyone in the Toronto area care to escape from the asphalt jungle and blighty problems by driving west in a horse-drawn wagon and resettling in northern Alberta? A group of five families think they would. Once they made known their intention to organize the Canadian Wagon Train at least 30 more applied to join.

The expedition planners envisage a mile-long cavalcade of horse-drawn wagons, carrying latter-day pioneers to the Peace River district, where they will forget about riding subways and playing office politics. They have a romantic dream of life in the great open spaces, raising beef cattle or breaking new land for crops.

The covered-wagon theme of the proposed migration is imported history. In the first era of migration from East to West in Canada, people like Pierre Gaultier de Varennes and Jean-Baptiste Lagimodiere made the trip by canoe. In the second era, after the building of the Canadian Pacific, the younger sons from Ontario and Ontario farms went by rail. In neither era did people go by road, because there wasn't any.

The tradition of pioneering westward by covered wagon is a concept imported from the United States, and considerably romanticized in the process. Not until the Trans-Canada Highway was completed in 1960 was there any way to move by road within Canada from Ontario to Alberta.

The mood of the 1974 wagoneers is suggested in the explanation of one of them who is quoted as saying: "I've had enough of the rat race and inflation. I've had enough of worrying about paying this bill and that bill. I want to get away."

Don't we all, at one time or another? Any modern Alberta farmer could warn him, though, that if he tries to make a living running beef cattle or growing crops, in the harsh climate of northern Alberta, he will escape from inflation, nor from paying bills, or the rat race.

Tar Sands Project Is in Trouble

Ottawa Journal

Anyone inclined to doubt the need for or the desirability of other petroleum prices in the years ahead must be somewhat shaken by the problems besetting the Syncrude Canada project in the Athabasca tar sands.

At one stage this was a $700 million proposal to produce 125,000 barrels daily of oil from the tar sands within a few years. Now it has become a $1.6 billion project to extract the same amount of oil. But there is increasing doubt any oil will be produced because many members of the Syncrude group have begun to back out of the deal.

The inflationary toll on high technical-energy projects is enormous and will continue to be so, resulting in almost certainly a reduction in the standard cost of price of oil needed to get a return on investment. This situation, combined with current lunatic uncertainty and its effect on the return from fast-dwindling supplies of conventional oil, has created a bad climate for oil sands development.

The price of future tar sands oil is at the mercy of events that have the capacity to escalate far faster than material costs, particularly in unpleasant work locations where labor is hard to attract and hold.

It is almost certain Canada must absorb a considerable amount of oil sands production to tide it through the years when the supply of conventional southern oil and conventional Arctic oil gradually to market. The need to build tar sands plants as fast as possible, of course, means the inflationary pressures are available costs and materials. The irony of that inflationary fear, however, is that in the past months the consumers has shifted from the problem to too many new oil sands production projects, precipitating to the fear of none at all being built. Either way, Major-priced oil is just down the pipe.

Seeking An Answer to Inflation

The Globe and Mail

Ottawa is in search of voluntary guidelines to moderate inflation. Finance Minister Jean Turner told provincial finance ministers that his Government plans to seek opinions from each sector society to see how much restraint each is prepared to make. Talks so far with business and labor shad produced no rejections of the vague idea, but it was difficult to get business leaders to commit themselves and difficult to be sure if labor leaders were capable of taking the rank and file with them on any agreement.

In the United States there is an appearance of more action. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield has introduced legislation which would grant President Gerald Ford the power to "stabilize prices, rents, dividends, interest rates, and other comparable economic transfers at levels not less than those prevailing on April 1, 1974."

In Canada they will confer, with a view to setting up voluntary guidelines - are they waiting for the end of 1975, with its record number of workers seeking jobs and new business, before considering controls? Knowing that a wage increase will lead to a round of price increases?

Two comments from Senator Mansfield which perhaps set out the situation for both countries:

"The Administration and the Congress both are drifting and we are not drifting in the right direction."

"A sense of urgency seems to escape all but those in the grocery store lines."

Savage Legacy of Black Africa

Centennial College Observer

The bloodbath in the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa in which 60 prisoners of the new military regime, including two former prime ministers, were shot without public trial, is a reminder that the barbaric and savagery still linger in the African continent, the Lord Livingstone and others explored just over a century ago.

Another such area is Uganda. Since Idi Amin seized power there four years ago at least 30,000 native Ugandans have been killed in the terror, according to evidence gathered by international investigators. Then there was the recent massacre of Burundi where two years ago the government admitted to a total of 100,000 in its campaign to crush the majority tribe.

It is something new that the controlled press in Zambia and Tanzania has condemned the Ethiopian executions as "barbaric hype hot on Africa." Curiously, it made no protest about the Ugandan and Burundi massacres though it ceasionally attacks South Africa where its events sometimes resembling them have occurred.

Anatomy of Economic Breakdown

...Wall Street Journal

What's the difference between a recession and a depression?

"When your neighbor is out of work," the old saw goes, "it's a recession. When you're out of job, it's a depression."

Humorist Will Rogers had a similar but slightly more cynical view: A skimpy longer and more severe than a recession. "When people ask me to explain a depression," he said, "I tell them it means double-digit unemployment. But when Herbert Robertson, senior vice-president and chief economist of the Chase Manhattan Bank, defines a depression he is more analytical.

We wonder if these "Me" signs could be considered obscene as Olson contends. Are they not suggestive only of the human profession a person wants to apply to them?

Maine is the fourth largest industry in the state of Maine. These "Me." signs have attracted more attention than the slogan, "Vacationland" which has appeared on Maine vehicle registration plates since 1936.

Queen's Probes Human Endurance

Queen's University

Will a regime of strenuous exercise and maximum capacity produce the same effect as a less rigorous program in terms of health and fitness?

What is the optimum exercise pattern today in order to be physically fit? These are the topics of research Dr. George Andrew of the School of Physical and Health Education is trying to answer through a study he is seeking volunteers from Queen's University.

Healthy women between the ages 30 and 40 are needed as subject for Dr. Andrew's exercise and training study being conducted at the Physical Education Centre. Preliminary testing includes a physical examination with an electrocardiogram, fitness and rest blood pressure counts, and lung function assessment. Following this, women will exercise twice weekly for one hour over a ten week period to develop individual stamina and endurance.

Dr. Andrew explains specific activity intended to tackle the "middle-age spread" will be provided by Miss Emily Watson, program supervisor.

Each exercise session will conclude with a short recreation period. Participants will be encouraged to exercise a third time each week on their own.

Dr. Andrew hopes the volunteers their progress as the program continues, and if they wish to go on after the final retesting, another 20 weeks of training will be available.

Heart and lung capabilities will be measured during activity on a treadmill and a stationary bicycle at the start of the program and after each ten-week training period in order to establish changes brought about by the exercise.

Because the public is currently concerned with the possible health benefits of regular exercise, Dr. Andrew believes accurate information concerning the effects of various types of exercise programs should be known, not only from the academic point of view but because of the practical importance of the practical implications that may be involved.

The study is supported by the Ontario Heart Foundation.

TOKYO (AP) — China's Maoists never papered compared the international oil shortage with historical criticism of the United States and the Soviet Union in a long commentary today.

Oil deposits in the Middle East, Indochina and Latin America have always been a target of "colonist plunder, it said. "but these have changed."

"It (oil) now is a powerful weapon of the Third World people against imperialist aggression."

A Peking broadcast monitored in Tokyo added that "U.S. imperialists blustered recently the future of the 'Free World' is related to the rich oil fields in the Middle East," while Soviet "social-imperialists clamored that Arab oil is 'Soviet national property.'"

The report, the Chinese agency said, was that the people of the Middle East "stood up and organized themselves to control their rich resources and take their destiny into their own hands."

The Ontario government has been indifferent to their predicament but we cannot show the public that we are guilty of such an interview.

Pledge to Convicts Will Be Kept

LORTON, Va. (AP) — The District of Columbia's corrections director says he intends to fulfill a no-parole pledge that helped win a peaceful end to a 19-hour convict rebellion at Lorton reformatory.

About 80 prisoners surrendered their arms-guard hostages and ended their occupation of the maximum-security cell block at the reformatory Tuesday.

The take - over ended peaceefully after officials pledged to improve living conditions at the 2,000-inmate Lorton complex, compound 15 miles south of Washington, and promised no reprisals against the rebel convicts.

But the key was a letter from acting U.S. Attorney David Bowden, approved by his justice department superiors, that said any prosecutions resulting from the takeover "will be made only upon specific authorization" by Bowden.

Bowden's letter also stipulated that "no immunity from prosecution can be a matter of negotiation."

But Jackson said later that he intends to live up to assurances he gave the convicts about whether this also extended to a no-parole pledge he made, the official replied: "Without question."

With the agreement reached, the convicts released their last two hostages unharmed through a gate in the prison wall.

"They treated us well," said one of the hostages, Gary Thomas.

Originally, 19 hostages were

Jury is Expected to Get Watergate Case on Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John Sirica wants the Watergate cover-up trial jury to complete their closing arguments on the jury case before deliberating on a verdict Monday.

Sirica made the announcement Thursday shortly after Jacob Stein, lawyer for Kenneth Parkinson, began his closing argument.

After Stein finishes today, Chief Prosecutor James Neal and Assistant Prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste are to deliver the government rebuttal.

Lawyer for the other four defendants—former attorney-general John Mitchell, ex-White House aides H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman and former presidential attorney-general Robert Mardian—already have completed their cases for the jury.

Sirica had been pushing the defence lawyers to finish Thursday but then changed his mind and permitted Stein to finish his argument today.

Stein told a protested earlier when Sirica said he wanted him to finish even if it meant going past 6 p.m. Trial sessions are usually held between 9:30 a.m. EST.

Under the new schedule, the jury will be excused off and hear Sirica's instructions on the law Monday, then retire Monday. The judge said he expects to take about two hours to the instructions.

Then the nine women and three men jurors will have spent 11 weeks of testimony and arguments in the historic case that drove Richard Nixon from the presidency.

The former president has been named an unindicted co-conspirator in the case, but he is found too ill to appear as a witness.

President Ford pardoned Nixon for all federal crimes he committed in office.

Unemployed Display Talent for Acting

TORONTO (CP) — A few Canada Manpower counsellors say they have unemployed a talent for acting among some clients.

Traces Of DES Are Found

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two per cent by weight residues of the chemical DES, a synthetic hormone, have been found in beef livers of animals produced in Kansas and Iowa, the United States agriculture department said Thursday.

Although livestock producers can use the chemical to help animals grow faster, no trace is permitted when livestock is slaughtered for human food. The chemical has caused cancer in laboratory animals.

Officials said one of the livers came from a heifer produced near Whitewater, Kan., and initially was detected by federal inspectors at a processing plant in Hutchinson, Kan.

The other sample came from a fatherland, Iowa, steer and was found to contain traces at a plant in Okland, Iowa, the department said. The presence of confirmed by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) last week, officials said.

So far this year, including the two latest cases, seven DES contaminations have been found in livers across the country, the department said. None has ever been found in muscle tissues or red meat of slaughtered livestock.

The government banned DES for livestock use early in 1973 but last month reversed the order last January, clearing its use again. But producers must withdraw the chemical from animals in ample time to allow it to disappear from inside the animals are slaughtered.

The department said that the DES violations have been found over in the FDA for possible legal action against owners of the animals.

In March, Canadian government announced a virtual ban on the import of U.S. beef and cattle to protect Canadian consumers against beef that might contain DES, which Canadian growers are not permitted to use. Until last year, the U.S. retaliated in November by banning the import of Canadian beef to a level equal to the average of the last five years.

More Gain Freedoms Than Have Them Pared

NEW YORK (AP) — Freedom House said Thursday in its annual survey that 193 million persons around the world gained additional personal freedom this year and 85 million persons lost freedom.

The survey, to be published in the society's December 31 issue of publication Jan. 4, said those who had freedom live in Argentina, Cyprus, Malaysia, Bolivia, Ethiopia, Guyana and Jamaica.

The countries which offered more freedom were Egypt, Portugal, Spain, Israel, South Vietnam, Spain and Thailand.

Freedom House, which seeks to strengthen free societies, rates countries on a nationwide scale from the most repressive—those which have "permanently established a scheme the personal goals of the leadership without regard to the will of the majority."

The organization said 825 million persons—nearly a quarter of the world's population—"suffer the most severe restrictions of political and civil liberty, and only 34 persons live in the 17 freest nations."

The 17 are Australia, Austria, Barbados, Belgium, Canada, Costa Rica, Denmark, West Germany, Iceland, Malta, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, United States and Venezuela, it said.

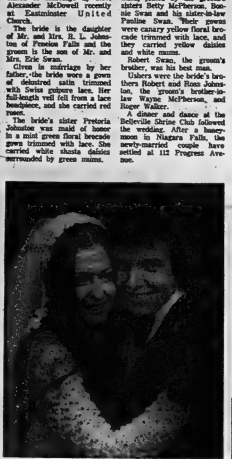
Mr. and Mrs. Barry Swan



Swan — Johnston

Jane Annabelle Johnston and Barry William Swan were united in marriage by Rev. Alexander McDowell recently in St. Eastminster United Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Johnston of Preston Falls and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Swan.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of delustred satin trimmed with Swiss guipure lace. Her full-length veil fell from a lace headpiece, and she carried red roses.

The bride's sister Pretoria Johnston was maid of honor in a mint green floral brocade gown trimmed with lace. She carried white shasta daisies surrounded by green mums.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ashley

Ashley — Rashotte

St. Michael's Church was the setting for the November wedding of Janet Elizabeth Rashotte and John Douglas Ashley, performed by Rev. Kenneth Stitt.

The bride is the daughter of Lorna Rashotte and the late Clare Rashotte and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Doug Ashley.

Given in marriage by her grandfather Staff Meraw, the bride wore a gown of ecru calypso, designed and crocheted by her mother and assembled and beaded by her grandmother, Elizabeth Meraw. The fitted bodice was crocheted in a pattern of flowers centred with seed pearls and the skirt and flowing train were crocheted in forget-me-not pattern. A crocheted band trimmed the bodice, train and full-length set veil, held by a Juliet cap. She carried a cascade of dark red roses.

The bride's sister Judi Rashotte was maid of honor in a princess style gown of red velvet matching the bridal bouquet, with a crocheted yoke trimmed with seed pearls.

Bridesmaids Joy Rashotte, the bride's sister, and Jane Ashley, the groom's sister were gown identical to the maid of honor's as did junior bridesmaid Tracey Meeker. All the attendants carried one large white mum tied with dark red ribbon.

The groom's best man was Glen Ashley, and the ushers were Brian Cooper, the groom's brother-in-law, Ken Miller, and Mickey Rashotte, the bride's brother.

A reception at Mother's Tavern near Madoc followed the ceremony.

The newly-married couple now reside at 4 Gordon Street.

CAN SMOKING AFFECT SEX?

Is smoking dangerous to your sexual health? Science has long known that heavy smoking can cause miscarriage and stillbirth — smoking mothers have a significantly greater number of unsuccessful pregnancies. Now it appears that heavy cigarette smoking may also impair sexual performance, for men as well as women. January Reader's Digest tells why many sex counselors and drug researchers are convinced that a link does exist between sexual response and smoking. Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Sheridan

Sheridan — Milne

The December 7 wedding of Lucille Agnes Milne and Jerome Henry Sheridan took place in St. Joseph's Church here, in a service conducted by ev. J.A. Carley.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Joseph Milne of RR 6, Belleville and the late Mr. Joseph Milne and the groom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. Sheridan.

Given in marriage by her brother Joe Milne, the bride wore a gown of twinkle crepe with a stand-up collar and bodice trimmed with ruffled Swiss lace. Her long fitted sleeves were cuffed with lace and her skirt was tied with a satin bow and trimmed with two tiers of lace. A juliette cap held a three-tiered shoulder-length veil and the bridal bouquet was a cascade of orchids and carnations.

Anne Marie Geneve was maid of honor in a green silk velvet A-line gown with a medallion reflection of the real world, said Anson Isaacson, who has been involved in toy designing for 38 years.

The kit-style set consists of adult change, there is a corresponding shift in the area of toys for girls, he added the managing partner of the Martin Claire and Associates design firm.

"Everything they see and hear has a direct effect on children—the television entertainment news programs they're exposed to, the conversation in the home, what parents talk about. You couldn't sell a doll with the long kind of clothes Sindy.

"For instance, there's a new doll on the market this year that has outfits and equipment to play at sports activities like tennis, golf, baseball. Girls are getting into sports now and younger girls know this and respond to it."

The trick, the designer said, is to look ahead, to have the right product and design on the market by the time a trend becomes an established fact.

"What we have today is a movement back to basic workshop, after the anti-establishment period in the '60s. It has brought a big revival of Superman, Batman and real-life heroes such as Evel Knievel.

Current events have also contributed to the surge of interest in "family games," Isaacson noted. Such factors as the economy and problems of drugs and safety in the street have made parents eager to have their children stay at home.

"Toys have become more sophisticated and have increased greatly in quality. Basically they have not changed, Isaacson said. There are innovations in design, in the marketing concept, but to a great degree old toys have are variations on the old ones.

"As for quote, education, unquote, toys, there's a myth, intervened in a dispute between

Ads Still Show Woman's Place in Home

NEWARK, Del. (AP) — Although women may not be shown as sex objects or decoration as frequently, many advertisements still carry the message that a woman's place is in the home, researchers have concluded.

"There haven't changed much in the last three or four years," said Dr. James D. Culley, an assistant professor of business marketing at the University of Delaware. "Women are still shown as being worried about food or toothpaste."

Culley and Prof. Rex G. Bennett of the University of Colorado jointly conducted follow-up studies on a 1971 research project that focused on women in television commercials and a 1970 study of magazine advertisements to see whether changes had occurred.

Their studies showed some increases in the number of females portrayed as workers instead of wives. But they generally supported the conclusions of earlier researchers that advertisements portray women at home or in subservient roles more often than as job-holding career-ers or career-oriented individuals.

Generally women were found to be involved in advertising promoting home, food or beauty products rather than appliances, automobiles or high-expensive products.

The follow-up study found almost no change in the predominant use of men as off-camera narrators. About 94 per cent of the voice-overs were male, six per cent female said in per cent shows, supporting the contention that advertisers believe the male voice is more authoritative and convincing.

One sharp difference the study did find was a drop in the number of instances the researchers defined as the use of a female solely as a sex object or as decoration in a commercial.

The earlier study, conducted by Dr. Joseph B. Dominick and Fred E. Rauch of Queens College in New York, found 39 per cent of the cases.

The comparison study found 24 per cent of women shown in household settings, compared with 28 per cent in 1971, a difference that is not statistically significant, Culley said.

It showed a slight increase in the number of men shown in the home. Some 21 per cent of the cases in 1974 showed men in the home, an increase of seven per cent.

In its examination of occupations, researchers found an 11 per cent drop in the number of women shown in homemaker or mother roles.

But they still accounted for 45 per cent of all roles for women compared with 15 per cent for men in homemaker and father roles.

The study found some changes in the proportion of women shown in what researchers describe as subservient roles. The earlier study found that 73 of women were portrayed in occupations such as housewife, stewardess, secretary, cook or domestic. The proportion decreased to five in 18 in the follow-up.

The second follow-up study, on magazine advertisements found trends the same trends.

In terms of occupations, women have gained in the middle-level business category, but they are totally uninterested in the professional and high-level category in the study said.

There was a substantial increase in the number of women portrayed as workers. The 1970 study, conducted by Sue E. Courtney of York University, Toronto, and Sarah Wernick, Regis College, Weston, Mass., found only nine per cent of females shown as workers. The follow-up study found 25 per cent.

But the current study still concluded that women are underportrayed in the workforce since about 44 per cent of the U.S. work force is made up of women.

The comparative study analyzed more than 1,400 ads published in six general circulation and news magazines in April, 1970 and 1974.

Play World of Children Reflection of Real Life

NEW YORK (AP) — The play world of children is a miniature reflection of the real world, said Anson Isaacson, who has been involved in toy designing for 38 years.

The kit-style set consists of adult change, there is a corresponding shift in the area of toys for girls, he added the managing partner of the Martin Claire and Associates design firm.

"Everything they see and hear has a direct effect on children—the television entertainment news programs they're exposed to, the conversation in the home, what parents talk about. You couldn't sell a doll with the long kind of clothes Sindy.

"For instance, there's a new doll on the market this year that has outfits and equipment to play at sports activities like tennis, golf, baseball. Girls are getting into sports now and younger girls know this and respond to it."

The trick, the designer said, is to look ahead, to have the right product and design on the market by the time a trend becomes an established fact.

"What we have today is a movement back to basic workshop, after the anti-establishment period in the '60s. It has brought a big revival of Superman, Batman and real-life heroes such as Evel Knievel.

Current events have also contributed to the surge of interest in "family games," Isaacson noted. Such factors as the economy and problems of drugs and safety in the street have made parents eager to have their children stay at home.

"Toys have become more sophisticated and have increased greatly in quality. Basically they have not changed, Isaacson said. There are innovations in design, in the marketing concept, but to a great degree old toys are variations on the old ones.

"As for quote, education, unquote, toys, there's a myth, intervened in a dispute between an intellectual snobbishness," he declared. "A child plays with a toy, assumes himself, fantasizes, manipulates it, he is getting all the education he needs.

"Play is a certain age playing with toys is a child's business. It gives him an important part of his experience. He learns to play with other children. He learns self-discipline by following the rules in playing games. You can't make a child interested in toys and sell it to very young children."

The area of games is where boys and girls play together a great deal but otherwise, Isaacson said, there are still many toys strictly for girls or strictly for boys.

"Everybody in the toy business is boasting for that big toy that will appeal to both boys and girls. But you won't sell many football games for girls or Miss America games for boys.

"Boys like a lot of action, guns and rockets. Toy soldiers, guns and any way toys meet with great social disfavor and you're on this ice with cowboys and Indians. As I hinted around for a theme to satisfy what the kids want came up with pirates, which are socially acceptable. They provide excitement, costumes, swashbuckling, but don't meet with objections like tanks and guns."

Father of two grown children, Isaacson got into the toy field by chance. After receiving a degree in mechanical engineering in 1940, he went to work as a project engineer for a company that later bought a toy firm and became chief engineer for the toy products.

"It might be that advertisers have grown a little bit," Culley said. "There used to be more movie star and glamor stuff. And it may also be true that the women's movement is having some impact."

The follow-up study analyzed 559 commercials shown during a one-week period in January or a Philadelphia network affiliate. The Dominick and Rauch study surveyed 729 commercials shown on all three major networks during the equivalent of one week in April, 1971.

The comparison study found 24 per cent of women shown in household settings, compared with 28 per cent in 1971, a difference that is not statistically significant, Culley said.

It showed a slight increase in the number of men shown in the home. Some 21 per cent of the cases in 1974 showed men in the home, an increase of seven per cent.

Foolish to Ignore Frostbite Danger

Many are cold but few are frozen, goes the old adage. Or something like that, anyway.

For despite the duration and chilliness of Canada's winters, most Canadians manage to insulate themselves from it pretty effectively They go from heated homes to heated cars to heated offices and back again. Those able to afford it, flee to warmer climes for as long as they can.

But people who choose to come to grips with winter — or who are forced to — can find it a powerful adversary.

Perhaps its strongest weapon is frostbite.

Frostbite is something you might associate with Scott of the Antarctic, but it can happen just as easily to the unwary skier, snowmobiler or anyone else who ventures outdoors in winter, anywhere in Canada.

What is frostbite? It's a freezing of the tissues caused by ice crystals forming between the cells, and it affects blood vessels, muscles and nerves.

It can be painful, and it requires prompt treatment. What that means, say doctors, is gradual warming of the body either by immersion with cools and blankets, drinking hot liquids or taking a warm bath. Even in mild cases of frostbite, the victim should then go to a physician to see if further treatment is needed.

Obviously, preventing frostbite is a happier solution: dress warmly and completely, avoid exposure to extreme cold. And try to enjoy winter sports with others, rather than alone. That way, if help is needed it'll be there.

Prevention isn't quite as easy as it sounds, though, because frostbite can sneak up on you. For one thing, the wind may appear to bring temperatures down to much lower levels than those claimed by your weatherman. Zero degrees farenheit and a 40 mph wind can be the equivalent of — 35 degree F. (—37.3 degree Celsius) on a still day.

And frostbite really isn't a joke at all. Sometimes you don't even notice it at first and may realize only some time later that whatever part of you is frozen — usually the nose or ears — has lost all sense of feeling and become quite white.

Before it or not, people in warmer countries say cold winter. Canadians, more than most, should be aware of winter's opportunities — and its hazards.

Warmately, like water safely, means preparation and anticipation. And common sense.

Books By And About Women

THE JOY OF SHOW by Elizabeth Goudge.

Readers of Elizabeth Goudge will enjoy this latest book.

It is not really an autobiography, but the narrative does give a clear picture of the influence of her parents and grandparents on her life. Those who have read her novels will delight in discovering the real people and places she adapted for her stories.

The essence of her writing is very evident here, a blend of warmth and spiritual feeling which is typical of Elizabeth-Goudge. She is one of those rare writers who recognize that the whole person is made up of body, mind, and spirit.

With violence and unrest and falling moral values all around us, she tends to restore the balance. After reading her books - particularly "The Joy of Snow" - readers feel refreshed in the belief that there is goodness in everyone.

This book is available in Corby Library.

Clay Facial Mask Current Beauty Fad

TORONTO (CP) — Most women get concerned about their skin at between the ages of 30 and 35 when they notice wrinkles around the eyes and mouth.

"Moisture is the most important thing to keep your youthful, soft and supple," says Lily Alexander of Embellice of Mira Linder, a skin care salon in Toronto.

"After 35, the skin cannot be nourished from the outside alone. It needs help to throw off hidden dirt and toxins and take means bringing a flow of blood to the skin's surface to stimulate circulation."

Masks, and to some degree — facials, are ways of achieving all this. One of the newest ways to better complexion is the clay mask which esthetician consider a breakthrough in skin treatment.

The clay mask has a drawing power with a vacuum-like suction that draws fresh blood to the surface and along with it prima and toxins. The mask stays on for 20 minutes and very slowly shrinks until it reaches a temperature from 43 to 45 degrees and then slowly cools off. The thin oil-free creams to be absorbed into the skin.

The mask is a secret formula mixed with water and crystals the color of clay harvested by a Paris esthetician and is slowly poured over the chin, cheeks, forehead and everywhere except the eyes and nostrils.

Mrs. John Crispo, a nursery school teacher and mother of two children, has clay mixture poured slowly over her face in a Toronto skin-care salon. The clay mask removes grime and toxins. (CP Photo).

Mrs. Crispo smiled happily as the clay mask was removed. The clay smelled like peppermint, she said, and it cleared her nasal passages. The process took 20 minutes. (CP Photo).

According to Mrs. Crispo, the treatment was worth the $20, she said. "My skin felt clean, alive and refreshed afterwards", said Mrs. Crispo. "I'm all set for the rest of the holiday season". (CP Photo).

Experts Say:

Light Bulbs Give Heat

VANCOUVER (CP) — Next time you reach for the light switch to save energy, think twice.

"If you turn off the lights, which are a great heat source, the thermostat will turn up the oil, and as far as your total energy used is concerned, you are back where you started. You will have used more of the more scarce resource and saved some of the relatively abundant resource of electrical power."

Such is the view of Dr. Ed Hauptmann, a mechanical engineer at University of British Columbia.

"I don't suggest that everyone should leave all the lights burning all the time," said Dr. Hauptmann, "but a light bulb is, in fact, a pretty efficient heater."

In an interview he went on to explain that a normal 100-watt light bulb, for example, is better than 90 -- cent efficient as a heat In other words, of the total power that goes into the bulb, at least 90 per cent is gained in heat.

The hitch lies in the fact that electricity is the most expensive of all home heating sources. For example, B.C. Hydro has estimated that it would cost $365 during a year to heat electrically a 1,500 square-foot home The Lower Mainland. Comparative costs for gas and oil are $180 and $250 respectively. Gas, coal and oil are also comparatively scarce resources these days.

In a speech to the Vancouver Board of Trade, B.C. Hyd's chairman David Cass-Beggs said it is pointless to hurry off the lights if we cannot turn down the thermostat.

"In this period of oil shortage a general move to turn off electric lights without reducing the thermostat setting would result in a significant increase in oil consumption."

He went on to say that in terms of energy demands, the amount of electrical power supplied by household electrical appliances is almost totally irrelevant.

Dr. Hauptmann explained that all electrical appliances are heaters, but some are more efficient then others. Ovens, toasters and even TVs and radios are nearly 100-percent efficient, while a fan, for instance, uses little of the energy moving the air.

In terms of total energy consumed, the average home, the furnace and the water heater (35 per cent and 30 per cent respectively) are the chief culprits.

Dr. Hauptmann supports Hydro's admonitions to turn down the thermostat, particularly at night. Extra blankets, he winter weather, will keep a body just as warm as the roaring fire in the furnace.

And then the refrigerator running. Ironically it is a first-rate source of heat.

"What a refrigerator does," said Dr. Hauptmann, "is pump all the heat out of what you want to get cold. When you pump the heat out, you dump it into the room."

The Pacific Press Building in Vancouver is heated on this principle. Heat is extracted from the newspaper presses and used to warm the building.

Much heat escapes through the ceiling, cracks around windows and doors, and as a result of poorly insulated walls.

"Take a house that's 30 years old," said Dr. Hauptmann. "In all probability the old wool insulation between the studs in the walls has settled down to the bottom with nothing in the top."

A further potential escape valve is heat conducted within the home is the chimney. Heat can escape into the home of heat if the flue is left open after the fire is out.

Ann Landers

Parents Can't Approve Daughter's Wedding Plan

Dear Ann Landers: Several years ago our son married a Catholic girl. This is our only daughter. She was very happy about it, but we did attend the wedding and signed some documents wanted by the church.

After the ceremony my wife and I decided we could not participate in another ceremony in a Catholic church. We explained our feelings to our daughter who was then "unattached." The following year when she began to date a Catholic boy we reminded her of our feelings. Last week she informed us that they plan to be married--in a Catholic church. We reviewed our previous conversations and offered to give her a lovely wedding elsewhere. She refused.

We will not interfere with her plans if she chooses to go ahead, but we have told her we cannot participate. She says we are "narrow" and "unfair." Need I tell you this has created a serious problem? My wife and I have agreed to abide by your decision. What should we do?--St. Petersburg, Fla.

Dear SP.: Take a deep breath, swallow your pride, and give your daughter in marriage. You lived through it once. You can do it again.

Retire to suffer through the hour than to absent yourselves and cast a dark shadow over the day for her and for others. Your absence on this very special occasion could inflict a wound that may never heal.

Dear Ann: I need your help badly. My wife and I have been separated for a month. It was probably because of my "foolishness" with other women. My wife reached the point where she decided enough is enough."

Ever since she asked me to move out of the house I have been miserable. I have told her I am terribly sorry I behaved so poorly and I've begged her forgiveness. I love her and the kids and I want to come back home and be part of a family again.

My wife told me last night that if she takes me back it will be only because she doesn't want to deprive our children of their father. It's painful for me to go back on that basis. I want her to want me as a husband.

What should I do, Ann? You are a wise woman and you know the answers to such questions as "Do I still love her?" and "Does she still love me?" But I'm not sure I can live with myself if I don't do something to save my marriage.--Heartbroken

Dear H.B.: Go home. Sometimes when a woman has been humiliated as your wife has been, she isn't emotionally equipped to accept an errant husband with open arms.

Once you are back in the house you will have a good opportunity to win her love. Action speaks louder than words. Good luck.

Dear Ann Landers:

I just found out I am pregnant, after seven years of marriage and for years of "trying." I plan to work at my job until the baby pains start.

Question: Who should pick the doctor? I say I should. My husband says he should--because he will be paying the bill. You're going to settle this. Thanks. Irony.--Lady In Waiting

Dear Lady: Pick the doctor you want--and the sooner the better. If push came to shove I'll bet you could pay the doctor, but there's no way he could have the baby.

More Japanese Miniature Poetry

I have found another Haiku fan and writer. That's the Japanese miniature poetry consisting of three lines of five syllables, seven syllables and five syllables. The writer is Pat Thomson. And here is her offering:

My anguish unheard:
Alone in a crowded room,
Who will be my Friend?

I expect there is not a single one of us who cannot recall a time when we felt strangely alone in the midst of a group of noisy chattering, thoughtless human beings — unready to open up their ranks to the solitary strangers — us!

Thank you Pat, for letting us share your thought.

Dear Doris: I started getting scabs on my ear lobes about a year ago, when I used to wear earrings, all the time, at work. They got so sore that I stopped wearing earrings altogether and they eventually healed up.

Now, I've started wearing earrings again and I get scabs now and then.

I am very fond of earrings, and I don't feel dressed up without them. But, I can't even wear them when I have to.

Is there any ointment on the market that would be helpful?

Anxious.

Dear Anxious: It sounds pretty likely that the earrings are doing it, doesn't it? A skin specialist is the person who could tell you for sure.

Another woman who had this trouble solved it by painting all her earrings with clear nail enamel. She liked the effect so well she now paints all her costume jewelry with nail enamel, and it keeps it bright and untarnished.

When she takes off the earrings she rubs the lobes of her ears with rubbing alcohol. She can now wear whatever jewellery she likes, any time, without any skin reaction.

Worth trying isn't it? But keep earrings light in weight.

Dear Doris: The "Persian Kitten" is delightful: gave me a good laugh.

We always had a dog and a cat in my childhood home. Nothing special, but "special" to us children. I was age 10 when my mother procured a basket bed in the bathroom upstairs for our cat, almost ready to deliver kittens.

The children visited the bathroom often, but, I was the lucky one to see them being born!

Always Lucky.

Dear Always: I suspect your good cheer has some connection with your reliable "good luck". Glad you enjoyed the Persian Kitten. A good laugh is like medicine.

And what a privilege to see those little kittens being born!

Ford Faces Hard Choices To Shape Drifting Society

WASHINGTON (CP) — As soon as Gerald Ford clumps the snow from his ski boots after a year-end family holiday in the Colorado Rockies, he'll find a different kind of chill awaiting—the cold realities of political life at the White House in 1975.

In relatively short order—within the New Year, indeed—the 61-year-old president faces a series of hard choices which, for better or worse, will affect the tone and lifestyle of a society that seems increasingly adrift and disoriented.

Among the priorities:

—Picking from a basketful of recommendations on energy, most of them prickly with controversy, to develop a long-delayed program that makes energy - saving measures with development of alternative fuel sources for the United States.

—Trying to choose from the din of conflicting advice the kind of economic course to steer between the equally perilous shoals of inflation and recession.

—Shuffling out the unimpressive remnants of Richard Nixon's cabinet and staff, spending early the Independence Day holidays and a few subs are untarnished by association with the former president.

—Devising a workable relationship with an arrogant and intractable Congress, its newly-expanded Democratic majority flushed by liberal successors and by ambitious veterans hungry for Ford's job.

There are many in Washington who doubt that Ford as either able or willing to cope with problems.

Eight months as vice-president and less than 130 days in the White House have served to confirm most of the early assessments about Ford and the traits he would bring to the presidency, both good and bad.

His reputation for personal integrity survives, despite the lasting indignation aroused by his decision to give Nixon a blanket pardon.

He is, by wide consensus, a man without a shred of pretension or self-regard. Here than most of his recent predecessors, he is open to questions and criticism from Congress, public and press. His frankness and straight talk impress foreign visitors.

But critics and friends alike are chagrined that Ford's important decision to keep made as president, by his own account, was the reinstation of Nelson Rockefeller to be vice-president—a choice that provoked an ultimately recision with the Rockefeller millions at a time when national problems begged for attention.

Even some long-time Republican friends believe Ford has failed to appreciate the need for forceful direction on the economic front.

His restless travels around the U.S. and abroad are seen as a misuse of presidential energy. Said Republican Senator Barry Goldwater: "I think it would be a good thing for the country if Air Force One were put in the hangar and kept there for eight months."

The president is also faulted for the strange, strained relationship he has developed with his former colleagues in Congress, talking tartly with the leadership in private, then wagging bitter and often hypocritical public praise on both sides.

He received the patient for "an improvement in adjustable and washable straps for garments."

In his patent application, Clemens said: "My invention consists of an adjustable and detachable elastic strap for vests, pantaloons and other garments requiring support. It is obvious that my adjustable strap may be made non-elastic as well as elastic without departing from my invention but I prefer to make them elastic."

FRAMES MISSING

(AP) — It was the unkindest cut of all. Paintings worth $35,000 were returned to their owner, Ivan Generalic, by an anonymous thief. The paintings, all of which are valuable, were there, undamaged—but all their frames were missing.

Mark Twain Less Famous As Inventor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Historical Mark Twain had a less publicized career as an inventor.

A patent granted in 1871 to the author of Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn under his real name of Samuel L. Clemens has been discovered by the Intellectual Property Owners Inc., a non-profit group devoted to creating public awareness of the importance of a reliable patent system.

Alberta Oldtimers Won't 'Vegetate'

EDMONTON (CP) — Most pensioners want to contribute to their community and are not looking for a handout, says the president of the Alberta Government Retired Civil Servants' Society.

"Because we are retired doesn't mean that we sit back and say the world owes us a living," says 67-year-old Walter Leeb. "We feel that in many ways we still can contribute to our community and to man."

Mr. Leeb, who worked with the Alberta Liquor Control Board for 18 years before retiring, said in an interview that pensioners should not automatically be classified as only akin to church-related community work.

"We have many top former civil servants who have expertise in different areas," Mr. Leeb said. "They shouldn't be wasted. They should be available to the community."

Mr. Leeb said society members are available to do research and help conduct surveys for various community organizations.

"Because you are a senior citizen doesn't mean you have to rot and vegetate."

The society has been in operation for about 2 years with most of the emphasis placed on social functions for its 800 members.

The direction has changed recently with the society talking about a more active role in pushing for changes in the provincial pension system and helping civil servants make the transition to a full-time job to retirement.

Mr. Leeb said the society, which receives substantial financial support from the Civil Service Association of Alberta, wants representation on the five-member provincial public service pension board which administers pension payments.

"If we had a man on the board his voice would be considered because he would know he has a group of people behind his actions," said Mr. Leeb.

"Our man would be able to tell the board about individual circumstances which would influence their judgments in dealing with individual cases."

Car Lands On Porch

Albert Franklin Sherman of 77 Wright Ave. had an unexpected visitor for Christmas. About 3 p.m. Christmas Day, police report a car driven by Bruce Wyrie, 17, of Prince of Wales Dr., ran into Mr. Sherman's house, causing about $200 damage to the front porch and siding.

The vehicle involved sustained about $800 damage, police said. Chief Douglas Crosbie said the Wyrie vehicle was "northbound on Wright Ave., when it skidded, left the road, hit a tree and then the house. No one was hurt, police said.

Duck Count Help Asked

Prince Edward County residents are in a good position to spot specially-marked ducks and geese this winter, according to the ministry of natural resources.

Oldsquaw ducks and giant Canada geese are two species under study by ministry waterfowl biologists to determine their movements during the winter.

Little is known of the migration patterns of the oldsquaw, an Arctic-nesting duck that winters in large numbers on the Great Lakes. Last June and August, about 300 oldsquaws had yellow markers put on their bills at Churchill, Man., by resources ministry staff.

Large die-offs of oldsquaws, the most common winter duck in southern Ontario, have occurred inthe last few years. The species is particularly susceptible to oil spills and parasitic worm infections.

Sightings of marked ducks, including the date and location, should be reported to the nearest resources ministry office, in this area, Napanee. Selected geese are marked with red leg bands and should also be reported.

Blaze Under Investigation

The fire that gutted an apartment at 202 Station St. Christmas night is now under investigation by... Belleville officials and an Ontario fire marshal from Carswell.

Capt. Elmer Helm, one of three firefighters slightly injured fighting the fire, was to be x-rayed today to determine extent of chest injuries suffered when he was blown downstairs by a backdraft.

Cadet Band in Ottawa

Last weekend, members of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps Quinte Area Ensembles travelled to Ottawa to play at DZSCC Falkland's Christmas Dance.

The 20 - member stage band was started in September by Sub-Lieutenant P. Dale Jones and is made up of saxophones, trumpets, trombones, and a bass section, lead guitar and percussionists.

The cadets in the band are all senior bands in the corps and...since September have played numerous dances including one in Hamilton and the Remembrance Day dance at the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 99 in Belleville.

The band also played at the Boxing Day Tea Dance at the Armory and will play at Quinte Secondary School in January.

The public can hear them when the corps concert band gets together with Jazz Ensemble to play their spring concert.

It's Really Over

All alone on a snowback, this symbol of Christmas tatters of tinsel still clinging to it, is sad proof that Christmas is really over for another year. While many leave their trees up into the New Year, some are glad to get them out of the way and get back to normality.

The Big Switch

One of the busiest stores on Front Street this morning was Consaul's Frontier Shop, specialists in jeans and ten wear. Their specialty was an obvious Christmas gift favorite as streams of boyfriends, parents and recipients came in to switch colors, sizes and styles. "We go through this every year", said owner Bill Consaul. "Kids are really fussy about what they wear". Here Debbie Newell makes her swap with clerk Hugh Davies.

Merchants Say Fewer Gifts Coming Back for Exchange

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

If early experience is an indicator, Belleville's Christmas shoppers were smarter this year than in previous years.

A random survey of merchants who sell ladies' wear, men's wear, skates and bedding revealed today that returns of Christmas gifts for refund or exchange were considerably lighter than in previous years.

One exception was the Frontier Shop, specialists in jeans and teen wear. There was plenty of activity there as donors and recipients of the popular apparel items swapped sizes or styles.

"Last year," said owner Bill Consaul, "we had waitin-stall people in here. So far this year it's been comparatively quiet."

Other clerks and managers reported the same situation. "Not too bad ... Very quiet ... We've had a few ... Not nearly as many as last year."

One clerk may have summed it up when she said, "It's early yet, but looks as though more Christmas shoppers may have bought the right thing this year."

Walkout Not Expected At Centre for Retarded

PICTON — The administrator of Prince Edward Heights said here today there are contingency plans for staffing the provincial government facility for the retarded in the event of a civil service strike Jan. 1.

But Thursday night, G. G. Norman, Civil Service Association of Ontario general manager, said union members will stay on the job at provincial centres for the retarded and psychiatric hospitals in the event of a New Year's Day strike.

Robert McKenzie, Prince Edward Heights administrator, said today he hopes "such is the case".

About 35 employees are in the category that could be affected by a walkout, he said. But others among the centre's staff of 250 could refuse to cross any picket lines, he surmised.

Mr. McKenzie said he had instructed all workers that the threatened walkout is illegal and as individuals they must come to work as usual.

Contingency plans made earlier call for using probationary and unclassified employees to assist at the centre in case of a strike.

There are 416 residents at Prince Edward Heights and about 100 of them had been sent home for the Christmas holiday. In the event of a strike, they have been advised to stay home, said the administrator.

In Toronto, Mr. Norman said the plea of a mother who phoned him during Christmas brought about the promise not to strike at provincial and retarded facilities.

He was quoted as saying earlier this week that a walkout could lead to chaos at the institutions and blamed the "stupidity" of the provincial government.

Only when the government had talked of a contingency plan did the Civil Service walkouts at the institutions, he said.

Strap Still In Use

Nobody has raised the question recently, but in case anyone is interested, the strap is still alive and well in Hastings County.

If your children get out of their principal is entitled to wield the leather on the front of the hand in time-honored traditions.

William Davis, when minister of education, sent out a directive recommending abolition of the strap. Many boards banned its use, and got into trouble with parents and ratepayers who came down in favor of corporal punishment.

Hastings County took the middle road and retained a policy statement. The circumstances under which a principal can strap, always with witnesses, is fully laid out under provincial legislation.

Use of the strap is still the perogative of principals under the new policy statement laid down for trustees.

"In Hastings, the principal has always done what he thought wise in terms of rewards and punishment," said director of education, Eric Runacres.

Strike Looms
OPP Holiday Leaves Cancelled

Ontario Provincial Police officers, not directly involved in a dispute between Ontario civil servants and the provincial government, stand to lose their holidays if the dispute is not settled before the Jan. 1 deadline.

All OPP detachments, including those in the Quinte area, have been informed that holiday leave has been cancelled in case of a possible strike by civil servants.

There are more than 600 civil servants employed by provincial police as radio operators, mechanics and office staff.

At the Belleville headquarters, an estimated 16 civil servants would not report for work in the event of a strike.

Fewer are involved in other district detachment offices.

If a strike is called, an OPP spokesman said, off-duty policemen will be called in to man positions vacated by civil servants.

Builder Says Grants Will Stimulate Industry

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Recent federal legislation, which will mean payment of $200 cash grants to the government, plus capital-lien grants of new, moderately-priced homes, will stimulate building industry in the Quinte area.

Bob Marcotte, president of the Quinte Home Builders Association, said Thursday the grants will encourage potential homeowners to start building new, and "give the industry a good shot in the arm."

Barnett Dawson, urban affairs minister, announced Tuesday the grants, to be paid immediately, will apply to homes purchased after Nov. 1 and will be limited to one year to enable the government to "keep its options open" on the new program.

The cash grants apply only to buyers who have never owned a home before and who want to buy new houses, condominiums or co-operatives, which they must occupy by next Oct. 31.

Cheques are sent directly to purchasers, who may assign the money to the builder as part of the down payment. The grant will apply to new homes that have never previously been occupied and are at least 65-per-cent completed. In addition, the home must be the buyer's main residence and conform to municipal and provincial building codes.

The grants apply to mobile homes as well as other forms of housing, but purchases must be certified by the Canadian Standards Association, the heading is on leased land, the term of the lease must be at least five years.

Total purchase price must not exceed local limits set by CMHC. The limit for the Belleville area is $32,864.

Mr. Marcotte said there are between 35-40 single family lots in the city which are fully serviced, and about 100 lots outside the city, which are available at a price that would be built upon immediately.

"But nobody's buying single family lots," he pointed out. government is waiting for the interest rates to drop, he said.

"If people continue to wait for the interest rates to drop before taking the $300, they're duly fooling themselves," commented Mr. Marcotte. "They won't drop substantially.

He explained those who wait for lower interest rates for about a year will find an increase of about 10 per cent in building costs due to inflation. This means a $23,000 home would cost $2,300 more in a year.

The grant ... offsets the difference in interest rates," noted Mr. Marcotte. He said those who are contemplating grant applications to apply as soon as possible.

He said the grants being made available now will help the building industry during the usual slump in business. "It might help solve some of the unemployment problems," he added.

"I think perhaps the ceilings are too low," he remarked. "But you can see why the government is doing this for the middle income group."

Mr. Marcotte described a $32,000 home as a basic dwelling without the frills and extras, such as fireplaces and fancy outside finishing. He said this might hurt certain sub-trades who deal with the extras, "but I don't think so." There are always other owners who want added refinements, he said.

Similar grants should be made available for homeowners who wish to do home improvements as well, commented Mr. Marcotte. "I think there should be some provision made for that."

"There are a lot of houses around the country in disrepair — just look around Belleville," he said. "It seems a shame to let them run down."

Mr. Marcotte explained people are discouraged from improving their homes by high interest rates. "Some people are paying as high as 12 per cent ... or even 14 per cent ... for home improvements," he said.

Doctor Hired

A full-time doctor will soon be established in the Northbridge area, which is now has been served by a doctor at a Physician Services Inc. grant. Doctors from Kingston, under the direction of Dr. Richard Milne, have been staffing a clinic at Northbrook on a rotating part-time basis. The new, resident physician in the area will be Dr. George Benton, and the clinic now will be funded by the Ontario health ministry.

Ice Still Unsafe For Public Use

Snowmobilers and other who use the bay of Quinte ice for a shortcut to Zwick's Island are advised to be wary of the area between the island and the west of the city pumphouse.

A new intake pipe is being installed just west of the plant and although warmer days have taken a winter break to await warmer weather, the distinct possibility that ice will thaw and the ice will take longer to reach the proper thickness to allow safe travel overtop.

"Ordinarily, when they (snowmobilers) 'come down the cove, they go over that area where the pipe is," said a pumphouse employee. He said it would take several days of the low temperatures experienced over Christmas before the ice is thick enough.

A log was used at the site where the pipe is being laid to keep the spot clear of ice until activity stopped recently, consequently, an ice thaw now will be weaker than the surrounding surface.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie warned earlier this month that Bay ice was unlikely to be safe until early in the New Year. — if freezing temperatures remain.

A young skater has already fallen through the ice, but was pulled to safety.

Dog Takes Bay Dunking

A black Labrador retriever was retrieved Thursday morning from the freezing water by the north span of the bell bridge by city firemen and ambulance attendants.

Jack Finkle, a fireman at the scene, said the 80-pound dog apparently attempted to cross the ice underneath the bridge, and broke through about 100 feet east of the span.

He said the dog had to swim constantly during the one-hour rescue operation to keep its head above water, as it could not get a grip on the edge of the ice.

Rescuers were kept at bay at about a distance of 10 feet, because the dog had first brought an area of black ice, or a thin sheet of ice newly formed, explained Mr. Finkle.

Firemen at first employed ladders to try and entice the dog to climb out, but it could not find a secure footing on the rungs.

Finally, Stu Meeks of La Salle Rescue and Diving assumed the "cowboy bucheroo" role, lassoed the dog, and hauled it in.

"The dog was utterly exhausted," said Mr. Finkle. "They had to carry him to the police cruiser."

Police took the dog to Dr. F. G. Hamlyn at the 433 Bleecker Ave. for treatment. He said the animal was suffering from exhaustion but, he'll be all right."

The dog had no identification tag or collar, and its owner is unknown.

Mr. Finkle commented the dog's experience is good advice for people to stay off the ice in the bay. He said even supposedly-solid ice breaks under the rescuers' feet.

"It's a good warning to keep children away from there," he said, "it looks good, but it isn't."

Bareback Sliding

So who needs a sled or tobaggan? Try bareback sliding, the natural way to enjoy hillside fun. All you need is a thick snowsuit, and propensity a breaking pad after you get home to comfort a sore backside. Belleville youngsters found a convenient slope near the north end of Church St., Thursday, and demonstrated their favorite pastime for a photographer. Here, Mary Niedzwiecki, who turned 10 today takes a slide down the hill amid flying snow.

Crosbie Says Stronger Crime Deterrent Needed

Belleville Police Chief Douglas F. Crosbie is "in full support" of the stand taken by the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police calling for the death penalty for killers of policemen and prison guards.

The association renewed its capital punishment request in a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau this week. Copies of the telegram also sent to Justice Minister Otto Lang and Solicitor General Warren Allmand.

The new calls for the execution of murderers of police officers and prison guards, but the federal cabinet has commuted all death sentences since 1963.

"Either the law should be changed or the law should be enforced," Chief Crosbie said. "As it is now, it's meaningless. I feel we need a stronger deterrent."

The chief said he had always agreed with the association's 1971 brief that urged a consistent policy of dealing with killers of police officers or prison guards.

The association's telegram said, in part: "In the light of recent police killings in Delta, B.C., Moncton, N.B. and Calgary, Alta. among others, we must strongly reiterate the stand taken in our brief of January, 1973, dealing with capital punishment. The constant abrogation by cabinet of the death sentence imposed under present legislation has led to a virtual disregard of the judge-and-jury system and a mockery of our courts."

Dionne Keeps Wings Flapping

MARCEL DIONNE

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Marcel Dionne, who sometimes appears to be the only thing keeping Detroit from falling behind the expansion teams in the National Hockey League standings, carried the Red Wings on his back again Thursday night.

The stocky centre scored twice for the Wings and set up a pair of goals by Danny Grant, tricking a hand in all of his team's goals in a 4-4 tie with Minnesota North Stars.

Dionne has been dominating the Wings' sputtering attack all season. The Wings have scored just 106 goals in 36 games — nearly 96 goals, the two-minute total in the 18-team league, but have Dionne has shared in 59 of run his record against them, with his 21 goals and 31 assists.

The Detroit captain tied the score at 12:27 of the third period, scoring when Fred Barrett of Minnesota was off for holding.

Grant, a former North Star, scored his second goal on a poke shot to bring his career goal total to 200.

"Heck, yes, it meant something to me," said Grant of his performance in his second game against his old club, which traded him for Henry Boucha, who was held off the scoresheet Thursday night.

Te goals were the 30th and 31st of the year for Grant, who extended his goal-scoring string to eight games. He has produced 11 goals and five assists in his last nine games.

In Thursday's other NHL games, Los Angeles Kings downed Vancouver Canucks 5-1, Pitsburgh Penguins tied St. Louis Blues 3-3, Atlanta Flames edged New York Islanders 3-1, Buffalo Sabres topped Chicago Black Hawks 3-1 and Philadelphia Flyers topped Washington Capitals 6-1.

Backup goalie Gary Edwards was spark plug for the Kings, who moved into a first-place tie with Montreal Canadiens in the Norris Division with their victory.

Edwards plays in the shadow of regular Regis Fuchon, who has the league's top goals-against average, but Edwards, who saves Thursday enabled him to

Canada and Russia Record Opening Wins

By JOHN KOROANIK
The Canadian Press

Defending champion Soviet Union and Canada both had problems in the early stages of play Thursday but rallied strongly to record victories in the opening games of the world junior hockey tournament.

Canada fell behind 3-0 to the United States team but with the help of a three goal effort from Bryan Trottier went on to a 5-3 triumph in Winnipeg.

The Soviets were held to a 1-1 deadlock through two periods before scoring three third-period goals for a 4-1 verdict over Finland in Brandon.

Next games in the six-team, round-robin tournament on Saturday will see Canada meet Sweden in Winnipeg and Finland play Czechoslovakia in Brandon.

The U.S. team, made mostly of players from the Midwest league, had things working in their favor through the first half of the game.

But the Canadian team "settled down" and recorded four unanswered markers in the final period.

Added to Trottier's three goals were singles from Mel Swabey, Dale McMullin, Kelly Greenbank and Jim Mamer.

Larry Solvedi, Greg Woods and George Kryzer scored for the U.S.

"The hurting point, really, was when our lack of experience, especially defensively, started hurting us in the second period, and our morale went down," said the coach of the U.S. squad.

"We panicked a little and threw the puck away a little more. The Canadians experience really showed in the last period and a half."

In Brandon, Victor Khatulev scored twice for the Soviets while Seppi Ehrgartner and Boris Buzubonov getting the others. Jouni Rinne scored for Finland.

But Soviet coach Yuri Morozov, speaking through an interpreter, said he was not satisfied with his team's performance. He said the game itself was "not rough," despite the 12 penalties handed out, six to each team.

Finland's assistant coach Simon Eza said the game would have been much rougher in a smaller rink.

"I should have been rougher," he said, adding the contest was a typical European clash with plenty of high sticks, especially in the corners.

The Soviet Union outshot the Finns 30-23 with the margin in shots coming in the third period when they outshot Finland 14-6.

Russian Wings Soar Over Nighthawks

NEW HAVEN (AP) — The Wings of the Soviet Union defeated New Haven Nighthawks of the American Hockey League 6-4 Thursday night in the first of an eight-game United States series.

The Wings tied the game 3-3 with one minute gone in the second period on a power play goal by Aleksandr Bodunov. Lacher in the period, added Konstantin Klimov and Vladimir Repelov gave the Wings a 5-3 lead.

Each team scored once more in the final period.

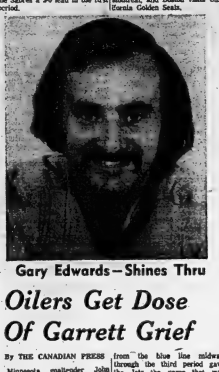
The Nighthawks took the lead with only 25 seconds gone in the game with a goal by Walt Lecuyer. But Sergei Kosov tied the score less than a minute later.

New Haven's Dennis Giannini put Bob Cook increased the New Haven advantage to 3-1 before Vjacheslav Anisin scored the first of four straight goals for the Wings.

New Haven's Rick Kessell and Gennadi Mashev traded goals in the final period.

Smythe Division-leading Canucks to 9-1-2.

Bob Berry, Dan Maloney, Frank St. Marseille, Wilsey Wiebo and Mike Murphy were the Los Angeles scorers.



Tim Ecclestone scored a short-handed goal on a play started by goalie Dan Bouchard to give the Flames their win.

Buffalo swarmed over the Hawks, matching Chicago's game total with 18 shots on goal in the first period. Larry Carriere and Gil Perreault gave the Sabres a 2-0 lead in the first period.

The win increased Buffalo's lead over second-place Boston to nine in the Adams Division to seven points with its 19th win in 37 home games.

The Flyers brought out a crowd of 18,350 out at Landover, Md., to see the Capitals lose their fifth in a row and the Flyers extend their unbeaten streak to 13 games with the help of a pair of goals by Bobby Clarke.

Tonight, the Sabres visit New York Rangers, the Wings are at Montreal, and Boston visits California Golden Seals.

Oilers Get Dose Of Garrett Grief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Minnesota goaltender John Garrett sent Cleveland Crusaders away mumbling to themselves Thursday night.

The 23-year-old rookie blocked 37 shots for the Fighting Saints in a 5-1 win over the Oilers in a World Hockey Association game before a crowd of 13,300 at Edmonton Coliseum.

Garrett, who played for Richmond Robins of the American Hockey League last season, lost his shutout in the first period when Ron Climie beat him on a rebound of Barry Long's shot while Edmonton had a man advantage.

In contrast, Edmonton goalies Jacques Plante and Chris Worthy faced only 19 shots, but gave up two goals for Don Tannahill and one each by Mike Walton, Gordon Gallant and Mike Antonovich.

General manager Bill Hunter announced a news conference today to discuss centre Ron Richard's announcement he will retire unless he is traded. Richard came to Edmonton from Cleveland Crusaders in a trade for Jim Harrison early this season.

Meanwhile, the future of Chicago Cougars remained clouded. The Cougars are scheduled to play the Toros in Toronto tonight before calling off Thursday night's home game against Cleveland.

Team president Dennis Murphy was in Chicago Thursday to sell as many shareholders Chicago Cougar owners Jordan and Walter Kaiser and a group headed by Chicago player-coach Pat Stapleton that has been trying to buy the team.

There were no announcements from Murphy or the shareholders meeting in the talks.

The Cougars have been drawing poorly in Chicago. The Stapleton group entered the picture after earlier reports the club would move to Baltimore.

In other games Thursday, Vancouver Blazers thumped Michigan Stags 9-1 and Winnipeg Jets edged Phoenix Roadrunners 3-2.

Michigan's Pierre Colin took a five-minute major penalty for elbowing Vancouver's Jim Cardiff while the 9-ers had a man advantage in the first period and the Blazers were leading 1-0.

By the time he emerged from the penalty box in the second period Vancouver had a 4-0 lead. Colin's effort cost Cardiff for 17 sit-ines.

Ron Climie, Vancouver's slick centre-ive win at home and the Blazers' fifth straight road game without a victory.

Mike Ford's booming shot from the blue line midway through the third period gave the Jets the game that was twice tied during the early going.

A record Phoenix crowd of 13,621 saw the Jets twice build a lead on goals by Danny Johnson and Anders Hedberg, but the Roadrunners came right back to tie on goals by Michael Cormier in the second period and John Gray in the third.

Defenseman Jim Darcy will be in a Toronto uniform for tonight's game with the Cougars. He went to the Toros as a completion of the off-season trade which sent Terry Caffery to New England Whalers.

In tonight's other games, New England is at Minnesota, Quebec Nordiques at Cleveland and Indianapolis Racers at Vancouver.

Now He's Tops As Manager

Bobby Charlton, one of Britain's most respected soccer players, moves to the two Chelsea defenders during his last game for Manchester United. Bobby retired in 1973 after 20 years in the game, and now is manager of Middlesbrough. His club is tied with Liverpool on points for first place in the English League First Division, but Liverpool has a slight edge on goals against.

No Gifts in Hectic First Division Christmas Soccer Action

LONDON (CP) — Liverpool gave its fans a Christmas present a day late, but it was worth the wait as the club moved to first place in the hectic English League First Division soccer race.

A two-goal performance by Brian Hall led Liverpool to a 4-1 win over Manchester City which highlighted a heavy schedule Thursday. Ipswich Town, leading the standings before the Boxing Day program got under way, lost 1-0 to last-place Luton Town, while Wolverhampton Wanderers blanked Everton 2-0 and Coventry surprised Stoke City 3-0.

The jostling race for the title passed the first round of Christmas games with six teams separated by one point at the top of the standings. The second round is Saturday.

Liverpool and Middlesbrough, 1-0 winners over Sheffield United, each has 29 points but Liverpool is ranked first because of a better goal average. Liverpool has played 23 games for 37 wins, six defeats and five ties and Middlesbrough has been in 24 for an 11-7-7 record.

Ipswich, Everton, West Ham and Manchester City each has 28 points, one more than Stoke. West Ham tied Tottenham 1-1.

A crowd of 46,062 cheered, mainly for Liverpool, at Anfield Stadium. Hall began the scoring and John Toshack and Steve Heighway added two more goals to give Liverpool at 3-0 lead at the half. Hall scored another in the second half and England star Colin Bell connected for Manchester.

Dave Armstrong scored the winning goal early in the game to give Middlesbrough the verdict over Sheffield. Middlesbrough, managed by Bobby Charlton—former World Cup star for England—moved into the top two places for the first time since winning promotion in 1973-74.

Ken Hibbitt scored for Wolverhampton on a penalty in an evenly-contested first half. Everton fought hard for a tie but Steve Kinden made it 2-0 before 23,120 fans.

An early goal by Tottenham's Martin Peters, former World Cup star, shook title-chasing West Ham. However, Jimmy Robson evened the score before the half-time and West Ham kept up the attack in the second half before a crowd of 37,882.

Luton staged the biggest upset of the day. Paul Futcher scored the only goal in the second half to hand Ipswich its first home defeat in the league this season—before 23,413 fans.

Despite the win, Luton is still last with 13 points, three behind Leicester and four behind Carlisle. Newcastle nipped Carlisle 2-1 and Queen's Park Rangers defeated Leicester 4-2.

Stoke, which led the standings two weeks ago, continued its downward slide. David Cross and Tom Hutchison each scored goals to give Liverpool at 1-0 lead in the second half before 22,345 spectators.

Two goals by Leighton James gave Burnley a 2-2 draw with Leeds United. Joe Jordan and Peter Lorimer were Leeds' scorers.

In the Second Division, Manchester United maintained its five-point lead with a 3-1 triumph at home over West Bromich Albion, while second-place Sunderland blanked York City 3-0.

Oilers Get Dose Of Garrett Grief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Minnesota goaltender John Garrett sent Cleveland Crusaders away mumbling to themselves Thursday night.

The 23-year-old rookie blocked 37 shots for the Fighting Saints in a 5-1 win over the Oilers in a World Hockey Association game before a crowd of 13,300 at Edmonton Coliseum.

Garrett, who played for Richmond Robins of the American Hockey League last season, lost his shutout in the first period when Ron Climie beat him on a rebound of Barry Long's shot while Edmonton had a man advantage.

In contrast, Edmonton goalies Jacques Plante and Chris Worthy faced only 19 shots, but gave up two goals for Don Tannahill and one each by Mike Walton, Gordon Gallant and Mike Antonovich.

General manager Bill Hunter announced a news conference today to discuss centre Ron Richard's announcement he will retire unless he is traded. Richard came to Edmonton from Cleveland Crusaders in a trade for Jim Harrison early this season.

Meanwhile, the future of Chicago Cougars remained clouded. The Cougars are scheduled to play the Toros in Toronto tonight before calling off Thursday night's home game against Cleveland.

Team president Dennis Murphy was in Chicago Thursday to sell as many shareholders Chicago Cougar owners Jordan and Walter Kaiser and a group headed by Chicago player-coach Pat Stapleton that has been trying to buy the team.

There were no announcements from Murphy or the shareholders meeting in the talks.

The Cougars have been drawing poorly in Chicago. The Stapleton group entered the picture after earlier reports the club would move to Baltimore.

In other games Thursday, Vancouver Blazers thumped Michigan Stags 9-1 and Winnipeg Jets edged Phoenix Roadrunners 3-2.

Michigan's Pierre Colin took a five-minute major penalty for elbowing Vancouver's Jim Cardiff while the 9-ers had a man advantage in the first period and the Blazers were leading 1-0.

By the time he emerged from the penalty box in the second period Vancouver had a 4-0 lead. Colin's effort cost Cardiff for 17 sit-ines.

Ron Climie, Vancouver's slick centre-ive win at home and the Blazers' fifth straight road game without a victory.

Czechs Bounce Toronto Marlies

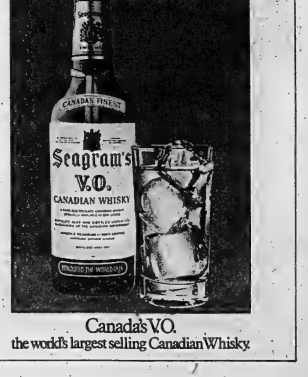
TORONTO (CP) — Catch-as-catch-can Olympics won their second game in three starts during their current seven-game Canadian tour, shutting out Toronto Marlboros 6-0 Thursday night behind the standout goaltending of Miroslav Kapoun.

The Olympics, composed of 22 players from eight clubs across Czechoslavakia, scored two goals 46 seconds apart in the first period, added another in the second and three in the third to defeat the Marlboros, leaders in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series.

Miroslav Krivacek opened the scoring at 11:27 of the first period, connecting on a three-way passing play with Marlboros a man short.

Krivacek took a pass from Zoenek Muller and lifted a high shot past Marlboro goaltender Steve Bosco midway through the second period.

Pavel Deraenek scored his first of two goals at 12:27 of the same period and Libor Havlicek added his first of two at 8:08 of the second period on an errant clearing pass by the Toronto defence.



Deraenek, Havlicek and Vaclav Sykora scored third-period goals for the Olympics.

In two previous games on the tour, the Olympics downed North Bay Trappers of the OHA Provincial Junior A series 13-3 and tied 4-4 with Hamilton Fincups of the Major Junior A series.

Due to injuries, Marlboros had two players from London Knights of the Major series in their lineup—Dennis Maruk and Terry Martin.

The Czech team is referred to as the crowd's 23 squad. The majority of the club is comprised of cuts from the Czech national team and several junior players.

Speaking of skiing, the Canadian Ski Patrol has some advice for enthusiasts of the winter sport.

The ski patrol suggests that knowing how to ski properly will help participants to enjoy the relaxation and challenge of the sport with greater safety.

In up to 40 per cent of the accidents reported in the patrol last year, the injured skier had not progressed beyond the very basic "snow plow" stage.

Approximately 36 per cent of all skiers injured had never taken instruction and another 13 per cent had taken fewer than five lessons.

Learn to ski properly and avoid becoming an unhappy statistic.

Minnesota Ready for Rams

Frozen Turf May Hurt

Minnesota coach Bud Grant insists he was trying to save the field, not his players, when he took the Vikings out of town and ready for this weekend's National Football Conference championship game.

The Vikings have been getting ready for their game with Los Angeles at Tulsa, Okla., since They were to fly home today.

Neither team was to test the frigid Stadium, Mich., site of Sunday's game until today, and then only if weather and field conditions permit.

"We want to be concerned with field conditions," Grant said. "And at this time of the year, there aren't many places we can practice in Minnesota."

Los Angeles coach Chuck Knox insisted the cold shouldn't affect the game. "You can't be governed by the cold, but unless there's a blizzard or freezing rain, the weather shouldn't be a factor."

Though Minnesota should be more acclimated to freezing temperatures, the Vikings depend a lot on Chuck Foreman and Dave Osborn for a strong rushing game — difficult on ice.

Los Angeles quarterback James Harris is more inclined to go to the air, whatever the temperature. But this indoor practice could prove a problem in reading one of the NFL's most complex defenses, which often employs a 14-man huddle with three defenders leaving the field before the snap.

Minnesota is favored by four points while Oakland Raiders are favored by a touchdown against Pittsburgh Steelers in game.

The winners of Sunday's games meet Jan. 12 at New Orleans in the Super Bowl for the National Football League championship.

Oakland quarterback Ken Stabler, who proved last week against Houston that he can throw the football from almost any position, will be back in Pittsburgh front line that led the NFL in quarterback sacks. Steeler defensive tackle Joe Green will try to test Stabler's gymnastic ability.

At the same time, cornerback J.T. Thomas will have the unenviable job of keeping the football out of the sticky hands of Raider veteran wide receiver Fred Biletnikoff.

Green, L.C. Greenwood, Dwight White and Ernie Holmes, the Steeler front four, have bothered quarterbacks all season—all sacks—but it was the Steeler offense last week against Buffalo Bill Greer, Bradshaw.

"Baby, they're arrived," he said. "It was the old Terry Bradshaw proved to everybody that he had finally become an offensive leader."

Thomas will draw the assignment of covering Biletnikoff, who caught eight passes for 122 yards last week against the Miami.

"He's not very big and he's not too fast," said Thomas. "But his moves are out of this world. That's his thing—moves."

On Sept. 29, Oakland beat the Steelers 17-0, but Pittsburgh rambled for 7 games, a 1,050-yard gainer this year, was 1,000 and Ric Gilliam was calling signals.

Stabler Doesn't Want To Be an American

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Bill Putnam, owner of the financially troubled Birmingham Americans of the World Football League, said in court testimony his team has been promised a $1 million contract and quarterback Kenny Stabler of the National Football League Oakland Raiders.

Putnam was testifying at a civil court hearing into a suit Stabler has filed, seeking his release from the contract with the Americans.

Stabler's attorney, Henry Pitts of Selma, Ala., said the team has been in arrears in payments of a $100,000 salary Stabler is to join the Americans in the 1976 season after playing out his contract with Raiders.

Putnam said the team paid Stabler half of the money called for in the contract was signed last April 1. The remainder, $50,000 was to be paid in a series of installments.

Pitts said, and Putnam confirmed in testimony Thursday, that the team defaulted in its September and October installments. Stabler's accountant, Jack Williams, Burnsed, said the agreement stipulated the $50,000 would be paid by Jan. 5, 1975.

Putnam said deferred payments were agreed to at Stabler's request, for tax purposes. He added there was no schedule for the payment of the money would be deferred.

Stabler was not at Thursday's hearing. He was in California preparing for Saturday's American Football Conference playoff game in Oakland against Pittsburgh Steelers.

Putnam said Thursday the Americans were some $1.4 million in back wages and bonuses to 150 players in the 1974-1975 season.

The hearing continues today.

Mississippi State's Bulldogs, 8-3, making their first post-season appearance in 11 years, start the day with a game against North Carolina Tar Heels, in the Sun Bowl at 1 p.m., EST, in El Paso, Tex.

At the same time, Vanderbilt, 7-3-1, meet Texas Tech, 6-4-1, in the Peach Bowl at Atlanta—the only one of four Saturday contests not available on United States television.

At 4 p.m., Brigham Young, 7-3-1, meet Oklahoma State, 6-5, in the Fiesta Bowl at 6-5 Oklahoma State at Tempe, Ariz., while East meets West at Palo Alto, Cal., in the annual Shrine All-star game.

All of which will sets the pace for the heavy guns Big Southern California, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Alabama, Auburn and Texas, who'll play later in the week.

Swedes Nip Hurricanes

THUNDER BAY, Oct. (CP) — The Swedish national junior team rallied for four third-period goals to defeat Thunder Bay Hurricanes 6-5 in an exhibition hockey game Thursday.

The victory was the second straight for the touring Swedish team. They play Toronto Tuesday.

The Swedes now head to Winnipeg to play Canada in a first-round game of the 1975 world junior championships.

Bo Brodberg led the Swedes with a combined total of three hat-tricks — a Thunder Bay Junior Hockey League team bolstered with the addition of about a dozen players, including five from Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior series teams.

Brodberg set up three second-period goals and scored two himself in the final period, knotching the winner with less than two minutes left in the game.

Glenn Johansson, Emil Mansares, Rolf Eriksson and Kent Nilsson scored the other goals for Sweden. Vern Stenlund, Mark Hartig, Gary Rutnak, Larry Ciekniak and Ken Martyn scored for Thunder Bay.

Stenlund was a pickup from London Knights and Martyn from St. Catharines Black Hawks, both OHA Major Junior clubs.

Rocky Menard, a goaltender from Fort Bay Twins of the United States Hockey League, almost saved the game for the Hurricanes.

Menard kept the Swedes, who trailed 4-2 after the second period after a scorless first period, from turning the game into a rout.

Ford Gives Girls Go Ahead

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — President Gerald Ford has signed into law a bill formally opening the Little League baseball program to participation by girls.

Press secretary Ron Nessen, announcing the action Thursday, said the league's federal charter is changed to refer to "persons" rather than boys. In addition, the law denotes a reference to the promotion of "manhood" among players.

The league sought the changes after being contradicted with a rash of lawsuits seeking to open the programs to girls.

Meanwhile in Williamsport, Pa., headquarters for the Little League, Robert Stirrat, vice-president of the league, said Thursday he cannot predict the effect of the new law.

"There isn't any way of assessing a thing like this," Stirrat said in an interview.

However, he said the organization now supports the law.

"We are pleased," he said. "We introduced the bill."

Only a "handful" of girls played on Little League teams across the U.S. last summer, Stirrat said.

He added he does not expect lawsuits claiming sex discrimination if some girls are deemed unqualified to play.

The terms of our charter merely say the girl has a chance to try and for a team," Stirrat said.

OXNARD, Calif. (AP) — Actress Helen Williams, 51, of Beverly Hills has been arrested and booked for investigation of drunken driving, the state highway patrol said.

She was stopped about 11:30 p.m. on Christmas when her weaving car prompted a highway patrol car in excess of the 55-miles-an-hour speed limit, officials said.

They said Miss Williams failed a sobriety test and was held in jail for 1½ hours before her husband, actor Fernando Lamas, posted $960 bail. Lamas had been riding with his wife.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Actor Ernest Borgnine, 57, sued a British film producing company and his former American agents Thursday for $4.25 million over a film deal which fell through.

Borgnine, an Academy Award winner, asked $2 million in punitive damages and $250,000 in unpaid salary from Action-Choice Ltd. of England for its failure to produce a film called Ronnie and Lee, in which he was to have played a major role.

In his also sued an executive of Action-Choice, Adrian Gaye, and the U.S. actors-agents association, Creative Management Associates, Inc., which arranged the deal.

Borgnine said he entered an agreement to make the film last August and refused other jobs because of it.

COPENHAGEN (CP) — Knudage Riisager, Danish contemporary classical composer, died here Thursday at 77, Agence France-Presse reported.

His studies in Paris brought him under the influence of Stravinsky, Debussy and Ravel, but he was noted for depicting specifically Nordic themes in his works.

From 1925 to 1950 Riisager worked in the finance ministry, while composing symphonies, concerti for the violin and trumpet, and chamber music.

He headed the Danish Conservatoire of Music from 1951 to 1957, and served as chairman of the Association of European Conservatoire Directors.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Western Hemisphere debut of Valery and Galina Panov, the ballet dancers who emigrated from the Soviet Union after a two-year struggle, has been postponed for a second time. It will be held Feb. 4.

The Panovs' originally were scheduled to dance here Dec. 30, but the performance was postponed until Jan. 7 after Valery Panov strained a leg muscle.

The date was changed again Thursday on the advice of Valery's doctor and because of problems in arrangement with the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, the Panovs' business manager, Maxim Gershunoff, said.

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Singer Engelbert Humperdinck has denied being the father of a local girl born to a Las Vegas model more than four years ago.

The denial came in an answer filed Thursday in a paternity suit filed Oct. 8 by Diane Marie Vincent against Humperdinck, whose actual name is Arnold George Dorsey.

HEIRUT (CP) — Farid el Atrache, a celebrated composer and singer of Arab popular songs, died Thursday night of a heart ailment, Agence France-Presse reported.

He was of Syrian extraction, had Lebanese nationality, and lived for many years in Egypt where he wrote and sang dozens of romantic and popular songs.

He was a member of an influential family, and related to Sattan Pasha al Atrache who led a revolt against the Ottoman conquests forces in Syria in 1925.

Farid al Atrache asked to be buried near his sister Asmahan, an interpreter of Arab songs who counted the late King Farouk of Egypt among her fans.

Your Horoscope

By Sydney Omarr (and Thomas Jerome Soncrant, associate

Aries (March 21-April 20) Conditions will be pleasant for you most of the day, but bite in the evening you're likely to be faced with a domestic crisis.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) This evening if you're out among friends, don't get drawn into a political or philosophical debate.

Gemini (May 21-June 21) You'd be wise to have an understanding in advance, of what you expect in payment for your work or service you perform for others.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Don't air your problems with your mate in public this evening. I feel it makes others feel very uncomfortable and spoil their fun.

Leo (July 23-Aug 22) You won't have much control over now, today's schedule as you're like. Toward evening pressures will crowd you a bit.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This will be a very pleasant day for you socially, provided you don't have to spend it in the company of less you're obligated to.

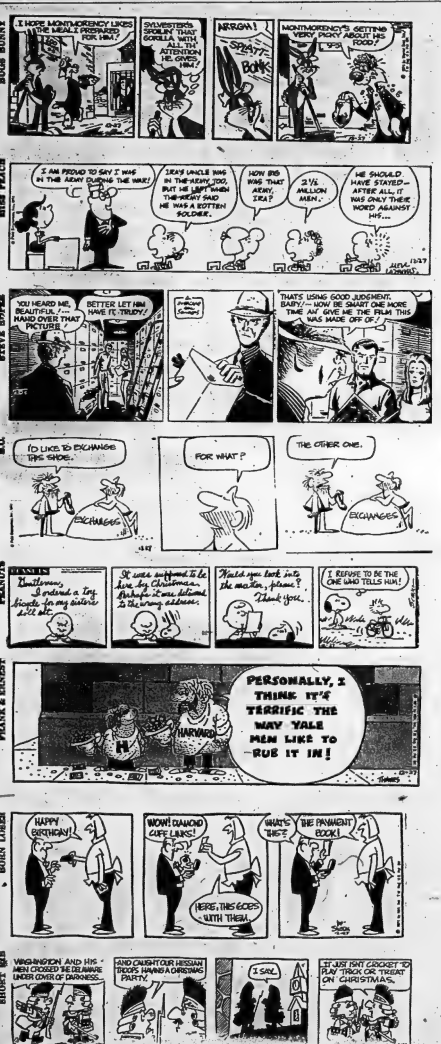
Libra (Sept 23-Oct 23) You will be tempted to do a favor for a friend today, in an area where you lack authority. You think you'll be backed up, but you won't be.

Scorpio (Oct 24-Nov 22) A pal of yours is going to get a little peeved with you if you see his point, but fail to give him the credit he deserves.

Sagittarius (Nov 23-Dec 21) One you're closely associated with always seems to expect more from you than she gives you in return. Try to keep the record more in balance.

Capricorn (Dec 22-Jan 19) You won't appreciate it today when others pay more attention to you than usual. Don't be so obvious about it.

Aquarius (Jan 20-Feb 19) Things that you're interested in and want to do for yourself will be handled very competently. Requests made by others are another matter.



Pisces (Feb 20-March 20) You will make an excellent impression upon others you meet today, provided you don't overdo on tea strong.

Opening lead—J♣

By Oswald and James Jacoby

South must put up dummy's queen of spades at trick one. It is not going to do him any good if held back. It doesn't do him any good when he plays it, but it might have. Now South ducks two spades but has to win the third one and it is up to him to try for nine tricks. He has seven quick ones and the best place to get two more is in the heart suit. If he can get them he will have three hearts, four diamonds and the two black aces.

It also is easy enough to get there if he starts by leading a low heart and going to dummy's 10. [illegible] queen and can do nothing better than return a diamond.

South cashes four diamonds and now we see why it was up to him to have led a low heart the first time.

He leads the nine and plays dummy's eight if West plays low. This leaves him in his own hand to lead a third heart through West's king.

What would have happened if East had held back his queen of hearts the first time the suit was played? South would have run off four diamond tricks and it would have been impossible for West to find three discards but would keep South from finding his ninth trick some way or other.

Ingrown Hairs Shaving Problem

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I know this doesn't seem like such a big problem, but I'm getting very discouraged. In fact I hate to go anywhere because of it.

I'm 21 and have had this problem since I started to shave. The hairs in my beard grow as a single and back into the skin. Before I had this problem, I had a very good complexion, but now it seems to get worse and worse.

I use ointments and creams but these seem to do little good. Sometimes it takes me an hour to shave because I have to pull the hairs out from under the skin. Will x-ray treatment help?

Do you have any suggestions?—S.C.

Sure it's a big problem. It's affecting your complexion.

Hair does not always grow out from the follicle. When the follicle is at an angle, it tends to bend the hair even after the adjacent skin (ingrown hair).

The problem gets worse under the jaw, a difficult spot to shave under the best of circumstances. There the hair grows in two directions and the many acute angles than on the rest of the face.

The problem can also be caused by a condition in which there is a thickening at the opening of the hair follicle. This thickening can be corrected by one per cent salicylic acid in a greaseless base.

I don't know of any commercial product, but your doctor can prescribe it. It's no miracle worker, but worth a try.

Close shaving aggravates this situation. Never shave against the grain of the beard. Use a sharp razor, even a miracle edge if you can get one. For your beard it is better than the safety razor and much better than the electric.

I would be wary of hair removal by x-ray, but a depilatory cream might be worth trying, providing it doesn't irritate your skin. This removes the hair at the surface of the follicle.

Electrolysis will destroy the hairs at the root and could be tried, if the problem is extensive and if you can afford it.

Otherwise, shaving with the grain and using a sharp blade is your best course.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My mother-in-law believes that when I tell her taking a laxative every day is very harmful. Would you please explain how dangerous that can be to a person?—M.M.

Depends on how strong the laxative is. Usually a daily laxative is not necessary. It should never be done without a doctor's knowledge.

If your mother lets nature take its course, she would have a movement, perhaps not every day, but every few days at most.

The laxative habit throws the normal rhythm of the bowel out of kilter, and certain laxatives can be irritating to the bowel.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it normal for a four-day-old girl to have a bowel movement as an adult's period?

I've been told this is a normal thing.—H.M.

This is not common, but it can result from hormones transferred from the mother to the infant in the prenatal period.

It is a form of "withdrawal bleeding" such as an adult woman would have when she stops taking female hormones. If this persists, of course, the baby should be checked for other causes.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I His walking barefooted and I am going to continue if it is safe. Is there any harm in it when they say it's dangerous and unhealthy?—E.R.

The worst hazard in walking barefooted is stubbing your toes or stepping on sharp things.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. consumer product safety commission has ordered new safety standards for book matches. It said there were an estimated 6,300 injuries involving the matches requiring hospital treatment from July 1 to Dec. 31, 1973.

CROSSWORD EXTRAVAGANZA

A lone South Vietnamese militiaman drinks the juice from a coconut as he sits amid the ruins of Phasc Hoi village, 62 miles northwest of Saigon, Sunday. Government reinforcements were sent to the village to relieve North Vietnamese and Viet Cong pressure after fighting broke out Dec. 4 along provincial Route 13 leading to Tay Ninh City in the northeast.

A member of the "People's Self-Defence Force" comprised mostly of young, part-time soldiers, sits in an outpost recently with his carbine nearby in a hamlet near the province town of Tay Ninh, 60 miles north of Saigon. The government division commander said the Communists had launched a drive against the city. (AP Photo)

Declare Truce

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Playboy and Playgirl magazines have stopped fighting in the courts. Their publishers said in a joint statement they have "stipulated to the dismissal of Playboy's trademark action and Playgirl's antitrust - counterclaim which had been pending in the federal District Court in Chicago." Hugh Hefner's Playboy caters to men while Douglas Lambert's Playgirl is aimed at the women's market.

Garner Ted Owes Estate

ANCHORAGE (AP) — Radio evangelist Garner Ted Armstrong owes Alaska $300 for violating the state's hunting laws, officials say. An arrest warrant was issued for Armstrong, who failed to pay his fine after admitting to shooting a moose illegally. The evangelist lives in California.

Coming Year May Surpass 1974 in Output of Strikes

OTTAWA (CP) — The reputation of 1974 as the year of the strike may be short-lived with an even harsher bargaining calendar facing union and company negotiators in the coming year.

Contracts for an estimated 1,200,000 organized workers expire in 1975 amid predictions of high inflation and increased unemployment.

Bargaining next year will begin in an atmosphere of labor militancy carried over from 1974, when a record total of time was lost due to work stoppages.

In the first nine months, 8.1 million man-days were lost because of strikes and lockouts, exceeding the previous annual record total of 7.8 million man-days in 1972.

Many of the most disruptive strikes, including some in the federal public service, were illegal and some occurred during the life of collective agreements as workers sought interim pay raises to keep up with inflation.

Among major contracts to be renewed in 1975 are those affecting postal employees, construction workers in Ontario and Alberta, Quebec and Ontario provincial employees, longshoremen on the east and west coasts, airline machinists, Thunder Bay and Montreal grain handlers, steelworkers at Sicico, Algoma Steel and International Nickel, paperworkers, textile workers and Quebec iron miners.

One bright spot is that 100,000 railway workers have recently ratified a one-year collective agreement to the end of 1975. It was the first time that the railwaymen — operating employees, shopcraft tradesmen and the running trades—had reached a new agreement before the old one expired.

Negotiations for a railway agreement beyond 1975 will begin next fall.

Leaders of the Canadian Labor Congress, which represents about three-quarters of organized labor, have said they are willing to talk with government and business about ways of tackling inflation. But they have rejected suggestions that unions should moderate wage demands.

With inflation spurring on belly wage demands, and a push from organized labor for cost-of-living allowances, major strikes erupted in many industries and in the federal public service.

In April, there were illegal strikes by postal workers over technological change in the post office and by federal airport firefighters who managed to tie up air traffic in several major centres.

Shipping on the Great Lakes was hit by a strike by 3,750 seafarers just as spring breakup occurred and by walkouts of ships' officers in late summer.

Both of these strikes, as well as walkouts by Vancouver grain handlers and federal grain inspectors, hampered the movement of one of the country's crucial exports.

There were major transit strikes in Montreal and Toronto, a firefighters' walkout in Montreal, woodworkers' and construction employees' strikes in British Columbia and a three-month walkout by Consico mill workers and miners in British Columbia at Trail, Kimberley and Salmo. The settlement there may provide a pattern for contracts in the industry in 1975.

There were also major strikes in the Quebec construction industry, the rubber industry in Ontario and Quebec and by auto workers at the United Aircraft plant in Longueuil, Que.

At the CLC's Vancouver convention in May, new faces appeared in three of the four top executive posts as a self-styled reform group led by national unions and the Quebec Federation of Labor (QFL) pressed for an ouster of candidates supported by established leaders.

Joe Morris, an executive Donald MacDonald as president, but the three other top posts were won by Donald Montgomery of Toronto and Julien Major of Montreal—both supported by the reformers—and Shirley Carr of Niagara Falls, who drew support from all sides.

But although the reform group won concessions, including tougher standards of autonomy for Canadian branches of international unions, the traditionally conservative building trades unions have tried to force the congress to drop the standards by withholding dues to the financially troubled organization.

Despite meetings between congress officers and American presidents of the international unions, the dispute was unresolved.

The building trades unions in Quebec and Ontario also came in for attention for their part in violent incidents.

Witnesses before the Ontario inquiry told tales of beatings and kickbacks while the Quebec inquiry, headed by Robert Cliche, led to the building trades of the Quebec federation being placed under direct trusteeship of the QFL executive.

Australian Prime Minister Vows to Rebuild Devastated Darwin

DARWIN (AP) — Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam walked the devastated streets of Darwin today and vowed that Australia's northern gateway will be rebuilt.

Whitlam said reconstruction might begin by New Year's Day when relief supplies are due. Half the city's population of 47,000 will be evacuated by Jan. 1, the prime minister said.

A cyclone churned out of the Timor Sea on Christmas Day and left 47 dead and about 80 per cent of the population homeless in this isolated northcoast community.

Australian, British, New Zealand and U.S. Air Force planes continued ferrying refugees from the city while other homeless families set out in cars across the desert to find lodging in nearby towns.

Whitlam, who interrupted a European tour to return to Australia, told a news conference in a field below a crumbling building: "It is heartbreaking to see that all the effort since the war toward building housing in Darwin has been destroyed.

"The government is determined the city will be rebuilt and restored," he said. "This is an essential port. It has always been Australia's gateway."

Water and sewer service were still out but some officials expressed hope they could be restored by late today.

The National Disasters Centre warned that outbreaks of cholera or tetanus remain a serious threat in the semi-tropical climate. Uncollected garbage and rotting food lay in the streets amid twisted palm trees and bombed debris.

A pregnant woman waiting to be taken out said:

"People don't care where they're going. They just want to get out of here. The wet season is about to hit and that will close all most of the roads."

Mayor Harold Brennan fought back tears as he told reporters: "I have seen Darwin grow for 40 years and I saw it go in the space."

Darwin was founded in 1869 as a base for exploring the barren but mineral-rich northern territory, but most of the city's growth has come in the years since the Second World War.

Civil Servants Break off Talks

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government and negotiators for almost 20,000 civil servants are still stalemated in their contract dispute, but government sources are hopeful further meetings today will avert a Jan. 1 strike.

One government source said he expected a meeting today despite the withdrawal from bargaining Friday by negotiators for the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO).

The source said the government has left the door open for further talks, but a CSAO spokesman said Friday that negotiators withdrew from the bargaining table because the government was not prepared to make a meaningful move.

Eric Winkler, chairman of the management board, said in a toughly-worded statement Friday night that he hoped the CSAO would accept the reality of the government position "act accordingly when the negotiations resume."

So far, the government has insisted that bargaining stay within the range of its last offer—an average 10-per-cent-per increase on a one-year contract WAGES IN FREE CENT

The association's last proposition was for a 29-per-cent increase over the two-year one year.

Association members in nine Ontario cities are scheduled to meet Sunday to vote on whether to accept or reject whatever the government's final offer turns out to be.

Chris Trower, CSAO chief negotiator, charged that Friday bargaining was only "a fencing session" and predicted a strike if the government did not raise its offer.

"We think the government has totally misread our situation and the anger of our members," he said. "The idea of a strike didn't come from union officials, but from the rank and file."

In his statement, Mr. Winkler said he was "deeply disappointed" that talks were broken off Friday. He charged that the CSAO made no serious attempt to negotiate a settlement.

"To think or hope that, given its wider responsibilities to the taxpayers and economy of the province, the government should move beyond the areas of this offer, is unrealistic," he said.

It is equally unrealistic to expect the government to send cheeh to the tables if an illegal strike, Mr. Winkler said.

"We are determined to deal with the implications of an unlawful walkout, if the CSAO leadership persists on that course."

Strikes by the civil service have been outlawed by the legislature and there are provisions for fines and jail sentences for those who defy the law.

day that, in the event of a strike, picket lines would be set up at provincial institutions for the mentally retarded, but the union would not try to stop volunteers from crossing the lines.

Elva Teller, a director of the Ontario Association for the Mentally Retarded, Thursday urged parents to cross the picket lines and act as volunteers.

Later, a spokesman for the association said a strike would be more likely to start Sunday if a settlement was not reached.

"There would be no way to hold back our people once the vote was taken," said Warren Gerard.

Egyptian Leaders Meet with Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy and War Minister Lt.-Gen. Abdel Ghany Gamasy arrived here today at the urgent invitation of Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev to discuss the scheduled visit to Cairo next month.

The Soviet news agency Tass said the two Egyptians were met by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and Defence Minister Andrei Grechko.

The Russians have offered new arms shipments to Egypt if Soviet military advisers are permitted to accompany them, and the timing of the trip plus Gamasy's presence in Moscow indicate that military issues will be a prime topic.

However, all mention of Brezhnev's trip to Egypt, Syria and Iraq disappeared from the Soviet press today, indicating to some observers that he might be having second thoughts about it.

Traditionally, the state-controlled press precedes any major trip by an increasing flow of articles on the subject, and this has been the case until recently with the Brezhnev trip.

The Moscow visit by Fahmy and Gamasy is expected to last three or four days.

President Anwar Sadat received the invitation from Brezhnev Thursday, but documents were not disclosed, but a foreign ministry source said Friday the trio should be viewed in the context of improving Soviet-Egyptian relations.

However, the source said Egypt still believes the United States can play an important role in settling the Middle East crisis.

Tass said only that the two Egyptians would be in Moscow "for an exchange of views on questions that are of interest to the two sides," and that the trip was "in keeping with an arrangement (previously) made." Both men last visited Moscow in October.

Relations between Egypt and the Soviet Union were clouded in July, 1972, when Sadat expelled 15,000 Russian advisers. He charged his allies did not supply enough military equipment for war.

Sadat appointed Gamasy war minister Thursday night, succeeding Field Marshal Ismail Ismail who was buried in a state funeral here Friday.

Death Toll Now 42 In Mine Disaster

LIEVIN, France (Reuter) — The death toll in the mine disaster in the Lievin coalfield has risen to 42 after one of the injured died in a hospital early today, officials said.

An underground explosion tipped through a gallery 2,100 feet below the surface Friday as the miners returned to work after a five-day Christmas break.

Premier Jacques Chirac will attend the funeral of the 42 victims next Tuesday, officials said.

It was the worst mining disaster in France since the Second World War.

One survivor said: "It was hell. A huge flame engulfed my workmates who burnt up like torches. It's a miracle I didn't never forget."

The miners were all veterans with 20 years of service. Many were the sons of coal miners who came from Poland and other parts of Eastern Europe in the 1930s.

The disaster, which left 129 children fatherless, was the second in the tiny town. A mining accident in 1963 claimed 11 lives.

Alexis Destruys, secretary-general of the state-run coal fields, told reporters: "We are completely baffled by the causes of the explosion. It's a real mystery because we feel th at all the necessary safeguards had been taken."

Coal-mine engineers said they believed the explosion was caused by a methane gas blow back. "This is most unusual—I would say extremely rare nowadays—that an explosion of such magnitude could occur over a large area," one engineer said

A team of workers went down the shaft overnight to check all parts of the mine before the morning shift was allowed to go into the pits.

The bereaved families spent the night huddled together beside the 41 pinewood coffins lined up in neat rows inside a building at the mine concerned. Many women wept over their dead husbands and one distraught girl sobbed over her fiance's coffin.

Amy Vanderbilt Plunges to Death

NEW YORK (AP) — Amy Vanderbilt, the final arbiter of social etiquette for millions of people, died Friday night in a plunge from a second-storey window of her Manhattan townhouse.

Police said Miss Vanderbilt, 66, jumped or fell from the window and apparently fractured her skull. An autopsy was scheduled for today.

A passer-by found Miss Vanderbilt lying near the front entrance of the 100-year-old brownstone building on the fashionable Upper East Side, shortly before 8 p.m., police said. She was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.

Police said Miss Vanderbilt's husband, Curtis Kellar, a general counsel to the international division of Mobil Oil Corp., and one of her sons by a previous marriage were at home at the time of her death.

Kellar noticed the open window and looked out just as the passer-by discovered the body.

A fine tomb of railroad tycoon Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, Miss Vanderbilt also claimed descent from the first Vanderbilt to settle in America, Jan Aersten van der Bilt.

Miss Vanderbilt wrote an internationally syndicated daily newspaper column, a monthly magazine column and books that sold a total of more than five million copies.

Murderer Escapes

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP) — Three prisoners—one a convicted murderer—escaped early today from the Indiana state prison, less than 36 hours after another prisoner escaped from a nearby prison farm and was charged with killing two women, police said.

Police said the men scaled a wall of the maximum security institution at about 3 a.m. and apparently fled on foot.

It was not known whether the men were armed.

The escapees were identified as Otha Hunt, 27, Anthony Fanicioe, 30, and Chuck Bailey, 28.

Bailey was serving a life sentence for murder. Charges against Hunt and Fanicieo were not immediately known.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Convicted Watergate burglar James McCord Jr. filed a $10-million lawsuit Friday against his original defence lawyers, including trial lawyer F. Lee Bailey. When the trial closed in January, 1973, McCord was convicted of burglary, conspiracy, illegal wiretapping and possession of wiretapping devices. He was sentenced to a minimum of one year in prison and has been free on bond pending appeal.

Nine Decorated For Cyprus Service

OTTAWA (CP) — Nine Quebec soldiers who served with the peacekeeping contingent on Cyprus will be decorated for bravery under fire, Governor-General Jules Leger announced Friday.

Six of the men won their awards in an incident July 22 during fighting between Turkish Cypriots and troops on one side and Greek Cypriots on the other.

Capt. Alain Robert Pierre Joseph Farand 26, of Farnham, Que., and Pte. Joseph Michel Charisse Ploufle, 20, of St. Michel, Que., will be awarded the Star of Courage, the country's second-highest medal for bravery. Both aided a wounded officer.

The highest award is the Cross of Valor and the third is the Medal of Bravery.

Four others who won the Medal of Bravery for their parts are: Capt. Joseph Normand Blaquiere, 27, of St.-Francois d'Assise, Que.; Col. Joseph Roland Michel Vitelia 22, of Maniwaki, Que.; Pte. Joseph Gilles Pelletier, 20, Let Methot, Que. and Pte. Joseph Mike Belley, 22, Chicoutimi, Que.

Two other soldiers won the Medal of Bravery for rescuing a wounded comrade while under sniper fire on July 20.

The two are Capt. Joseph Fernand Claude Gratton, 25, and Pte. Joseph Michel Gingras, 18, both of Quebec City.

Col. Guy H. Lessard, 42, of Montreal, also will be awarded the Medal of Bravery for protecting a Turkish Cypriot civilian when his life was threatened by combatants.

The decorations will be presented at an investiture at Government House. Date of the investiture is to be announced later.

A description of the incident in which Capt. Farand and Pte. Ploufle won their awards says a Canadian patrol conducting combatants out of a United Nations area in Cyprus came under fire and the officer leading the escort was wounded.

Despite a face wound, Pte. Ploufle began to give first aid to the officer. Capt. Farand arranged for covering fire and crawled over exposed ground to drag the wounded officer to safety, then directed the rescue of Pte. Ploufle.

Picton's Chief Pitt Remembers When

Town's Police Once Had to Call Taxi for Transport

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — When Picton police chief George Pitt joined the local constabulary in 1942, it was "just a job" with a starting salary of $80 a month.

Chief Pitt discovered a challenging career in police work and in 1975 will retire from the town force after 33 years of service.

He recalls the Picton police department of the 1940s as a three-man force with clerical headquarters on Main St., a taxi for transportation and an answering service provided by the telephone operator on duty.

Chief Pitt now is leaving an eight-man force equipped with a cruiser, modern communications equipment and improved working conditions.

Chief Pitt joined the force as a constable at the urging of the late Picton chief Bert Biddle.

The officer worked 12 hours a day, six days a week with most of the time spent in foot patrol.

"For the prevention of crime there is still nothing like foot patrol," asserts chief Pitt.

He worked as a constable with the town force until he was promoted chief of police at the death of chief Biddle about 15 years ago.

His long form of service permits him to compare police work then and now.

Chief Pitt, discussing changes in law, notes that "a policeman's hands are tied to a certain extent".

"There is no way a municipal officer on the street can keep law and order the way he could 25 years ago."

Chief Pitt says there was much less vandalism and incidents of petty theft during his early days on the force than at present.

When there was a break-in in his first years on the force the culprit usually could be found through systematic police questioning of a number of youths.

Respect for the police officer has decreased through the years in the chief's opinion.

He says when a constable walks downtown today there is little he can do when someone mutters "pig" or snorts as he passes.

"But back then — " recalls the chief remembering when different approaches applied to police work.

Chief Pitt adds he has never had a gun actually pointed at him in his police career.

At one time police constables did fire warning shots to prevent escapes, but today this action is not advised.

There was little paper work when he first joined the town force. Today there is a great deal and it subtracts from the time the constable spends in active police work, he says.

"Court has changed," remarks the chief. A justice of the peace now handles all charges under the Highway Traffic Act and liquor charges.

Chief Pitt considers this a positive change that has "speeded up the court".

"There is an old saying that crime does not pay but I think they (offenders) do all right," muses the chief.

"I am a firm believer in capital punishment," states the chief, discussing crime.

He feels the death penalty should be retained and not just for those who murder policemen. The murder of a private citizen should be regarded as an equally disturbing crime.

"I see no difference whether it's a police officer or private citizen," he adds.

Chief Pitt will retire Jan. 1., but will continue with the Picton police department for a time.

He and his wife plan to continue enjoyment of their hobby of antique collecting and the chief has expressed interest in banding.

New Grain Elevators Ease Storage Shortage

Grain elevators under construction at Cavan, near Peterborough, will have a significant economic impact on farmers in Hastings, Northumberland, and Peterborough counties, says Bill Hazel provincial soil and crop specialist for the Quinte area.

"We haven't had a good market for corn here, and the $3.5-million plant will have a storage capacity of 100,000 bushels," Mr. Hazel says. "It is combined with a feed plant. The elevator will be able to dry 1,000 bushels of corn per hour. The feed plant will produce feed for poultry, swine, dairy cows and horses at the rate of 1,000 tons a week."

A good example of what it will mean is illustrated by the operation run by Delbert Carr, RR 1 Carrying Place, and his 33-year-old son Owen, of RR 4 Trenton. This year they farmed 2,227 acres all the way from Prince Edward County and Trenton.

They have a $28,000 harvesting machine and can dry their own corn. However, they can't dry it fast enough, nor store all they produce. They were going to put in an additional dryer and increase storage, so the elevator will save a lot of capital outlay and time.

"Now, what we can't dry we will ship to Peterborough. It will take the pressure off, we won't have to float the combine down for five or six hours on a beautiful day," says Owen.

The Carrs are new to farming. Delbert was a carpenter, and Owen, who took civil engineering at UBC and left to go into construction work, formed a partnership two years ago. They formerly lived in Cobrington.

This year, besides other acres of corn. They own 627 acres, and rent or lease 1,600. They grow 30 kinds of corn.

The Carrs don't operate this enterprise alone. They have three fulltime employees, and David, 16, a brother to Owen, helps when he is not at Moira Secondary School.

"The banker thinks we are crazy for having so many employees," Owen says. "But you don't want to lose good people. Our method of pay makes us to keep them year round."

The logistics of such an operation are boggling. Does figures he will have to spend $10,000 for fertilizer alone this spring. "We have seven tractors, and this year for two weeks we seemed to be short of a tractor. We either had one too big or not big enough. We worked up a lot of land that we had to come back and do again because of the late spring rains," Owen relates.

Owen plans a year and a half ahead. Also, the Carrs experimented to find the best types of corn for their purposes. They grew 30 kinds of corn on 23 acres this year. Next spring they will plant 50 or 60 corn strains on 30 acres.

Straining for Dollars

One of many features at next month's Canada Farm Show is a Coliseum of the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, is heavy and light horse-pulling competition. Cash prizes are offered and entries are expected from Ontario, Quebec and neighboring states. Also on the program are tractor-pulling competitions with prize money totalling $18,000.

Tax Break Continued For Farm-use Land

The farm tax reduction program, which allowed the owners of farmland a 50 per cent rebate on last year's municipal taxes, is being continued for the 1974 tax year. The program for 1974 was announced jointly by William A. Stewart, minister of agriculture and food and John White, treasurer and minister of economics and intergovernmental affairs.

First introduced in Ontario in 1970, the tax reduction program is designed to remove some of the municipal tax pressures brought to bear on farms.

Changes in the 1973 program will be continued for 1974. The rebate level will be main-tained at 50 per cent and only those owners who fill out an application form will receive the rebate. Mailing of the application forms will begin in the first week of Dec., 1974. To qualify for the 1974 farm tax rebate, the applicant must certify that at least 50 percent of the 1974 municipal taxes have been paid and that the current farm operation produces farm products valued at not less than $2,000 in a normal production year.

Applications for 1974 may be made on or before Dec. 31, 1975.

If the assessment status of the property should change from a farm by reason of its development for residential, industrial or commercial purposes on or before 1984, the tax rebates are considered repayable with interest of 8 per cent a year.

Questions on the farm tax rebate program should be directed to the Subsidies Branch, Ministry of Treasury, Economics and Intergovernmental Affairs, 36 Wellesley Street, Toronto, Ontario.

Cherry Crop Insured

All sour cherry growers in the 1974-75 crop year who intend to market the crop co-operatively will be covered at an established price of 14 cents a pound. Under the sour cherry plan available from the insurance commission of the Ontario ministry of agriculture and food, a grower is guaranteed a certain percentage of his individual average production for the area. If his actual production is less than the guaranteed portion, he is paid for the difference at the established price.

In the plan sold for the 1973-74 crop year, the price ranged from eight cents a pound to 16 cents a pound, with a four cent - pound deduction if the crop was not sold. With the new minimum price of 14 cents a pound, this four cents a pound deduction has been eliminated.

In addition to the price revision, a new quality factor has been added. In the revised plan the yield to count where the crop has to be sold for salvage will be adjusted by a factor to account for the much reduced value of salvage sales.

Warbles Reduce Return from Cattle

"Control warbles in your cattle now for increased profits later," recommends R.E. Macartney, an Ontario ministry of agriculture and food livestock specialist.

Farm Show Jan. 29-30

Draft horse competitors from Ontario, Quebec, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York are expected to take part in pulling events for purses totalling $2,000 during the 1975 Canada Farm Show in Toronto Jan. 29 and 30.

Under the auspices of the Ontario Belgian Horse Association, the pulling competition will be combined with a sale midway through the annual farm equipment show centred at the Canadian National Exhibition Coliseum in the last four days of January.

Light and heavy horse pulls will each award $1,000 in total prize money, with $200 to the winner in each class.

The horse draw competitors will share the same specially prepared clay track that will be used for Canada's only four tractor-pull a feature of the 1975 show being combined with more competitors and more classes. Farm tractor pulling events which are U.S. will compete in 14 tractor classes with prize money totalling $18,000.

Live entertainment every afternoon, daily attendance figures and the Farm Film Festival are among other features of the 1975 shows that will bring together displays of latest farm equipment by more than 300 exhibitors representing more than 600 companies.

"Farmers from animals not infested by warbles are greater thrivers, they gain faster than affected animals," he explains. Successful treatment can mean an extra $15 to $20 return from each calf and yearling raised on pasture, and $10 return for every $1 spent on the treatment of feedlot cattle. In addition, processors pay more for meat and hides undamaged by warbles.

"The hooting of warbles laying their eggs on the hairs of the legs and underside of cattle causes them to run madly or rest," Mr. Macartney continues. "This may reduce a cow's milk flow as much as 15 pounds a day and weaning weights may be reduced as a result. In addition, grubbing increases the risk of physical injury to cattle and damages hides. Systemic insecticides to control the warble should be applied from September to December while the life cycle of the grub is interrupted at the correct time. They should never be applied from December to February because the grubs are in the gullet or spinal cord then and treatment can cause undesirable side effects.

For safety and success, the insecticide should be applied with the sprays, dusts, or pour-on that suit you best. Control should be followed exactly. Treatment costs between 30 and 60 cents a head - a small price to pay for the increased profits and trouble-free cattle bring to the producer.

Many Argue Need For Trailer Camp

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Despite the numerous dollars it would bring, a permanent 18-town trailer camp does not appeal to either Trenton or Belleville for them to favor making the trip.

If they don't make such a night-seeing trip, then the municipalities don't get the dollar. Money, it seems, is the root of the argument.

Camps that do exist, one gentleman notes, are not even listed in the national periodicals trailer enthusiasts subscribe to. In effect, he indicated, trailer owners, guided by these periodicals in their holiday planning, by-pass the Quinte area.

Trailerists will not go to an area where they believe no parks exist.

MORE

If this is the case, then establishing another camp site will not solve the problem.

Is this not the fault of the local trailerists, who, I am assured have learned the birds of a feather, in not informing their house organs of such omissions? If this were done, the normal visitations between parts of the country could take place.

And further, should not local merchants, through for example the Chamber of Commerce, also convince that the town is being grievously disregarded?

Figures indicate that 25,000 trailer owners camped near Brantford in 1971 left an approximate $3 million in that city. It's a substantial sum.

But the Brantford area is much more highly developed. Trenton hasn't a snowball's chance of accommodating such a caravan. A smaller-time caravan, yes. And it still would be to the town's financial benefit.

Whatever Brantford has in permanent trailer camp facilities, that particular caravan was a one-time affair.

Take a

On a more limited scale, Trenton can do the same.

Even if one's opinions are formed by looking through pre-trailer-camp glasses, one cannot help but be struck by the very likely high cost required to establish a quality camp site.

The town cannot possibly shell out dollars to any great extent. Much more pressing needs are also the agenda. A balanced set of priorities — cents over benefits — must be struck.

New Year's Look At Our Ecology

By ROSE HAWTHORNE

This week we're going to take a hiatus from our usual topic and which is the most appropriate to the time of the year — the matter of our personal ecology.

The term ecology, along with pollution are popular subjects today — along with two others that surprisingly seem new to a lot of people — the subjects of shortages and excesses. Which leads me into the subject of our personal ecology, so often polluted by an excess of useless or harmful relationships and so often suffering from a severe shortage of meaningful relationships — and with those I'm probably in dire need of fertilization and deep cultivation. And what better time to discuss the matter than at the start of a brand new year.

Try this idea on for size. In effect we are totally alone. We accomplish the two biggest events of our lives — birth and death — alone. And else does them for us. And in between these two events — we are still mortally alone, with nothing to serve us but relationships.

We start out with parental relationships and brother-sister relationship. We progress to teacher relationships, two-friend-girlfriend relationships, social relationships, husband-wife, child relationships, perhaps grandparent relationships — and we progress beyond that — we'll realize how alone we really are.

In lower words, all through this tenure from birth to death — we are really alone with nothing but relationships — of varying kinds and degrees. Close relationships, casual relationships, good relationships, bad relationships, stimulating or degrading, comforting or debilitating — but that's all we have — our relationships. And one thing more — we have choice. The choice to make as much or as little of any relationship as wish.

The question then arises, why not direct ourselves at every bad or destructive relationship and build every constructive relationship to the skies. Rather a startling idea, isn't it? To realize we have the power of choice over our relationships — but we have. Totally. It's as easy as that. It is ruthlessly prune out the bad or destructive ones as we think it is. It just takes a bit of nerve. And in the process, don't kid yourself that a relationship is good when it isn't.

But building the good relationships — that takes some doing — propagation, transplanting, fertilization and constant, never-ending cultivation. And here perhaps is the most important statement of all. If you are one of the very fortunate few to find a truly outstanding relationship, cultivate it for all it's worth and be willing to go to any length to maintain it in a vigorous state of health and growth. Because it is a rare flower indeed.

So if you're looking for a New Year's resolution that could be really meaningful, then decide to look at your relationships as you would an overgrown, over-crowded garden and decide to tackle it with two tools — pruning shears and a cultivator. And with the decision to use both thoroughly and completely — but with extreme care. Cut out the debilitating relationships as clearly and completely as possible and begin the slow, careful cultivation of those relationships that will enrich your entire personal ecology.

Perhaps I should explain that when I say we're alone, I'm talking about our mortal state on this planet. As far as an affinity between yourself and a higher power, that is a very personal relationship and one that I can only hope to go into at this time. Except to say, if you're deeply involved in gardening and growing, the chances are you have such a relationship.

And so, my wish to you for 1975, a profusion of good relationships — healthy and well-tended.

Youth Needs Meeting Place

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — There may be "no place like home for the holidays" but vacationing students with time on their hands perhaps can dispute the adage.

Although free skating was advertised this week at the Picton Arena, Centre ice and specially organized holiday activities will be offered, says Picton recreation director Richard Hall.

Mr. Hall says the regular recreation programs held in county schools must be suspended during the vacation as all schools remain closed.

Members of the Macaulay Mountain Ski Club may enjoy crisp winter afternoons on the slopes if the weather co-operates but this group is privately organized. All persons interested in skiing may join the club by paying a membership but this sport can offer holiday recreation only for those who own the necessary ski equipment.

Many students at loose ends during the vacation lack the ski gear required to enjoy the slopes.

Picton no longer has a theatre where the holiday burn-drums can be lifted by a movie.

There is no official drop-in centre where young persons can congregate.

More community recreation facilities are needed in Picton and Prince Edward to provide students with constructive holiday activity.

If, by closing the schools in the holidays, persons on recreation facilities also are shut down, then another look should be afforded. Possibly, classrooms and gymnasiums could be made available during the Christmas break.

With an eye to the holiday dilemma, Picton recreation director might consider one or two special vacation activities such as a community skating party on the ice at Picton harbor.

In the flurry of activity before Christmas it is almost impossible for everyone to attend the seasonal carol services and pageants presented in the community.

Possibly one or two productions could be "re-run" for bored students and other victims of the holiday lull.

Although New Year's Eve parties are advertised for members of the older set there does not seem to be a dance open to teen-agers.

Since many of the galas already "no minors" though should be given to a New Year's celebration intended for the young.

Greater consideration of holiday recreation for youth could improve the Christmas break for students and parents alike.

New Lease on Life

Formerly the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, the Prince Edward County museum has become a popular tourist attraction. The oldest church in Picton, this picturesque building decorates the southerly limits of town much like a chapel from a Christmas card.

OFF LIMITS TO DOGS

CHIETI, Italy (AP) — Pet lovers in this small central Italian town are upset over the mayor's decree putting downtown streets and squares off-limits to dogs. Mayor Agostino Boccioletti imposed the ban because, he said, dog excrement can pose a health problem.

11 DAYS ON BARREL

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — A Brazilian sailor spent 11 days at sea on a barrel before being rescued, the newspaper O Globo says. It said Inocencio Pereira Amaral was among six sailors on a boat transporting fruits to Suriname when the boat sank. He told the paper he survived by staying on the barrel until a British ship rescued him.

Warbles Reduce Return from Cattle
"Control warbles in your cattle now for increased profits later," recommends R.E. Macartney, an Ontario ministry of agriculture and food livestock specialist.
Farm Show Jan. 29-30
Draft horse competitors from Ontario, Quebec, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York are expected to take part in pulling events for purses totalling $2,000 during the 1975 Canada Farm Show in Toronto Jan. 29 and 30.
Under the auspices of the Ontario Belgian Horse Association, the pulling competition will be combined with a sale midway through the annual farm equipment show centred at the Canadian National Exhibition Coliseum in the last four days of January.
Light and heavy horse pulls will each award $1,000 in total prize money, with $200 to the winner in each class.
The horse draw competitors will share the same specially prepared clay track that will be used for Canada's only four tractor-pull a feature of the 1975 show being combined with more competitors and more classes. The Hungry . . .

CARE of Canada which assists needy children throughout the world has included a poem by a Mrs. Hulda Weber with its festive season bulletin.

It sums up poignantly some of the more pressing needs of the world's underprivileged children.

CARE's public relations director Bithne Amos has given permission to the media to publish the poem.

There is this child . . .
From what is it hiding?
It cannot outrun its hunger
On feet
Fragile as the drought-
dried stem of grain.
Boney skull,
Big-blown belly . . .
Eating on itself. . .
Little, One,
Famine dines well.
When I close
My eyes
You are such a small bundle
In a brown cloth. . .
Your stillness—
Is your shield.

Incidentally CARE, whose address in Canada is 63 Sparks Street, Ottawa, Ont. K1P 5A9, recently announced the allocation of $300,000 of food aid to India and Pakistan and $337,000 in self-help programs in Africa, Asia and Latin America. These programs stress food production in most countries and include water conservation, in Guatemala, rice production in Colombia, rural development and road construction in Lesotho, and agricultural credit in Belize.

. . . and the Abandoned

Another fine organization helping youngsters in need is the Austrian-based SOS—Kinderdorf or Children's Villages. The brainchild of a remarkable humanitarian, Hermann Gmeiner, it has been responsible for the establishment of these communities for orphaned and abandoned children around the world.

Superbly illustrated with color photographs, a booklet which arrived recently in this office gave some idea of the work being done in this sphere. And a further booklet just received indicates that Mr. Justice Emmet M. Hall is appealing through Rotary Clubs in Canada for help to carry on the work.

It is pointed out that more than a hundred sponsors have joined in this initiative, and several corporations, foundations and service clubs have helped, but there is a long way to go "before we can assist the needs of the many abandoned children who come to our door."

The headquarters of SOS—Kinderdorf is Stadtlerstrasse, 10a,A-6020, Innsbruck, Austria.

Land Use Study

It has been estimated that urban sprawl will take more than 200,000 acres out of agricultural production in Ontario by the year 1991.

All the more significant therefore is a report just released by James P. MacLaren Consultants Ltd. of London. It relates to development in Huron county — the first in the province to adopt a county-wide official plan — in southern Ontario.

For one thing the study recommends urban sprawl should be directed toward poor-quality farmland and farmers on prime land should not be given guarantees their land will not be forced out of production until a specified time.

Prime farmland near the edge of a defined urban area for example would be given up to 30-year limits, ensuring a farmer that his land would remain in agriculture "for the rest of his life."

Also significant is study director Stephien James' information — presented at a meeting of county council in Goderich — that he expects a major statement from the province on land-use policies within a few months.

Urban sprawl and the continuing loss of valuable farmland has been a source of concern for some time. It is encouragine that the government recognizes this and plans corrective measures.

Trading With The Enemy

Stamp Buffs Cannot Make Swaps With Cuban Counterparts

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

This columnist belongs to the Cuban Stamp Club in Miami Fla., even though he has never been to any of its meetings yet, nor met any of its members, largely Cuban exiles living in Florida.

But we have a correspondence mainly based on my efforts to broaden a collection of Cuban colonial stamps from the days of Spanish rule before 1898, which I bought in Britain in 1971.

I am trying hard to obtain covers of the pre-1898 era, that is stamped envelopes, official and private addressed to people, businesses and government offices around Cuba of the 19th century.

In exchange, I offered to send issues of what is called "revolutionary Cuba," that is Cuba since 1959 which are unobtainable in the United States because of the American-Cuban blockade.

But as Cuban stamp dealer in Miami told me, it's more than that, it's "trading with the enemy." He wasn't being anti-Castro. He was just referring to the nonsensical piece of American legislation that makes it a crime punishable with fine and imprisonment for trading with Cuba or in Cuban goods.

So no Cuban revolutionary stamps in a Cuban Stamp Club which has to ignore stamps issued in Cuba since 1959. The same was true a few years ago in trading with stamps of the People's Republic of China, also once considered to be "trading with the enemy."

That's my personal experience with this stupid act passed in Congress at the time of the U.S. Cold War build-up against China's entry in the early 1950s.

We now see another example of this act interfering again in Canadian trading policy, an interference we should cease to tolerate right now.

The Cuba office furniture division of Liton Business Equipment Inc. in California, in turn a subsidiary of Liton Systems Inc., a major U.S. defense department supplier, was told by its California parent company to turn down a $50,000 order from the Cuban for office furniture.

The Cole Co.'s Canadian general manager in Scarborough, an industrial suburb of east-end Toronto, was ordered not to complete the sale. He has said he will proceed with Cuban negotiations.

Liton Business Systems Limited in the U.S. never bothered to request permission from Washington to conduct business with Havana, but went ahead on its own and entered its Canadian company to cause its embargo.

Now we went through this routine a few months ago with the Canadian MLW Industries Ltd. in Montreal which had an order from the Cubans to build new diesels and repair old ones for the Cuban State Railway.

That caused a furore in Parliament, as indeed it should have done, with the prime minister saying the sale would go through as indeed it did. MLW Worthington controlled by Worthington Industries in the U.S., signed the deal after two of the U.S. directors resigned rather than break U.S. law by agreeing to Cuban business.

In effect, the law has been massively broken already by Argentina, where the government ordered the local manufacturing subsidiaries of Ford, Chrysler and the supplier Westinghouse Co. to conclude a $25-million deal with Castro. They have complied.

Our industry trade and commerce minister says he will introduce federal legislation to prevent this kind of interference by U.S. based companies. Mr. Gillespie, what has taken you so long?

"Any other experience besides 'reigning' Mr. Constantine?"

Services Needed Every Cent — Trenton Veteran

Dedicated Repair Men Keep Aging Forces Aircraft Flying Beyond Normal Limits

PETER ARMSTRONG of the Peterborough Examiner

The Canadian armed forces need every cent of a proposed $260 million budget increase this next year, according to the new chief pilot with Quinte Airlines, a 26-year veteran air force pilot.

Major Paul Hope, who retires from the forces in January to take up his position with the new operations out of Peterborough airport, said the military has been falling behind in its share of the government purse.

And, while the forces are well enough equipped to react to any government demand, said Mr. Hope, many of the country's equipment is old and in need of replacement.

The transport planes that flew Canadian troops and supplies into Cyprus on a UN peacekeeping mission earlier this year were "almost" giving their last gasps" he said.

"The military capability to react to government demand now is very good," said the 46-year-old Perth native in an interview.

"But the government is unfortunately slow in updating equipment, right across the board. In many cases it's the old chewing gum and baling wire situation in repairs. If we didn't have some dedicated repair technicians, we wouldn't be able to react as fast as we can", he said.

The Cyprus airlift placed "a severe strain" on aircraft and ground crews, he said. Although there was never any danger in Canadian lives from overworked equipment, the old machines can hamper Canada's emergency relief efforts, causing considerable delay in getting supplies in flood, earthquake or war victims.

"A few more transports could increase our react-capability," said Mr. Hope, who has flown the transports during most of his service.

He is taking advantage of a good offer in what looks like a good new career in private businessman" a year before his mandatory retirement from the armed forces. During the port two weeks and up until he is officially discharged in January, he is on leave of absence and devoted to the Diefenbaker-Stanfield-Otonbee Airways commuter service to Montreal and Toronto.

If is scheduled to begin any day now but soon as the federal government approves a landing license at the airport.

Mr. Hope will be moving his wife, Claire, and family up from Trenton, where he has been stationed, to a new home they hope to buy in the southwest end of the city near the airport.

And looking forward to it.

"I didn't want to go near those silver-making places like Toronto and Montreal based airlines", he said.

For a man who quite often spent six months of the year away from home, the regular and relatively undemanding schedule at Otonabee is attractive.

He will be in charge of training the other three pilots on the Beechcraft Baron, three-quarter million dollar turbo prop that seats 10. Right now he is testing it for fuel consumption and ironing out details of flight manuals.

Mr. Hope, who has more than 10,000 hours on the job as an air force pilot, and more than three million miles, has taken the plane manufacturer's course in Winnipeg, and feels ready to handle the Saunders ST 27 twin-engine machine under any conditions.

He is being awarded the Order of Military Merit for service as head of the Bisfran relief mission in 1968, that included Fyfoc into and out of an asphalt pitch-black runway under threat of air attack in Biafra.

He has been entrusted with the lives of MPs and cabinet ministers on regular military runs across the Atlantic and the country.

He has handled administrative jobs, and knows the frustration of low-calibred budgets.

The nation's military spending is "just at the breaking point now" he said. "Any decrease in the power of the dollar that is not matched by an increase in spending, and the government will have to sit down and work out new priorities."

"I look on the armed forces as an insurance policy. You pay the premiums hoping you never have to collect. It's a safeguard. You get what you pay for, too."

As the moment, the armed forces can respond well to peacetime emergencies, he said, like the search for two Moncton, N.B. children who were dead by death this week, or last spring's floods in Winnipeg.

He said that under "present circumstances, our NATO commitment is in good shape".

And he defended the country's involvement with NORAD and the United States in North American defence. "If our government decides to stay in, they need the military strength to have a practical effect. We have to have a strong voice, otherwise the U.S. will make the decisions. Do we want that?"

Crime News in Press Keeps Public Alerted

Ottawa Journal

The press is sometimes rightly criticized for sensational crime reporting. Some people even call it "morbid" when murders involving sex and gore have to be reported at all. Might they not be an inducement to other morbid minds to emulate the dead?

Such critics might have second thoughts in light of news from Moscow, where only offenses against the state, real or alleged, are reported in the press; where ordinary crimes such as holdups and murders are kept out of newspaper, radio and television news. In fact Moscow's silence began circulating mouth-to-mouth that a school teacher killer had gone loose in Moscow at night; that his victims were increasingly middle-aged women, whom he stabbed to death. A sinister aspect was the apparent lack of motive, for he did not rob or sexually assault his victims. By early November the number of murdered women was reported to be 18.

The initial absence of news about the mad knifer helped to spread terror among the people, abetting rumor and exaggeration. Then the situation finally required the authorities to admit in a terse statement of November 11 that they were looking a "man for the murder of two women and for attacking others." Nobody was reassured or believed. The victims were so few. The fog of fear is well described in London's New Statesman in a Moscow dispatch entitled "Iran the Ripper."

The killer was apparently apprehended in mid-October, but this was not announced, hence the public's need is one of insecurity and disbelief. Only the arrest of the suspect and putting its brief interest in perspective.

The lesson from that secret is that it is better to know the bad, from crime reporting, than to imagine what is much worse. All this is not to excuse any newspaper that panders to the public's taste with sensational crime news. But crime reporting does give the public to the people's right to know; and can even there is deemed essential measures to protect them.

Canada and the Great Tar Sands Dilemma

The Globe and Mail

The National Energy Board has said that Canada is faced with an inevitable loss of self-sufficiency by 1982, and only a shortage could develop as early as mid-1980. This would be true even if there were increasing supplies of oil from the Athabasca tar sands. The NEB is counting on the mining extraction plant every two years" coming on stream from the tar sands.

But will they come? Atlantic Richfield is experiencing withdrawing its 30 per cent interest in Syncrude Canada Ltd. of Edmonton, which expected to have a plant producing 125 000 b.r.e.s a day by 1978, if it departs the project could fold. Esso Ltd. has also announced in October that it was putting its half interest in the 200 acres of the sand up for sale.

If everything else were in perfect harmony, there is no question that some companies would still be giving second thoughts to such huge investments because of rising costs. The original cost of Syncrude was estimated to be about $1 billion; it has grown to $2.6 billion.

But everything else is in a state of disharmony. Nobody could argue that the situation has not been exacerbated by the lack of clear direction the energy policy here in Canada.

Fatalities relating to motor vehicle collisions are contained in the 1973 Highway Traffic Collision Report released today.

The 1973 statistics show slight increases in number of serious injury over 1972. There were 160,021 reported motor vehicle collisions — an increase of 1.9 per cent, as compared to the 157,021 reported from the previous year.

Motor vehicle related property damage increased 11.3 per cent from $135.7 - million in 1972 to $171.1-million in 1973, while collisions involving only passenger damage increased from 134,333 to 138,081

The increased popularity of bicycles and motorcycles has continued the trend toward two-wheeled vehicles. Total fatalities involving bicyclists up 11.3 per cent, and motorcycle drivers up 27.3 per cent.

Mr. Rhodes concluded, "Nearly 8 per cent of those fatally injured during 1973 were under 21 in 19 year age bracket We must, and will, increase our traffic safety programs to ensure that the young people entering made increasingly aware of the responsibilities of driving safely and obeying the rules of the road."

Valuable Diamond Saved

South African Tourist Corporation

KIMBERLEY — A 616-carat diamond, the tenth biggest in the world, that was found on the nick of time from destruction by workmen, is to be put on permanent display at De Beers Consolidated Mines Ltd. Africa's Kimberley Mine headquarters.

Thanks for saving it are due Abel Maretala who was on duty in the treatment plant when the Dutoitspan mine when he noticed the small blue stone at the bottom of a bag's egg, moving along the conveyor belt on its way to the crushers. He quickly scooped it up and was rewarded with a gift of the equivalent of $8,500 and about $15,000!.

The diamond is the largest ever found in Kimberley. Unlike other diamonds however, the 548 is at it is called, will remain in its natural state, uncut and unpolished.

Carat, by the way, means different things to different people. In connection with diamonds and gems it is:

Used with diamonds, it refers to the weight. There are 142 carats to the ounce, hence the 616 diamond weighs 4 one-third ounces.

Used with gold, it is a measure of purity, pure gold being 24 carats. A 14-carat gold bracelet, therefore, would be two-quarters gold and one-quarter some other metal.

The word "carat" derives from the Italian carato, the Arabic "qirat," or the Greek keration, the name meaning "the fruit of the carob tree". The Greeks used the seeds of it as one unit to balance the scales in Oriental bazaars.

Lotteries

The Editor:

Sir:

When considering these Olympic lotteries a thought occurred to me.

Could the additional prize of $100,000 that is being offered be converted into say 10 lb. bags of sugar.

Lottery prizes would, I believe, be vastly appealing to the public, and would at the same time relieve the sugar manufacturers of the large stocks of this commodity which we are told is accumulating in their stores.

Surely this would be a worthwhile project to put in motion during this season of universal good will.

There's Nothing Like Snow for Good, Clean Fun!

Introducing SNOW, the perfect play material!

Clean and soft, crisp and white, SNOW is edible when fresh, soluble when warm, wipes off clothes and boots without a trace.

Children can build with SNOW, burrow in SNOW, slide on SNOW and hide in SNOW.

They can make tracks in it, they can pack it into balls, and their cats catch it on their tongues as it falls from the sky.

And best news of all, folks, SNOW is free!

Christmas holidays are ideal for parents to have fun with their children.

Inside, the new toys and games can make the hours fly by for kids and adults both. Outside, the snowfall brings the opportunity for a variety of activities, that can be shared by young and old alike.

Dressed warmly, and fortified by hot chocolate from a pocket thermos, the whole family can spend memorable afternoons together.

There's no equipment required, no skis or skates or snowmobiles, and no special outfits. Perhaps best of all, no one needs to be skilled or experienced to have a wonderful time.

One point to remember: You need lots of room to have fun in the snow. If you have a small yard, go to one of the city's parks, or drive to a nearby conservation area.

Be an Angel

Making angels in the fresh-fallen snow, is something that almost every Canadian has done in his childhood. If you're a grown-up here's your chance to do it again.

You must fall backwards over an carefully into unmarked snow. Once you're down, swing your arms up from your sides in your head to make wings in the snow, and spread your legs to make a skirt.

Now, the tricky part. Get yourself up out of the angel indentation without leaving any mitt prints. You may need a hand from someone in your feet to tug you up and out.

If you're with the whole family, you may want to make a contest out of angel-making, and award a candy to the most successful snow angel. Or, you may want to make a pretty grouping of angels on a hillside, or play a game of tag in which you are safe at long as you make it to an angel "base".

But just about any object will serve for marking the face of your snowman. Bits of vegetables, scraps of wood or material all can be used. A curved peel of apple or tangerine makes a lovely bright mouth.

A whole family of snowpeople would be a nice Sunday afternoon project for you and your children. Even if the snow is too crisp to be good packing snow, you can use a pail or two of water to improve the consistency. Or, if you live near a freshly plowed road or street, you may find large chunks of ice and snow that can be shaped into the base and torso of your snowman.

If you're an imaginative family, make a contest of snow sculpture. Make animals, monsters and castles from the snow in your yard.

Make a maze

Remember the game called Fox and Geese? It's a good way for Mom and Dad to get some exercise, and it makes exciting fun for the children.

There are three forms this game can take.

The first method is to stamp down a trail, starting with a large a circle as you can, and continuing to wind around and around in gradually smaller circles, leaving a space between the tracks that is wide enough for two people to walk in.

What you are left with when you finish is a eccentric maze, through which the fox — the person who is "it" — must chase the geese — those who are trying to avoid being caught — with none of the players stepping outside the snowy spaces between the tracks.

The fox cannot reach across the tracks to touch the geese, he must be in the same track. The only safe point for geese is "home base" in the very centre.

The second method involves laying out a track as well, but it takes any shape you like, incorporating as wide an area as possible. In this game, players must only use the stamped-down track, along which there are "home bases". There is always one less base than there are geese. As the fox chases the geese along the track, they may jump into a base, but since only one player is allowed on a base at one time, the resident goose must quickly vacate and run from the fox to the next "safe spot".

The third method of making the fox and geese snow game is to stamp out a large circle, and then stamp out spokes to a central hub, the home base. What you have when you're finished is an enormous wagon wheel. The fox must chase the geese only on the wheel rim and the spokes, and no players must step from the tracks.

Build a Fort

If the snow is good packing snow, there's no question — you must build a snow fort!

You can divide the family into paipers and hailders, and if there, are enough of you, the game becomes more thrilling if there's a competition between two sets of fort makers.

Cautioning the children not to pack their snowballs too hard — as icy snowball is a painful and even harmful weapon — get a good supply of snowballs in your fort before the "war" begins between two forts.

If there's only one fort, then you can invent games to suit the day. A snow fort can be a shelter for Arctic hunters, or the ice palace of the queen of the snowflakes.

At the end of the afternoon, if you can find a patch of fresh snow, bring it to the porch, ready for making "snow taffy".

Cool Taffy

Once all the snowsuits are off and everyone is warm and dry, mix up some taffy on the stove, and pour it on the tray of clean snow to cool Some people let it cool till brittle, others begin to pull it into long strands as soon as it is cool enough to handle.

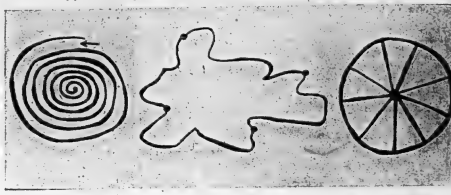
Snow Taffy (1)
one cup maple syrup
½ cup brown sugar
¼ cup water
one tbsp. butter
one-eighth tsp cream of tartar

Combine all ingredients, and boil until a candy thermometer reads 260 degrees, or the candy forms a ball in cold water. Then pour on the snow.

Snow Taffy (2)
one cup sugar
one tbsp. vinegar
¼ cup corn syrup
¼ up water
¼ tsp. baking soda

Combine sugar, water and corn syrup and boil until a candy thermometer reads 270 degrees. Remove from heat, stir in vinegar, and baking soda, mix the candy well, and pour out onto the snow.

Katy Sue puts the final touch on her pint-sized snow friend



"Making angels" is a childhood game Katy's mother Ruth still can do.

Building snowmen is a tradition in some families, with the same old hat and lumps of coal used every year.

Play-Idea For Kids' Holiday

Something to do during long school holidays : make play clay for your kids and help them fashion jewelry and gifts.

Mix up two cups baking soda, one cup cornstarch and stir in 1¼ cups cold water. Cook the mixture over a medium heat, stirring constantly until it is the consistency of moist mashed potatoes. Turn out onto a plate and cover with cloth until it is cool enough to handle. Knead like dough and it's ready for modeling. Some suggestions : vases, pencil holders, buttons, plaques, candlesticks ... you're limited only by imagination.

Allow to dry overnight or longer.

For more detailed instructions you can write Church and Dwight, Two Pennsylvania Plaza, New York, New York for a copy of their pamphlet on play clay.

The Food Prices Review Board is currently assessing the effect of A and P's voluntary price freeze on private label products on the general markets.

The price freeze, announced December 6, has been praised by review board chairman Beryl Plumptre who said the action was "highly commendable."

F.C. Kennedy, chairman and president of the firm, says "We will continue to hold down prices even if our ingredient cost goes up".

He said recently that because of three price increases in eggs, for example, some stores are selling them at a loss.

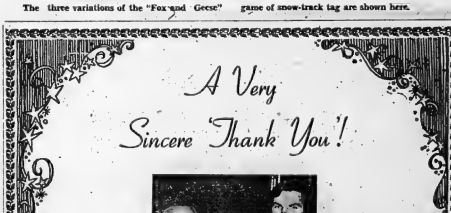
A recent Intelligencer feature about Christmas at Glanmore House included instructions for baking an 1877 Pound Cake. The original recipe didn't include baking or oven temperature directions so we added our own, based on more modern pound cake recipes. Obviously, it wasn't a good idea: a reader phoned to say that it took nearly two hours to bake, not the 40 minutes we expected.



She also suggested 350 degrees might be better than 325.

At any rate, even with the extended baking time, she said the cake was absolutely delicious and that's what really counts.

Holiday Cookies

Mincemeat Cookies
two cups flour
1¼ tsp. baking powder
¾ cup margarine
one cup granulated sugar
one tsp. vanilla
two eggs
one cup mincemeat

Cream margarine with sugar, vanilla and eggs until light. Sift in flour, baking powder and salt. Refrigerate. Roll out dough and cut two inch cookies and an equal number of circles with a doughnut cutter. Place rounds on greased sheet, top with one tsp. mincemeat cover with cut-out. Press edges together and bake seven minutes. Store tightly covered. Makes four dozen cookies.

Experimental School Gives Hope to Parents of Retarded

VANCOUVER (CP) — The parents of retarded children never stop hoping.

When the parents of almost 50 retarded children read of an experimental method to discover a child's mental potential and ways to allow it to be developed, their letters asking for more information deluged a Vancouver teacher.

Hilda Golden, employed by the Vancouver school board, said in an interview that in addition to the letters, a man from Alberta called her one night, offering to bring his retarded son to her, if she thought the program might help.

Mrs. Golden explained she couldn't help him. The program is an experimental one in Vancouver, being tried with two children.

Basically, the program discards the old intelligence quotient measures of a child's ability and stresses the child's ability to learn.

The theory behind it was developed in Israel by Dr. Reuven Feuerstein and at the Hadassah-Wizo-Canada Child Guidance Clinic and Research Institute in Jerusalem. His two-year program using the learning potential assessment device had involved 4,500 children at the institute, which is supported wholly by Hadassah-Wizo of Canada.

In Israel, the program has had major success. From 25 children placed in the "hopelessly retarded" section, 20 now are attending regular high school.

Dr. Feuerstein's theories are slowly becoming known throughout the world. When he visited Vancouver two years ago, he invited Mrs. Golden to attend a two-week seminar on how of functioning children at his clinic in Jerusalem.

Mrs. Golden said she returned with enthusiasm for the program, which was set up on an experimental basis involving two 15-year-old girls. She said the communications with Jerusalem and the lack of time between the summer seminar and beginning of classes prevented the program from being attempted on a larger group.

The girls were tested by psychologists before the program started, and will be tested when it ends to see whether their thinking ability has changed.

Mrs. Golden has written a paper for the school board and given in-service training to other teachers and groups.

She explained that Dr. Feuerstein tries to assess a child's ability to learn, not what he has learned. The doctor considers IQ tests unfair to the majority of culturally- and socially-deprived children.

"It's a culturally free thing and can be used by anybody," said Mrs. Golden of the method. "It is almost completely non-verbal and also works in the abstract."

She feels it could be used in Vancouver, where a high percentage of school children are from other cultures.

"We've used some hours of work and given as co-courses," said Mrs. Golden. Hopefully, it can be experimental try in Vancouver through the years."

10 oz. of homogenized milk

very thick cream
6 oz. of rum
3 oz. of sherry

Still Some Room

At this writing, there is still some room for you to bring in the New, Year in the gracious Four Seasons manner. There are three entertainment packages being offered by the Four Seasons New Year's Eve: dancing in the Park Ballroom to the music of the largest and big orchestra at $25 a couple, tax and gratuities included; dinner in the Key Buffet at $17.75 per person, also including tax and gratuities, or you may dine a la carte; and finally, a late supper at $12.50 per person, plus tax and gratuities, you may enjoy dining in the Terrace Dining Room and dancing to the music of the Way and Peace trio. That certainly is a pleasant choice range for New Year's Eve, isn't it? And the management and staff of the Four Seasons wish you and your families the best in 1975, even if they can't have the pleasure of saying so to you in person New Year's Eve.

Greetings From All

The management and staff of Richard Ellis Printing, 19 Fahey St. would like to extend best wishes to you and your family for 1975. And before they each turn their hands, they would like you to know their names, and hence feel a more personal meanings. Here they are gratefully from: Dan and Gretchen Ellis, Pamela Hay, Marion Reid, Betty Perron, Kathy Sellens, Dan Parker, Lorraine Mallette, Gil Caldyk, Barbara Bonisteel, Jim Yzne, Bob Clark, Wally Bateman, Larry Starring, Paul Clark and Stan Hall. Although there was a total number of years experience with the Richard Ellis company of 126 years, I think that speaks for itself. Happy New Year.

Getting In Shape

There's at least one more major feast in store on New Year's Day and all that particular day, you are going to show the consequences right around our middles. So after the mirror gives you the bad news, you'll have to muster up a little courage to face yourself, think about Bob's Sports, 46 South Front St. and new year's resolutions to keep with a variety of sports equipment and hobbies open to you will take that post New Year's day reducing diet and put you right back in shape. It's a place. If you're healthy in 1975 and in good condition, the year will be a big success. So, don't get discouraged. Go see Bob.

Looking The Part

It's fitting that we talk about Joan Smith's West Wind Boutique right after discussing New Year's Resolutions, because it is a way we're talking about the same thing re resolutions — i.e. our appearance. And it will help you if you're seen with a well-groomed and Joan will help you show off what you've done with your-self. Joan's boutique is a delightful spot with clothes that show healthy body of years. And when it comes to tasteful and fashionable clothes, Joan's boutique is the place to visit. The Smith's West Wind Boutique at Actinolite is the only place in the area that you can purchase Laura Ashley and Jaeger merchandise. Her clothes are exquisite and Joan enjoys helping to create the new you. Let Joan Smith help you have a great '75.

Reputable Help

W. Frank Real Estate Ltd. has an office in Belleville as you know. It's been there for many years, too. But this company also has nine other offices, in Southern Ontario. This company is concerned about the real property needs of this area and not just of one particular section of it. And that's a very important thing to know when you're looking for reputable real estate help in your business in 1975. W. Frank is a member of many real estate associations in Ontario and can provide professional service for you, such associations as the International Real Estate Federation, the Canadian Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, the Canadian Real Estate Service, as well as local, provincial and national real estate boards. W. Frank can really help you get around in '75.

Worth Repeating

When it comes to selling groceries, Murray Atkinson of Murray's Food Market on Front Street has learned to make his many resolutions about his business because he's always making them and acting on them. Here are five of his guidelines for business:
1. The customer is always first.
2. The store personnel must reflect the personality of the store.
3. Which is always friendly and courteous.
4. A night's age has nothing to do with its looks since . . .
5. Cleanliness today is next to Godliness.
6. You don't have to be big to be mighty.
7. And last, but not least, the independent retailer shall inherit the customer who wants personalized and fair shopping.

A Family Business

Booth's On The Market Square is a family business and has been since the store opened in 1946. When you walk into Booth's and say: "May I please speak with Mr. Booth?", you get the answer: "Which one?" For there are four in the store, Mr. George, Howard and Clifford. I find that rather comforting to know that another generation interested in — synthetic wigs and nautical instruments, carpet and furniture — a whole family is involved in your success. And I think that should be a real consolation for you too, if you don't mind my saying. The Booth family, of course, hopes that 1975 will be kindly and prosperous for you and your family. After all, family to them really means something.

Starting Off On The Right Foot

There it is — that house that looked so pretty bombed by the smoke of Christmas and all aglow with true and real cheeriness. But you're going to get a shock when you take all those decorations down and put them away for another year. It's kind of depressing anyway. But then, the toil of Christmas traffic on the carpet is the worst part. The wall, they were easy on your and the furniture looks as if it singlehandedly fought all the battles of 1974 — not to mention the children and the dog and so does your house. And you both need ServiceMaster. ServiceMaster is an international organization which can clean anything elsemake and they're experts on starting you off in 1975 on the right foot. Call them at 962-1872.

From Ed's and Avis

The management and staff of Ed's Eggs, 132 Station St., would also like to extend their best wishes to you for the coming year. Ed's Eggs is also the local deal for Avis Rent-A-Car, something you might not have known. The Avis booth is not the same as the Ed's Eggs booth and you might just make that clear in your telephone directory for those times when you're going to have to rent a car from a reputable firm in 1975. Also, if you and some of your friends are planning to go south this winter, that number could rent you the use of a Winnebago from Ed's Eggs! This vehicle sleeps 6 and is fully equipped. So here's that helpful 1975 number . . . 968-6300 . . . And a very Happy New Year from Ed's.
And from me too.

'Ms' Myth Debunked

Dear Ms. Landers: I was amused by the myths that have grown up around the abbreviation Ms., as indicated by your correspondent who believes Ms. stands for "Marxist sister." That idea is, of course, ludicrous.

On April 22, 1970, I said in a speech on the floor of the House of Representatives that, for women who do not wish to be known as Miss or Mrs. the abbreviation Ms. (pronounced Miz) might be useful.

My statement received a bit of attention and the idea caught on like wildfire. Obviously there was a need for a substitute that did not identify marital status.

The substitute Ms. has appeared for years in stenographic manuals as an acceptable form of address when it was not known if the woman was married or single.

The story is as simple as that, Ann. I'm kind of sorry to take the excitement out of it.—Congressman Jonathan B. Bingham, 22nd District, New York.

Dear Congressman Bingham: Thanks for the clue-in. If you don't mind, though, I prefer Miss. I still think of Ms. as an abbreviation for manuscript or smallpox scabs.

Dear Ann Landers: My boyfriend and I are both in our 30's. We know each other very well and are really in love.

Lately I've had a bad case of Wedding Bell Blues. So many of my friends are getting married it's beginning to get to me. I want to get married now, although I know deep down in my heart that waiting is the best way.

My marriage always gets off to a better start if the couple has some money in the bank.

My boyfriend and I talked about it again last night and he said he is not ready to get married and to get off his back. In fact he said the very word "marriage" scares him to pieces. He accused me of trying to pressure him like it, and that's not true, Ann. Please tell me how to get over these "Wedding Bell Blues."—Impatient

Dear Imp: It sounds to me as if your boyfriend has already settled the matter. In my opinion, he is deconstructing better judgment and more maturity than you.

My advice is to take his advice and get off his back, or you might lose him altogether.

Dear Ann Landers: Is it true that if you swallow chewing gum you will end up with appendicitis? I chew a lot of gum, and although I don't do it on purpose, I seem to be swallowing several each week. When the gum gets soft, it loses its flavor, and down it goes.

I haven't felt sick or anything, but I heard again today that if a person swallows enough chewing gum he will eventually have to have an appendicitis. True or false?—Chewing Gum Betty

Dear Betty: That old wives' tale has been kicking around for 50 years that I know of. There is not truth in it. But cut it out anyway. Swallowed chewing gum is not the best thing for your digestive tract.

Children Can Have Insight

Has it occurred to you that children can dream up ideas all by themselves? Many quite young ones — young school age — have original and hugely imaginal pieces and skits.

If they can be given some examples of the sort of thing which has been done before, then challenged to carry out a group project by themselves, a mother or a teacher may get some delightful surprises.

It can be made broader than that. There is a partnership developing between home and school, whereby creative education in what is going on around them's by being challenged to look for environmental problems. More than one is a little child has led them".

Reminds me of little Lynn, who when she saw her mother becoming so harassed that she was confused, said to her: "Mother, sit still. Sit down and have a cup of coffee and a cookie."

Mother turned to her, mouth open to snap. Then she hesitated, threw her arms around her budding psychologist. There is no reason why two shared their cookie-and-coffee break.

Dear Doris: To the lady who wrote that she was grieved over the loss of her child, I couldn't help thinking of an incident that happened in a friend's home town.

A woman had lost a child and was very upset. Her family talked her into a trip overseas to see if it would help her overcome her grief. While there her son's house caught fire, and I believe it was her daughter-in-law, and whatever number of children they had, who were burned to death.

She decided not to tell her till they met her at the plane for fear of how it would affect her and were puzzled when she showed no emotion, but commented on the number of grandchildren that had been taken back. Later she let it, Heaven is that many times brighter today!

She later related to the family how she had dreamed she had gone to Heaven and was ushered into a large room where the light was so bright that it was overwhelming. Then she was ushered into another room where a number of children were sitting on the floor each holding a lighted candle.

She began looking for her own and when she saw it she knew him was told he was "over there", and she found him sitting off by himself holding an unlit candle. When she asked him why his candle wasn't lit he said, "Because you keep putting it in with your tears."

She vowed then and there she would not shed any more tears.

New Chance for 'Slow' Children

An experimental program with two children supervised by Hilkie Golden at a Vancouver school is exploring new ways to help mentally retarded children with learning disorders. In Israel, the program has had major success. From 25 children placed in the "hopelessly retarded" section, 20 now are attending high school.

Betty Kennedy: Her Career Successful Accident

OTTAWA (CP) — Betty Kennedy's broadcasting career is an accident, she says. She started out in journalism as a newspaper woman.

"The Ottawa Citizen staff was striking in sympathy with typographers and Wes," she recalled while in town for a National Arts Centre taping of Front Page Challenge. "I was assigned to do a 15-minute radio show instead.

"I tried to do it with a news format but you simply cannot write that much daily, so I started having guests on the air. It worked."

The strike ended and Mrs. Kennedy went back to the Citizen despite radio job offers. Only later did she consider radio a partner in broadcasting.

Now, in addition to her 14-year stint as a panelist on the CBC television show Front Page Challenge, she produces her own daily radio show in Toronto.

On top of that, she sits on the University of Toronto governing council and on the complaints committee of the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons.

"My daily show is a little bit like handling a newspaper beat. It is completely open-ended.

"I may have a guest discussing politics, something on religion or education or jimmy a bundle of jeans."

Even though it has been running for many years, Mrs. Kennedy said she does not tire of Front Page Challenge.

She composes the program with charades. "The funniest things will click in your mind and yet others will lead you completely astray."

Mrs. Kennedy cited hockey player Frank Mahovlich.

"He's been on three or four times and we have always had trouble with him. I think he was there for his fantastic scoring record. We have it on a team sport in Canada, but he said it was something played with less than five players and, well, we simply never thought of hockey that way.

For the last few years, Front Page Challenge has been timed in various Canadian cities to give people a chance to see it in the making and to give the show a broader outlook.

If a show guest makes a bad impression, that is his own problem, she said. As for scientist Gordon Sinclair's sniping remarks: "We are all adults with our own individual opinions and thoughts."

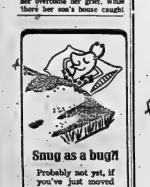
Mrs. Kennedy said the best advice for work in the media is a healthy curiosity.

"Looking back, my career appears to be in neat steps but it certainly never looked natural when it was happening to me."

With her schedule she feels she simply can't do any more openings. She believes that is self-limiting.

"But this is the time when professionalism counts . . . Anybody can be brilliant once in a blue moon, but to always meet a deadline is hard."

"There's seems to be a funny kind of logic. The more you do, the more you can do."



Mrs. Kennedy is the first lay person invited to help make decisions on the complaints committee for the College of Physicians and Surgeons. The committee decides whether a doctor should be disciplined after investigating a complaint.

She thinks she was asked to join because she can ask questions and get explanations.

"It's interesting work and I'm getting more involved with it.

"I think you can serve the community by putting the facts in front of them. People will eventually make a sensible choice. Look at Watergate. People were apathetic for a long time but they came around."

Officials Must Limit Children

By RAM SUNDAR
CP Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — When a New Delhi government official had his fifth child recently, he was summoned by his boss and told to limit family his "national duty."

The next day the official called at the family planning clinic and arranged for a vasectomy.

Reports available at the federal ministry of health, and family planning show that at least 300 government workers get themselves sterilized every week.

"When we had our fourth child, I did not dare inform my office colleagues," said Deepak Khanna, section officer in the ministry of railways.

"It is no longer the fashion to boast about large families. On the contrary, an official who has too many children may be considered to be irresponsible."

The Indian government has rejected suggestions made by some family-planning organizations that employees with more than three children should be considered ineligible for promotions.

At the same time, Health Minister Karan Singh and his top officials have made it known that it is the "moral responsibility" of government workers to set an example to their fellow-countrymen by limiting their children to three at most.

At least 5,000 men and women in the Indian capital are doing family planning propaganda. This has resulted in New Delhi becoming what Kishan Sorroop, an elected legislator of government, said: "The most family planning-conscious city in India."

According to Swaroop, nearly 20 per cent of married couples in the city have undergone sterilization operations and immediately followers of family limitation methods. Such acceptance is only 15 per cent.

A report in New Delhi Hindustan Times says that 16 per cent of married couples in the capital have undergone a sterilization operation.

But officials of the family planning ministry admit that New Delhi is not India and that the population explosion still is to be contained at the national level.

They claim that acceptance of family planning by government workers and their wives is having an increasingly marked impact on the traditional ways of rural families around the capital.

Modern World Rejects Idea Poor Touched by Heroism

DR. GORDON C. SMITH

Many people realize that they are not getting the most out of life. The truth often hits them with particular force at this time of year.

There are those folk, for example, whose significant action is influenced by the desire to play it safe. They hold their job, for which elected, remain for years as a pastor. But they lack the stamina and vitality of adventure.

Others are unhappy because they constantly "make excuses" to borrow a term from the university, to the Church they crave greater group. In politics they jeopardize national unity. In the Church they are like the elder brother in the Parable, who kept the schedule and above everything. They became disenchanted and discontented when things go wrong.

There is another type of person who wants life to be more than it is. He keeps searching for different gimmicks to have the edge on others. The pace grows frantic. At length it dawns on the individual that he is a "has been". He has done most everything except really living. There are several forms of one of life's basic troubles. But like so many of our everyday problems Jesus had a solution for it. One day a certain lawyer asked him about the richer, fuller experience that he exemplified.

Jesus' immediate prescription was, "Do this, and you will live." He added: "You shall love and with all your strength, and with all your mind; and your neighbor as yourself." (Luke 10:25 ff).

Here we thus love God, life takes on not only new resources and quality, but everything has a new meaning. Life becomes grander and more splendid. And all this because the Heavenly Father took the initiative to supply us with inspiration. "God sent his only son into the world so that we might live through him (1 John 4:9).

One Sunday in a church in New Zealand, the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was being celebrated. A row of wooden skippers had knelt at the altar rail. Suddenly a native stood up and went back to his seat. After a suite minutes he returned to the rail and knelt. At the close of the service somebody asked him why he had done all this.

He said "When I knelt I saw beside me a man who a few years ago had slain my father and whom I had vowed to kill. But I seemed to see an Upper Room and to hear a voice saying, 'By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one for another'."

If we determined to make 1975 the year to be finished with pleasing God, serving others and hate, we would find a lot of missing parts that contributed to abundant life. Yes, "do this, and you will live."

Archbishop Calls Invasion Brutal

NEW YORK (AP) — Archbishop Iakovos, head of the Greek Orthodox Church in North and South America, says Turkey's invasion of Cyprus, is "one of the most brutal, inhuman abuses of a people and outrageous betrayals of peace in our times."

"But American churches for the most part have ignored it," said in an interview at archdiocesan headquarters in Manhattan.

His desk piled with documented reports of depredations against persons, churches and cemeteries in Cyprus, Iakovos said the island, populated mostly by Greek Christians but much of which now is occupied by Turkish troops, "has become a realm of horror stories, where there is only fear, pain, anxiety and little hope."

"We have testimonies of rapes of women of all ages, of killings, mass executions and murders in cold blood."

At present, with the northern part east of the line controlled by Turkish troops, most of the Greek inhabitants of that section—about 200,000 of them—have fled it, he said, and by some estimates refugees in makeshift camps in the southern part of the island.

Iakovos' own denomination, of about two million Americans, so far has provided $100,000 to aid the Greek refugees, but he said only one other religious body—the United Methodist church in Pennsylvania — has contributed to the effort. It sent a $100 cheque, he said.

Of Cyprus' population of about 600,000, about 300,000 are Greeks. The others are mostly Turkish Moslems.

"American weapons as well as American uniforms were used in the rape of a whole island," Iakovos said, referring to the U.S. military aid to Turkey as part of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

He said that Senator Thomas Eagleton (Dem., Mo.) has noted that the NATO pact was "flagrantly and openly violated" by the Turki h invasion, since the pact forbids use of arms aid furnished against member countries.

Disquieting pictures and documented accounts, Iakovos said, many Greek Orthodox churches in the occupied sector have been looted, their libraries wrecked, their valuable icons painted over, that two churches were burned and 20 to 30 of them damaged or destroyed by bomb raids.

In one case, he said, a church entrance was sealed with bricks with the priest inside where he starved to death. He said several other priests were killed and more than 300 of them are among refugees from their homes.

Iakovos, who met several times with Cyprus' temporarily exiled president, Archbishop Makarios, before he returned to there Dec. 7, said some form of confederation offered the "fairest possibility for a settlement."

Under such a system, he said, the island would be divided into Greek or Turkish-controlled sectors in the predominant population.

CSAO Vote Lessens Ferry Run

PICTON — Sunday's Civil Service Association of Ontario vote on the government's latest contract offer means ferry service will be changed.

Ferry crews are among operating employees involved in the vote.

On Sunday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. the ferry will operate on a half-hour schedule, with only one boat to allow ferry workers time to vote.

Normal service — two boats running at a half-hour schedule — will resume once the vote is taken.

A meeting has been organized at the set inn in Tbgton to take the vote. It is one of nine locations on a province-wide closed-circuit television meeting for almost 20,000 operational workers.

Mohawks Hold Election Vote

TYENDINAGA — Mohawks in closest against their elected council here today are holding a referendum aimed at new reserve elections.

The plebiscite asks Mohawks if they favor another council election.

It also seeks an opinion on lowering the voting age to 18 from 21.

A support vote would not automatically mean an immediate election, however.

Results at the plebiscite will first be sent to Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan for his decision.

The referendum is being taken at a mobile home on Highway 49. The site was chosen after the council group was refused permission to use the reserve's community centre.

Forest Fires Show Big Jump

Rural residents in the natural resources area of Algonquin region are blamed for 35 per cent of man-caused forest fires in the area this year.

The region, which includes Algonquin Park, Bancroft, Bracebridge, Minden, Parry Sound and Pembroke, recorded a 69-per-cent increase in fires over 1973. In 1974, there were 367 fires over 1,012 acres, compared with 197 fires which burned 388 acres in 1973.

April was a bad month, with 117 fires burning off 785 acres of bush. In May, 70 fires burned 74 acres. June had 18 fires with 29 acres burned.

It was a carelessness is blamed for 81 per cent of the fires, with rural residents blamed for 25 per cent through careless smoking and when burning brush or debris.

Already Season Better For Skiers at Batawa

BATAWA — Batawa Ski Club has marked up at least one success this year over the 1973-74 skiers' season, club president John Cormack said Friday.

It has operated for five days, even though all five weren't consecutive. Last season, one of the worst in recent years for snow conditions, the club only operated for six slopes three days.

"Last year, the only skiing we got was before Christmas," said Mr. Cormack Friday.

Club grounds received four inches of snow this Christmas. Boxing Day, skiers filled the club's slopes.

However, said Mr. Cormack, those short runs cut the snow. A fairly good base exists, but it is nothing to brag about, he said.

"We're talking inches here. Other places are talking feet of base," he said.

Mr. Cormack said he is confident more snow and good skiing are in the offing this season.

The club, run solely by volunteers, needs a better season to cover costs.

Due to a poor season in 1973-74, the club was forced to ask for donations from neighboring municipalities, his receipts failed to cover bills, including the annual payment for a recently installed T-bar.

Mr. Cormack said lack of funds forced curtailment of improvements to the club's two major slopes.

'Hello To 101!'

Mary Hart cheerily wheels into her 101st year to become one of Ontario's oldest citizens. She celebrated the auspicious event under the careful guidance of daughter-in-law Alice Hart at Hastings Manor county home for the aged Friday. The cente narian, who has been in Belleville since the early 1900s, has outlived all her family except one brother, He's 96.

With a Serene Birthday
She Starts Second Century

Soon like turbulent times? For as long as you can remember?

For Mary Hart, her years seem tranquil — and she's lived a lot of them.

Friday, she serenely celebrated her 101st birthday to become one of Ontario's oldest citizens.

She's also now the reigning senior resident of Hastings Manor — the county home for the aged at Belleville where she's lived nearly four years.

Still alert, still in good health, she easily recalls her birthplace, scene of her early life with five brothers and sisters — a small village called Rainham, in the English countryside of Kent.

"It was a nice little place and we were happy there," she recalled Friday after they had her for her milestone birthday. "And I've been happy ever since. I've had a few disappointments — but the Lord helped me through."

Her religious reference springs from one of the landmarks in her life.

Mary, she and her husband — William, who died in 1955 — were personal stalwarts of the Salvation Army in Belleville in its early days. One of her sisters was married by marriage to Arnold Bryan, a native Belleviliian now Salvation Army commissioner for Canada.

She never took "much interest in world affairs," said Mrs. Hart. But she admitted to "seeing a few changes — good and bad" during the past century.

When she was born Queen Victoria had yet to be proclaimed Empress of India; William Gladstone was prime minister of Britain. Confederation was only six years old, and its first leader, John A. Macdonald had just bowed out of his initial administration.

The Harts came to Canada in 1906 — and shortly after to Belleville, where her husband was a shoemaker for many years.

A son, William, died in 1936 and a daughter, Ethel, in 1971 — at which time Mrs. Hart moved to Hastings Manor.

Today, although her sight and hearing are failing, she still goes without a hearing aid.

"She hasn't an ache or a pain. She's perfectly healthy," said her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Alice Hart, 341 Bleecker Ave.

She relaxes on Sunday.

If her mother-in-law could now crochet — as she has most of her life — she'd do "very happy" said the younger Mrs. Hart.

Although the centenarian can't recall how many descendants lived, her daughter-in-law says Mrs. Hart comes "from good old stock".

A clue might be indicated by the only other surviving member of her immediate family — her brother, Fred, who lives in Orillia, is now 96.

Mrs. Hart herself credits only one "secret" for her longevity: "It's the Lord's will to give me the strength to live as long as I have."

Trent River Greenbelt Gets $18,500

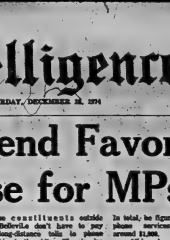
A provincial grant of $18,500 to the Lower Trent Regional Conservation Authority for its Trenton greenbelt area was announced Friday by the natural resources ministry.

The authority is engaged in acquisition of land on the west bank of the Trent River in Trenton.

Its plan is to place river-front land in public ownership and beautify the Trent.

The shoreline now proposes to acquire another small parcel of land on Trenton's Front St. abutting the river, for extension of the greenbelt area.

Colleagues Hard Hit-MP



Jack Ellis, his Hastings riding within the confines of Ottawa, says he counts himself more financially fortunate than fellow MPs from less distant constituencies.

Mr. Ellis, who says he spends $3,000-$4,000 a year more than his parliamentary salary on being an MP says other Ottawa-area colleagues and west coast ridings are "hit a lot harder".

He says he knows two MPs who had to sell their homes when they could rejoin their families with them in Ottawa.

"It's a tremendous burden when they go back home, they have to take hotel rooms and rent cars."

Mr. Ellis, who rents a room in a private home while in Ottawa, said one young MP with a family of children he went into politics too early in life — before he could afford a political career.

Reaction Trend Favors Smaller Raise for MPs

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Public reaction in Hastings riding indicates favor for a parliamentary pay raise — but nothing like the controversial 30 per cent proposed by the government.

That's the impression of Jack Ellis, the riding's Conservative MP, since he returned home for Parliament's Christmas recess.

He himself still says MPs need higher pay — but with different terms attached.

A compromise political proposal of tying the pay to the cost — of living would be even more costly than the original government plan which triggered stormy reaction, said Mr. Ellis.

"I'm still prepared to support an increase — and I'm not going to be two-faced about it," said Mr. Ellis, who estimates it now costs him close to $4,000 above his $20,000 parliamentary pay packet, to be an MP.

The original 18-per-cent proposal was "badly misrepresented — and misunderstood" by the government and now "obviously is not acceptable," said Mr. Ellis.

MPs must now wait and see what alternative the government is preparing to introduce to the pay bill that misfired.

And, said Mr. Ellis, he doesn't think there's "anyone in the House of Commons" against higher salaries.

"There are a few who are resenting that they're opposed to it. But, they're being a little two-faced about it," said Mr. Ellis.

The furor was first touched off by an announcement the 18-per-cent proposal, averaged out at 5.3 per cent over eight years. Some ministers were to be tied to the consumer industrial index — the average yearly percentage raise in industry, said.

It was on that basis, said Mr. Ellis, he believed the proposal was "not unreasonable".

At the time he was also quoted as saying that "frankly his increase is no more than many of us had anticipated".

Ensuing reaction from the riding — both then, and since — has indicated the majority trend also believes the 18-per-cent plan was "too much, too soon . . ." said the MP.

What most seem to be saying is "we don't disagree with some increase, but — ", said Mr. Ellis.

His main subsequent reaction did not after his initial thinking.

"I said what was proposed was too much — too soon — and very poorly done. The reaction I got was to augment that . . ." he said.

Tying increases to the cost-of-living index would be more expensive because of the dramatic increase in living costs in recent years, he believed.

Instead, he favors the so constituents outside Belleville don't have to pay long-distance calls to phone him in the riding. There's also a telephone answering service.

Guild May Bid on Drama Festival

By JIM SMELLIE
Staff Reporter

Belleville Theatre Guild is preparing for one of the most ambitious plays it has yet undertaken.

The production The Knight of the Burning Pestle, is described as a Jacobean romp involving music and dance.

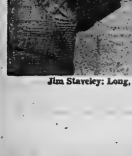
Auditions were held for the production early in December and rehearsals start Jan. 13. For this special production the Guild has enlisted the services of professional director Daniel Walsh, who is currently in England.

The play, written by Francis Beaumont will be performed at the Pinnacle Playhouse March 5 — 8 and again March 13—15.

Enthusiasm for the play has reached the extent that it is being considered for entry in the Eastern Ontario Drama League Festival in Peterborough in April. Five theatre act plays will be chosen to compete in this festival and the Guild has high hopes for its entry.

The plot of the production can best be described as a plot within a plot and a play, Raughly, it follows the adventures of a grocer's apprentice who becomes an actor who portrays a grocer who later becomes The Knight of the Burning Pestle, a cross between a Don Quixote and a medieval hemphile.

Mr. Walsh's credentials include experience in British repertory, with the Old Vic, BBC television and radio plays:



He also has directed and given workshops in Ontario theatre groups like Grey Gargoyles, Oakville and Burlington and has worked with such theatre companies as Paul Scofield and Michael Redgrave.

Tuning Up

An expected 300 competitors will roar around the Quinte Raceway beginning at 12:30 p.m. Sunday during Quinte Cup snowmobile races. Top professionals from Canada and the U.S., as well as amateurs, will compete for cash prizes in 15 classes in a warmup for next weekend's Kawartha Cup in Peterborough. Brian Reid tunes up competition machine in preparation for Sunday's action at Quinte Exhibition Grounds.

1975: Will It Be the Rainbow Year at the End of the Trail?

Jim Staveley: Long, Long Trail

The new year 1975 could be the year to watch things growing along the Quinte Lin-ings Recreational- Trail (QHRT).

Al least, organizers of the big multi-purpose outdoor project feel it's the year that may bring a new turn in the trail around which has enjoy times for a facility plagued by lackluntre support.

Right now, they're keeping their fingers crossed about provincial government support — the same fingers by which they've been reluctantly clinging to the project for the past three years.

"It'll be a turning-point year," optimistically predicts Jim Staveley, QHRT president. "But it all hinges on the action of the provincial government — which now has recognized it has to help develop more outdoors recreation facilities like this."

As yet, Ontario has produced no concrete definitions of any aid program for outdoor trails — among which the 259-mile QHRT is believed the biggest.

But the province already is committed to some form of support, says Mr. Staveley.

He says what he and other volunteer trail directors are closely watching is the sequel to a November statement in the legislature by Resources Development Secretary Allan Grossman.

Among government plans is identification of facilities for multiple use, said Mr. Grossman. As privacy council is to be established to assist development of a "complete trails system".

The council is still to be formed and no action is expected until it reports back to the government, says Mr. Staveley.

But, senior government assistance would be the sustained boost the QHRT has long been needing in its survival struggle, he adds.

"It's the most hopeful encouragement yet," says Mr. Staveley.

It would come at a time when interest in the trail is reaching from Lake Ontario near Outler Park up to Lake St. Peter near Algonquin Park in a "snowballing" claim the presidents.

In the past year there are among groups who used — or inquired about — the trail in increasing numbers: snowshoers, canoeists, birdwatchers, artists, students seeking natural gems.

The trail was launched as the biggest Quinte-district winter work project in 1972-73 with $132,000 in federal Local Initiatives Program grants.

The QHRT dilemma began with its completion in the 1975 indest 13.45 ma for 2nd F. indent en operation, organizers found there was no supporting mechanism — and formed themselves into a volunteer group to keep the project intact.

Appeals for funds — including association membership and local poverty mesh — brought little response. There was voiced support for the trail, but Canreal aid was stimulated for the project's upkeep, says Mr. Staveley.

"We've been going ever since on a hand-to-mouth basis," he says. In fact, the QHRT is ending 1974 with a balance of $27 in the bank — much of its $1,400 income from donations from tourist and summer community groups.

This winter, however, saw the promise ease somewhat when the QHRT — after two earlier refusals — won a $77,000 LIP grant. This is helping pay for grooming and renovation work in the Bancroft — Belleville stretch of the facility.

Mr. Staveley sees a complimentarie of circumstances combining in future to make inexpensive the trail's upkeep of energy shortages curbing long-distance travel; spreading urban growths; increasing emphasis on physical fitness in Canada.

The meandering Quinte-Hastings outdoorers route eventually could become the main trunk line for a series of smaller trails branching east and west through surrounding forestry regions, say trail officials. Similar but shorter parallel facilities — the Rideau and Gananoka trails — are about the same 50-mile distance east - and west.

There's also its educational value. Already outdoor groups in 13 schools in Hastings County alone are aligned with the trail as supporting organizations.

Meantime, in the coming months of 1975, he and his companion QHRT volunteers will be working for development of Queen's Park.

Government aid for such trails is nothing new in Canada where they've been long-established, he points out. Talks with hikers from Europe and the United ~States have shown them surprised at the lack of official backing, he says.

"On the principle of stateFunding already exists," says the president, "and we'd just be following an established precedent."

Cougars Hand New Boss Loss

By NEIL CAMPBELL
The Canadian Press

Chicago Cougars didn't play any better for new owner Pat Stapleton Friday than they did when he was only a player and coach.

Hours after a group headed by Stapleton and lawyer Jeff Rosen took over the financially troubled Cougars, they lost 6-2 to the Toronto Inn n' Toros World Hockey Association game at Toronto.

Toronto outshot Chicago 41-28 and only the fine play of Cougars goalie Cam Newton kept the score close.

WHA president Dennis Murphy said the group, which also includes Cougar players Ralph Backstrom, Jim Dorey and Rick Jordan, had acquired the team from Jordan and Walter Kaiser. No purchase price was mentioned.

The team will continue to play its home games in the middle of Chicago's stockyards at the International Amphitheatre.

Under Stapleton, a longtime National Hockey League star with Chicago Black Hawks, the Cougars have the second-lowest point total in the WHA.

Goals by Bob Leduc, Tom Webster and Frank Henderson gave the Toros a 3-0 lead in the second period. Frank Mahovlich added another in the last minute of the game.

In other games, Cleveland Crusaders edged Quebec Nordiques 4-3 Paul Shmyr scored the winner at 6:47 of the third period while Indianapolis Racers tied Vancouver Blazers 5-5.

Serge Bernier extended his own WHA record by scoring in his 15th consecutive game for the losing Nordiques. It was Bernier's 36th goal.

Richie Leduc scored three goals in a row for the Crusaders.

Goals by Mike Walton, Rick Dudley, Jim Watson and George Morrison in the third period helped make a 5-1 tie for the Saints, who won their fifth in a row.

The win created a second-place bottleneck in the WHA's Eastern Division. Cleveland now has 32 points, San Diego Mariners 31 and Minnesota 30.

At Vancouver, the Racers, who extended their winless streak on the road to nine games, fought back from behind with forechecking.

Rookie Pete Peeters made his first goal as a professional for Vancouver. The single point pulled the Blazers into a first-place tie with idle Edmonton Oilers and Philadelphia Canadiens in division race.

The WHA schedule has Michigan Stags at Quebec, Winnipeg Jets at San Diego, New England Whalers at Minnesota Arena, Cleveland at Phoenix and Minnesota at Quebec.

On Sunday, Winnipeg is at Houston, Indianapolis at Edmonton Oilers, Cleveland at Minnesota and Chicago at Michigan.

Vikings Try One More Time

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Vikings, smarting from two previous Super Bowl losses, will meet the Miami Dolphins day when they meet Los Angeles Rams for the National Football Conference championship.

"We've just got to be healthy and play part of the game," said Minnesota Coach Bud Grant. "I think the Rams and ourselves are both pretty good teams and are emotionally prepared.

"Teams like Buffalo and St. Louis managed to be mentally dull up when they got to Minnesota.

Minnesota suffered a 23-7 loss to Kansas City Chiefs in 1970 and lost 24-7 to Miami Dolphins in 1972. It was the second Super Bowl appearance for the Minnesota Football League championship.

"We certainly didn't play our best football against the Super Bowl," said Minnesota running back Chuck Foreman. "We'll be a lot better prepared if we get a chance."

Minnesota's last defeat, a 20-10 loss to Los Angeles Nov. 24, prompted a team meeting during which the club repeated its pre-Super Bowl preparation for championship.

"After we lost to the Rams, the players got together and vowed to win all straight the rest of the games," said Grant. "We've got to do it."

Minnesota concluded its season with four consecutive victories—20-6 over New Orleans Saints, 23-16 over Atlanta Falcons, 30-14 over Kansas City, before nesting NFC Eastern Division champion St. Louis Cardinals, the NFC Eastern Division champions, 30-14 in the divisional playoffs.

The Vikings have been pegged a four-point favorite to win the NFC title they won a year ago with a 27-10 victory in Dallas.

Expecting temperatures in the mid-30sFriday could make the Vikings' home field advantage even better. both teams to practice at the University of Minnesota.

GAC Line Chokes Sabres

There has been one change in the Gorman Arena Club Rangers' GAC line back in production.

The Central Ontario Women's squad is third with a 6-4 record.

Chiefs Can Stram

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Hank Stram, the only coach Kansas City Chiefs have had in their five year existence, was fired Friday as coach and vice-president of the National Football League franchise.

Owner Lamar Hunt, who hired Stram in 1960 when the team was called Dallas Texans and the American Football League was just getting started, said the move was necessary to "revitalize our organization and give it a fresh approach."

Stram did not attend a news conference called by Hunt to announce that he was parting company with the coach, but said he was the only coach in the last 10-year history of the AFL.

Hunt said he told Stram of his decision Thursday.

Hunt said he hopes to have a new coach before the NFL draft Jan. 28, but said no candidates had been interviewed.

Stram will be free to pursue opportunities with other organizations," Hunt said in a statement.

"There is no question that Hank becomes the leading candidate for professional football job available at this time."

Stram was regarded as a pro football innovator. But it was that reputation was tarnished as the Chiefs tumbled to a 5-8-1 won-lost record this season.

Hunt said the Chiefs would honor the seven years remaining on Stram's 10-year contract.

Stram was estimated to be earning about $100,000 a year. Hunt said the Chiefs would honor that commitment if Stram does not find a job. He would pay the difference between the current salary and any new salary.

Stram, 52, guided the Chiefs from their inception as a charter member before 1974, a feat equalled only by Cleveland Browns. In a decade Over-all, his teams compiled a record of 97-68, and Denver Dogs-136-76-12, and won five of eight playoff games.

Steelers All-Round Threat

OAKLAND (AP) — Just what is it going to take to stop Pittsburgh Steelers? There seems to be a difference of opinion among members of Oakland Raiders.

"Our offensive line has to handle their front four," says Oakland guard Gene Upshaw. "The game will come down to that."

Upshaw is bracing himself for Sunday's Steeler onslaught against Oakland's Coliseum. Ken Stabler in the American Conference playoffs, the first loser to the Super Bowl game for the National Football league title.

"What they like to do is shot down the run and get ahead of you so you have to go to the air," Upshaw says. "Then those tough rushers like Joe Greene and Ernie Holmes and ends Dwight White and L.C. Greenwood, who formed 31 of Pittsburgh's 49 league-leading 52 quarterback sacks during the season.

But Oakland coach John Madden sees things differently, viewing coach Chuck Noll's Steelers as the major threat, particularly after their 24-7 standing performance in last Sunday's 32-14 first-round playoff romp over Buffalo Bills.

"Terry gives them a double threat," says Madden. "He can run the ball or throw it."

Linebacker Dan Conners agrees with bit, coach, calling Bradshaw "the key. If we're to win, we'll have to shut him down.

And what does Pittsburgh have to watch out for? There you'll find quarterback Bradshaw and his clutch wide receiver, Fred Biletnikoff, the heart of the Steelers say.

"We'll try best to give Stabler too much time to throw the ball," says coach Chuck Noll.

Biletnikoff is the master of back patterns when the quarterback has a lot of time.

J.T. Thomas, one of Pittsburgh's cornerbacks will be the busy trying to keep Biletnikoff and the ball apart. He knows he's got his work cut out for him.

"He's not very big and he's not too fast, but his moves are best of this world," Thomas says. "That's his thing—moves."

Biletnikoff caught eight passes for 122 yards and 3 touchdowns in Oakland's playoff victory over Miami last Saturday. Most of those catches were on a comeback pattern.

The playoff game is the third in three years between these two teams but the first for a conference title.

In the first round two years ago, the Steelers won 13-7 on what has become known as "Franco Harris' reception of the 1 a 4-pitch Bradshaw pass. Instead of Franchy Fuqua, it was fleeted by Jack Tatum and grabbed at shoetop level by Harris for a 60-yard touchdown play.

Last year, in a more conventional first-round game, Stabler completed 14 of 32 passes and the Raiders rolled to a 28-7 victory.

The winner of this year's game will head for New Orleans and the Jan. 12 title game against the winner of Sunday's National Conference championship game between Los Angeles Rams and Minnesota Vikings.

Cats Play Shorthanded Early, Finish on Long End of Score

By MARK BRETT
Sports Staff

Any time a team can go for the first 15 minutes of a hockey game short-handed and still come up a winner you can bet they must be doing something right.

Such was the case in Friday night's Metro Junior B game as the Bobcats handed the Whitby Bruins a 6-3 setback.

Steve Knoch of the Bobcats, and Gord Kennedy of the Bruins, took several dangerous swipes at each other with high sticks in the early going of the first period. Kennedy appeared more than willing to face with Knoch but when the Belleville player dropped the weapon and got back to basics Kennedy was unwilling to take the chance from close range.

Kennedy was assessed a two-minute high sticking penalty, while Knoch ended up with a two-minute penalty for high sticking plus a 10 minute fighting major forcing the Cats to ski out a man for the middle part of the period.

When asked about his part in the duel, Knoch, the goalie I asked him (the referee) about the call he told me I was the aggressor."

The Cats managed to hold off the hard hitting Bruin team and even came out on top for the period by a 1-0 margin.

Mike Watt scored the only goal on a low shot through a mass of players.

Despite the goal, the home team appeared to be suffering from the effects of a lengthy illness layoff as they "missed opportunities".

The Cats openly line of Rob Foster, Jim Richardson and Grant Gorgan continually pressured pressure on Bruin goalie Larry Plail in the early going but were unable to find the mark.

Wayne Calberry and Scott Samis each had clear breakaways on the visitors' netminder but Plail robbed Calberry in close with a great catch, and had lady luck smile upon him, luring decked out at position, by Samis who then proceeded to roll the 'puck' wide inches of the open net.

Whitby coach Bill Lashwick, offered no excuses for his team's showing. "The boys were just too tired after the holiday. They had no zip on the ice at all."

The Belleville squad appeared more the worse for wear after the festive season, keeping up a fast pace throughout the remainder of the game.

Each team scored a pair of goals in the middle frame with the play continuing to be fast and close checking.

Quick thinking by Knoch opened the scoring early in the period as he deflected a pass from Watt into the top corner of the net.

Andy Ricketts scored the only other Cat goal of the period as his shot from the point sizzled into the top corner of the net to the goalies glove side.

Scott Samis, a standout in the forechecking department, got his second breakaway of the game for the locals, but as usual as Plail again looked sharp on his own.

In the third stanza of the second period and for a minute and 14 seconds of the third, the Cats were forced to play two men short but superb penalty killing by Wally Dainard and Al Jeffery saved the day.

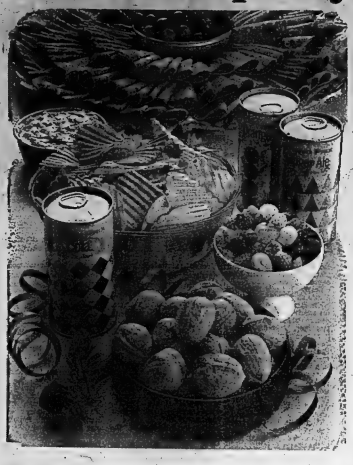
Bob Moore is the nets for Belleville, was also instrumental in keeping the Cats a goal ahead early in the third, as he made several quick saves in a row on hard shots.

Whitby appeared to be unnerved after the display of hockey shown by the Bobcats as they stood by and watched Belleville score two goals within 30 seconds.

Both goals by Samis. Eric Powell would not have been classed as hard shots, but seemed to elude the Whitby goalie anyway.

Trevor Turnbull's goal midway through the period put the visitors within only goals but whatever hope was left for the Bruins disappeared with Knoch's second goal of the night.

Cats' captain, Foster, had one construct after the game: "These are the worst bunch of players I've ever seen," referring to the Bruins. Foster said several teammates, on more than one occasion were sent to the bench in pain as a result of high sticks and slashes that broke Whitby sticks.



The Belleville defence came up with an impressive game dropping the opposition with some heavy body checks as they stepped across the blue line.

Paul King saw action with the Cats on a regular forward position and added some solid forechecking for the visitors.

Rob Thompson, firing on defence for the home team, left early in the third suffering a sprained knee but does not appear to be seriously injured, according to manager Gene Mathews. The Cats get a break until next Friday when they travel to Pickering for a 7:30 contest with the Panthers at the Don Beer Arena.

IN MEMORIAM

ARMSTRONG — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, Arthur Armstrong, who passed away suddenly on December 28, 1973.

Just as you were,
You always will be treasured,
Forever in our hearts.
Lovingly remembered by wife Nellie and family, Brantford.

BARTON — In loving memory of a beloved wife, mother, sister and grandmother, Orpha Barton, who passed away December 28, 1973.

Through tears we remember her daily,
We now her lads away,
Her hands are always looking,
Her thoughts are never still.
But when we pause for meditation,
We constantly live from pain,
To think of her in Heaven,
To suffer no more,
Our hearts still ache with sadness,
We miss her, tears still flow,
For what it meant to lose her,
Only we who loved her know.
She suffered much before passing,
Nurse you deserved what she went through.
She stood the test, she stood it well,
Just what she suffered no one can tell.
She left us with memories dear and unknown,
But she left us a memory we are proud to own,
Sadly missed by husband and family.

BURELOW — In loving memory of a wife and mother, Ethel Burelow, who we Buddies she left us one year ago today (Dec. 28, 1973).
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
Her weary labours are all done and past.
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,
Till God called her home to suffer no more.
—Always loved and remembered by husband Charlie, son Don, daughter Jean.

PETRIE — In ever loving memory of a dear son, Robert Petrie, who passed away nine years ago, December 28, 1965.
Days of sadness still come over me,
Years to silence often flow.
For memory keeps you ever near me,
Though you died nine years ago.
—Ever loved and never forgotten by Mom.

The Parable of "The Hotel Man and the BEDBUGS"

Once upon a time there was a hustling young newspaper advertising salesman who called upon the operator of a small hotel in his town. He suggested that the hotel man begin a schedule of display ads to increase the use of his hotel for guests of local people who did not have overnight accommodations for out-of-town guests.

The local hotel entrepreneur agreed there was merit in the suggestion and that advertising to local people for this purpose could result in an increase in his hotel's occupancy rate.

He felt, however, that he could not afford "large enough" ads to do the job. He told the energetic and imaginative young space salesman that "nobody reads small ads".

The not-to-be discouraged newspaper man thought for a moment and then said, "Mr. Jones, I know people do read small ads. In fact, I'm so convinced they do that I'm going to run a series of two-inch ads for you absolutely free."

This perked up the ears of the slightly reluctant innkeeper, who was still smiles when Mr. Adman said, "But, I want to write the copy in the ads myself." This didn't seem like a too unreasonable request, so Mr. Jones responded with "O.K., but what are you going to say in my ads?"

"Nine words, Mr. Jones, is all I want in your ad. It will simply read: 'The Jones Hotel has the biggest bedbugs in town.'"

To which the now nearly apoplectic innkeeper responded, "You'll drive me out of business!" and received the quick rejoinder: "Mr. Jones, you said no one ever reads small ads."

MORAL:

People do read small ads. Many a large business started with small ads, and only because the small ads produced results were they able to become big enough to run larger ads. Don't put off telling people about your products or services just because you can't compete elsewise with larger businesses . . . call today for an Intelligencer display advertising account executive to help you set up a small-space advertising campaign.

The Strange Hymn

It was a Sunday and the Rev. Charles Morgan, minister of Deanslade Methodist Church in Winnipeg, Canada, arrived at his church to prepare for the evening service.

The custom was for the choirmaster to choose the hymns and Mr. Morgan to post them on the hymn board. He did this, then went to his study.

There was considerable time until the service and he dozed off.

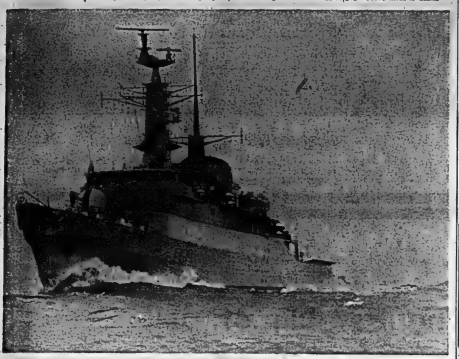
The minister had a strange dream. He saw only a surging darkness but distinctly heard the chorus of voices. And still in the background the sound of surging, crashing waves – angry waters.

Rev. Morgan awoke with a start. His dream weighed heavily on him. Why, he didn't know.

He got up from his chair and walked out into the still empty sanctuary. As though in some sort of mystic thrall, only half aware of what he was doing, he looked up the hymn from his dream and posted the number on the hymn board.

Later, in the service, it was the first hymn the congregation sang. It seemed a little out-of-place in a church thousands of miles inland – "Hear Father, when we pray to Thee, For those in peril on the sea..".

During the singing the minister was surprised embarrassed to find his eyes filling with tears.



The date was April 14, 1912.

Only later did the Rev. Charles Morgan discover that at the very time his congregation was singing that hymn one of history's greatest sea tragedies was unfolding in the North Atlantic.

The Titanic was sinking ...

Sentenced to Life

LUDDENBURG, Germany (AP) — Butcher's apprentice Siegfried Ysen, 21, was sentenced to life imprisonment for the "malicious murder" of his three children, aged three to four. The court ruled that Ysen stabbed Susanne, four, and three-year-old twin brothers, Klaus and Peter, to death as they slept in their beds in November, 1973, to avenge his wife. Evidence showed that the couple had constant arguments and Ysen had threatened to kill himself and left the house to go outside. Instead, he tiptoed in his socks to the children's room and stabbed them to death.

Non-Smokers Rights

MUNICH, West Germany (AP) — A non-smoker's right to fresh air takes precedence over a smoker's right to his habit, a West German court has ruled, says the Munich Medical Weekly. The Journal said the verdict was reached after a dentist who was attending a medical conference demanded that smoking be banned from the meeting hall. The organizers refused and the dentist, a member of an association called Smoking and Health, filed his grievance to the courts.

Police Adopt Child

SUDBURY (Cnd. (CP) — A six-year-old Indian girl has found 136 new parents — all Sudbury-area policemen.

The Sudbury and Manitoulin Island detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police Association has adopted the girl, Satirel, through the Foster Parent Plan of Canada.

The Grade 1 pupil lives on the small island of Sucker Gut with her grandparents whose monthly income is about $13.00.

The association will send the girl about $284 a year for food, clothing, household goods, school supplies and medical care. The police will continue to act as her foster parents for at least 10 years.

Tickets Stolen

TORONTO (CP) — Olympic Lottery officials said Friday that the 1,000 stubs stolen on the $10 lottery tickets does not stand a chance of winning $1 million.

The tickets were taken during a Christmas Day break-in at a Toronto travel agency.

Officials said cash prizes are not issued until ticket numbers are compared with the list of tickets issued also.

If the tickets' are stolen, it is the retailer's loss. The retailer can protect himself by reporting the loss and issuing ticket numbers to lottery officials.

Price Raised

CHICAGO (AP) — Inland Steel Co. announced Friday increases in prices on most of its steel products averaging one per cent starting Dec. 30.

The company said in a statement the price increases do not fully cover rises in costs since the last price adjustments. It cited such new costs as the recent settlement with the United Mine Workers and climbing prices of fuel oil and other raw materials.

Election Unlikely

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP) — Alex Carruthers (PC—Durham) said Friday he does not foresee a spring provincial election because of the reorganization of the political party associations required with the redistribution of Ontario ridings.

Mr. Carruthers said an interview that the changes required will not give people enough time to get organized for a spring election.

The MPP, who will be living outside his present Durham riding boundaries under the proposed redistribution, predicted there would be a fall election.

30 Dogs Die

HAMILTON (CP) — About 30 dogs were destroyed at the animal shelter here after an outbreak of kennel cough that 75 spreading among the local canine population.

Sixty more dogs affected by the disease are being held in quarantine and no dogs are being placed for adoption.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA) blames a dog population explosion for the increase in the number of cases of the contagious respiratory infection.

The disease does not affect humans but wracks canines with a hacking cough. It can be fatal to older dogs and puppies.

Man Missing

ESPANOLA, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police divers Friday found a snowmobile and parka belonging to Franklin Oliver, 31, of Whitefish Falls, Ont., missing from his home since Christmas Eve.

The snowmobile and parka were found in between 25 and 30 feet of water in Georgian Bay off Whitefish Falls, about 12 miles south of here, provincial police said.

Trudeau Likely To Run Again

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau says he will likely try for re-election when the country goes to the polls again presumably in late 1975.

In an interview to be broadcast on the CTV network Sunday night, Mr. Trudeau said: "I've got presumably four years to try and change the society a little bit.

"At the end of four years I'll see if I've got any exciting ideas for the next four years. And if I do which is very possible, I'll try again.

"If I find that I'm wasted and empty, I won't try again. But here again I'm more optimist, whatever that means."

In a wide-ranging interview with broadcasters Bruce Phillips and Lloyd Parker, issued Dec. 14, Mr. Trudeau also commented on his marital and private life.

He was asked if he agreed with his wife, Margaret, that their life together will be happier now that he is no longer prime minister.

Mrs. Trudeau made the remarked television interview this fall, shortly after leaving 14 days in a Montreal hospital undergoing treatment for emotional stress.

Mr. Trudeau didn't answer directly, saying he was prepared to talk about his problems but not his wife's.

"Well, I realize something, I think. It had nothing to do with my job, nothing only to do with my job or with my wife. I realize what I hope most men realize after they've been married a little while, that they never have problems in assuming this new life of being married.

Mr. Trudeau said it took him some time to recognize the burden that was being imposed on his wife.

On another topic, Mr. Trudeau said he is still "a very modest man" when he meets leaders of other countries.

He had probably been around longer than most world leaders and that politicians "tend to respect a little bit more rather politicians who have had some staying power."

The prime minister also reiterated his concern over worldwide economic instability.

However, he continued to be "a moderate optimist" because if "people holds feeling that it's (the world economy) going down the drain, it will go down the drain."

Oil Spill Contained

PORT MCMURRAY (CP) — Company crews monitoring water flow downstream from the area where 4,000 barrels of oil spilled on to ice Thursday reported Friday that no further traces of oil had been seen in the river.

A portion of oil from the Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. (GCOS) pipeline seeped through river ice and headed downstream but the company said the major portion of the spill was contained within 300 to 500 yards of the pipeline break.

Traces of oil were spotted Thursday three miles downstream but open water five miles downstream showed no trace of it, the company said.

Crews worked Friday to skim the oil from the banks constructed near the break. It was pumped into pits and was being transferred to tank trucks for transport back to the company plant in Fort McMurray where it will be re-used, the spokesman said.

Secondary cleanup operations were being set up downstream on the Snake River which flows into the Athabasca part of the Mackenzie River drainage system.

SIMPSONS-SEARS COMPARATIVE PRICING POLICY

Our pricing policy is designed to protect our customers. All price comparisons are as accurate as possible at the time of printing and refer to prices within the preceding 12 months. We publish different pricing for four geographic zones in Canada to equalize the costs of merchandise distribution and thereby provide our customers with the fairest prices.

REGULAR, WAS or WERE—means that in a retail store or catalogue in your geographic zone, Simpsons-Sears has offered for sale, within the preceding twelve months, this item at the comparative price shown—although in many cases the lower price appearing in the catalogue may be in effect for a greater portion of the year than the Regular price.

VALUE—means Simpsons-Sears has offered for sale in a retail store or catalogue in your geographic zone an item of identical quality within the preceding twelve months, differing only in color, pattern, style or aesthetic design, at the higher price quoted.

COMPARABLE QUALITY—does not refer to any former catalogue or retail price of Simpsons-Sears but means that we believe the item to be equal in quality to similar items generally available within the preceding twelve months. However, we cannot take into account pricing of similar items in every community.

The balance shown on your first statement determines your minimum monthly payment which only changes if the balance is increased by added purchases (see charts). Pay full balance within 30 days of billing date with no credit charge, or pay in monthly instalments with a credit charge. A credit charge is added to your account monthly based on the previous month's balance, calculated at an annual credit rate as follows: 21% per annum (1.75% per month) on a monthly balance up to $750.00 and 17.4% per annum (1.45% per month) on any part of the monthly balance over $750.00. (See representative chart of credit charges.) If you pay an amount equal to 50% or more of your balance at your previous billing date, within 30 days of that billing date, the payment will be deducted before Credit Charge is calculated.

Settle for 21½ Per Cent

Ontario Civil Servants Accept Wage Proposal

TORONTO (CP) — A planned illegal strike by almost 36,000 Ontario civil servants was headed off Sunday as the employees voted to accept an 11½-hour wage settlement.

The 19,365 workers, including highway maintenance men, firemen, jail guards, police dispatchers and staff at homes for the retarded and psychiatric hospitals, voted overwhelmingly to accept a wage settlement averaging 21.5 per cent per man per year.

The civil servants had been set to strike Wednesday after contract talks broke down for 24 hours last Friday.

Negotiators for both sides reached agreement after an all-night session and the unanimous ratification of agreement has been by ratified by the workers Sunday.

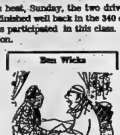
In addition to the 21.5 per cent, about 3,300 jail guards will get an increase of about 23.5 per cent.

The average wage for the various groups is $179 a week and the new increases will mean about $240 more a week annually.

The negotiations between the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) and the province began with an initial union demand for a whopping 41.5-per-cent increase.

That was later reduced to 41 per cent and then 39 per cent, before the last-minute talks found agreement.

The province had stuck to an offer of between 15 per cent and 23 per cent for various categories.



The present settlement is expected to add about $26.5 million to the present $180-million payroll for the operational services classifications.

Eric Whisker, chairman of the management board of cabinet, said the settlement was fair and reasonable.

Throughout the talks, Mr. Whisker and Premier William Davis were set against any high wage increase, insisting they would not be intimidated by threats of strike action.

Mr. Whisker told an afternoon news conference that the premier, vacationing in Florida, is satisfied with the agreement.

The settlement is the first one-year agreement reached by th CSAO. Previous contracts were for two years.

Tax Cut Is Urged On Ford

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — President Ford has been urged by some of his economic advisers to push for a tax cut to bolster the faltering United States economy.

Ford also was reported ready to abandon his proposed income tax surcharges, a measure he urged earlier this year when he declared inflation to be public enemy No. 1.

However, the deepening recession is reported to have had some White House economic advisers in push for a tax cut. That advice was said to have been given to Ford during the weekend when he met with his economic advisers.

There was no indication whether Ford will propose a tax cut. Ford has sworn his advisers to secrecy, and press secretary Ron Nessen has said Ford will not announce any new programs until his State of the Union address sometime after the new Congress convenes on Jan. 14, But Nessen said Ford plans "fundamental changes" in the management of the nation's economy.

Atom Bomb Material Missing at U.S. Plants

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times reports that the U.S. government is unable to account for thousands of pounds of uranium and plutonium that might be used to manufacture nuclear bombs.

The Times, in a story from Washington in its Sunday edition, says the nuclear materials are unaccounted for in commercial plants in the United States regulated by the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC).

Frank Ingram, AEC spokesman in Washington, said commission officials would have no comment on the Times story until they had read it.

Experts in the industry and in universities and concerned AEC officials are cited by the newspaper as the sources from which the account was constructed.

At one unidentified plant, the Times says, enough to make scores of highly-enriched uranium bombs has unaccounted for since the plant began operation. The Kerr-McGee Corp. plant in Crescent, Okla., recently said it was unable to account for 69 pounds of plutonium.

Gold $200 An Ounce At Paris

LONDON (AP) — The price of Gold reached record highs in Europe today and exceeded $200 an ounce in late runs on the eve of the expected American gold rush.

The opening price was $198 an ounce in London and Zurich, up $2.80 and $4.30 from the closing prices Friday.

In Paris, where the price is normally higher because of French exchange control regulations, the morning fixing price was $201.68. The previous record was $197.88 quoted on Dec. 24, and Friday's closing price in the French capital was $197.81.

Nicaragua to Pay $5 Million To Guerrillas for 12 Hostages

MANAGUA (AP) — The Nicaraguan government has agreed to meet the demands of eight guerrillas holding at least 12 rich hostages in a notorious residence since Friday night, but the guerrillas' departure for Cuba was delayed by negotiation of details.

A source close to the negotiations said the government agreed to pay $1 million in small bills to the five men and three women of the Sandanista National Liberation Front, release 14 other Sandinistas from jail and fly the guerrillas and hostages to Havana.

The source said the unresolved questions were how to turn over the money and the prisoners, and how the group would be taken to the airport.

A jetliner of Cubana de Aviacion Airline was readied for the flight to Havana. The ambassadors of Spain and Mexico offered to accompany the group to insure the safety of the hostages. Employees at the National Bank worked through the night, sorting the ransom money in $5 and $10 and $20 bills.

The guerrillas blasted into a party for the American ambassador Friday night. They killed the host, former cabinet minister Jose Maria Castillo Quant, and two policemen. The guerrillas took 50 persons prisoner, including prominent politicians, diplomats and businessmen, their wives, some children, servants and musicians. One of the guerrilla was reported wounded.

Castillo Quant, a wealthy industrialist and politician, was killed by a burst of sub-machine-gun fire as he ran for a closet to get a weapon.

U.S. Ambassador Turner Shelton and his party had left shortly before the attack. The ransom, children, servants and musicians were freed Sunday.

Those held hostage included Foreign Minister Alejandro Montiel Arguello, Guillermo Sevilla Sacasa, the Nicaraguan ambassador to the United States, the Nicaraguan ambassador to the United Nations, the Chilean ambassador to Nicaragua and the mayor of Managua.

President Anastasio Somoza Debayle proclaimed martial law early Saturday.

The Sandinista Front emerged about 10 years ago to challenge the Somoza family, who have ruled Nicaragua for more than 40 years. The group took its name from guerrilla leader Augusto Sandino, who fought the U.S. occupation of the country and was killed in 1934 by the National Guard.

If Bombers Come DUCK!!

TORONTO (CP) — If the bombers come over, duck.

An electrical malfunction set off all Emergency Measure Organization warning sirens in Toronto, Hamilton and most of the Niagara Peninsula at about 3 a.m. today.

Canadian Press, which in the early days of emergency warning systems was to have a role in communications, couldn't find a phone number to contact the EMO staff, finally located on a 24-hour phone at Bell Canada, which is responsible for EMO circuits.

There was mild panic in some radio station news rooms, which according to early plans were to prepare to switch to an emergency broadcasting frequency. But some early-curfew-tape Employees at the National Bank worked through the night, sorting the ransom

Sirica to Tell Jurors Today Pardon to Nixon Irrelevant

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John Sirica is going to tell jurors in the Watergate cover-up trial that the pardon granted Richard Nixon should not be a factor in their deliberations.

Neither the pardon of former president Richard M. Nixon nor any other case or extraneous matters should have any effect on your deliberations or your verdict," Sirica said in the instructions he plans to read to the jury today

After hearing the judge's instructions on the legal issues in the case, the nine women and three men who have listened to 11 weeks of arguments and testimony will begin the task of deciding the guilt or innocence of the five defendants.

The long trial was the climax of the scandal that forced Nixon to resign the presidency hes elected by one of the largest margins ever.

The grand jury that returned the cover-up indictment last March 1, also named Nixon, then still president, an unindicted co-conspirator.

The five defendants are former attorney-general John Mitchell, former White House aides H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, former assistant attorney-general Robert Mardian and Kenneth Parkinson, onetime lawyer for the Nixon re-election committee.

All were charged with conspiring to obstruct the investigation of the Watergate break-in. All but Mardian were charged with obstruction of justice and Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman also were charged with lying to the grand jury and the Senate Watergate committee.

In addition to telling the jurors not to be influenced by the Nixon pardon, Sirica said they should "not draw any inference against any party because a particular prospective witness may not have appeared."

The jury has heard testimony from more than 85 witnesses, about 30 of whom were called by the prosecutors All five defendants testified.

But some of the most dramatic and damning words the jurors heard were from the White House tapes.

The jury listened to 21 tapes, most of which covered conversations involving Nixon and his top aides.

During their deliberations the jurors will be able to listen again to any of the tapes they already have heard.

Quake Toll High

4,700 Die In Pakistan

RAWALPINDI (Reuter) — About 4,700 people have been killed in a string of villages destroyed by an earthquake in mountainous northern Pakistan two days ago, officials reported today.

Two correspondents flown to the disaster area by army helicopter said army officers directing relief operations put the toll at 4,700 dead and 1500 injured in nine villages in the Indus valley.

The officials said even more casualties could be found once rescue teams reached other villages cut off by the quake, in the remote mountain region some 300 miles north of Rawalpindi.

Troops flown in by helicopter Sunday dug throughout the night by torchlight into rubble that had been used as stone houses in the villages of Patan and Jalal.

The quake struck Saturday evening, and rumors brought word of the disaster from the 25-mile-long valley in the snow-capped Karakoram mountains.

Rescue teams and relief supplies had been hit by landslips, and two army field hospitals were set up. Bad landslides on the only highway into the area blocked other aid.

First official reports said there were at least 1,000 dead and 500 injured in the village of Patan, 120 miles north of Rawalpindi, but officials stressed these were preliminary figures.

"We already know of one village that has been flattened and have spotted another nearby," one official said. "There may be several others. The area is so remote we just don't know until we have time to thoroughly survey."

An official in the frontier town of Abbottabad said the valley had a population of 2,000.

One survivor, Mohammad Yasin, said there were several tremors and many of the victims were crushed to death by boulders from the mountains.

"Nobody in authority has ever conducted an about this project," Wallnoefer said. "We are not against it in principle, but we think it is odd that a project is being drafted and presented to the public, without notice."

The Absamgau project has met its protests by the population of the Zillar Tal. Some said it would ruin the environment and consequently tourism there.

An in East-West roads in Tyrol, officials said the construction of a road tunnel through the Arlberg has already been started. The road from St. Anton on the Arlberg to Landeck, east of it, will be expanded and Landeck linked by an autobahn with Innsbruck, the provincial capital.

Wallnoefer said 1974 tourism figures showed there had been "no disaster," but June and the first half of July had been "definite disappointments."

The slack of the early summer months prompted officials to start thinking again about speeding industrialization. Wallnoefer termed the encouraging role of tourism in Tyrol as "standing too much on one leg."

On the other hand, the official stressed that it would take that industrialization must be subordinate to tourism has not been changed. This means the provincial government will not allow industrialization in the most tourist areas.

At The Poll

Mrs. Mildred Brant casts her ballot during Saturday's referendum on Tyendinaga Mohawk reserve which showed majority of voters favoring new council election. The voters and poll officials crowded into small trailer to conduct plebiscite after use of reserve's community centre was refused.

Mohawks Vote in Favor Of New Council Election

TYENDINAGA — Organizers of a referendum which Saturday endorsed elections for a new council to govern the Mohawk reserve will now send a delegation to Ottawa to press their case.

Mohawks voted 126-11 in favor of a new election — the latest development in the dispute between the present reserve council and opponents calling for its demolition.

Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan now will have to recognize the need for a new election, said Chief Maracle, a dissident member of the reserve council and a key spokesman for its opponents.

"I cannot see any other way [Mr. Buchanan] can look at it, other than that the majority of people want an election," said Mr. Maracle after the ballots were counted.

Brant Maracle, another spokesman, said the opposition will prepare a briefing for representatives to Ottawa and personally accompany the minister with the results of the plebiscite.

"We expect him to act in the very, very near future to establish the date for an election by custom," he said.

An election by custom would see the reserve's chief chosen from among councillors elected at present, candidates for chief run individual campaigns and are elected separately by the voters during council elections.

Fredy Baptiste, returning officer for the referendum, said a census had shown 400 eligible voters on the reserve.

Mr. Maracle said he was not disappointed by the turnout which, he said, was affected by several factors.

Polling site for the plebiscite was changed hurriedly last week after Chief William Brant refused permission to use the reserve's community centre — the central, traditional voting place for the Mohawks.

Instead, the vote was taken in cramped quarters — in a small, mobile trailer at the north end of the reserve.

Mr. Maracle also charged that reserve residents had been "intimidated and harassed" against voting.

The present council, he said, is "ruling by fear, more than anything else right now".

Chief Brant termed the claims of intimidation "absolutely nonsense".

He said a number of people had phoned him about the referendum. He told them his stance was that the council recognizes its legality, but it was up to reserve residents to make their own individual decision on voting.

Mr. Maracle said the result exceeded his advance from Mr. Buchanan that a decision would be made on the majority opinion of those who voted in the referendum.

Asked if he though the dissident might refuse an election Mr. Maracle said the opposition group feels that the action the Indian Affairs department in organizing referendum procedures.

"They said we had to do it this way . . . and since it was imposed on us by the government, I can't see why the people can't have their say in electing a government of their choice."

Brant Maracle said Mr. Buchanan had told reporters in Kingston he would set an election date if the opposition Mohawks observed the necessary procedures.

"Now the ball has been handed to the minister and it's up to him to fulfil his part of the bargain," he said.

He also said final a referendum but May called on Indian ownership of an industrial corporation — the issue which touched off the current controversy — showed 70 per cent favoring the proposal put by the present council. Saturday 110 voted yes and 27 voted no. Two elections are deemed chronic damage "not conducive to a large turnout".

The difference in the two votes is an indication that support for Chief Brant had increased since the dispute began, said Brant Maracle.

Saturday's referendum also supported lowering the voting age in council elections on the reserve to 18 years from 21.

Two Held Following Shooting

City police have charged two Belleville youths following a shooting incident on Bridge St. W. early Saturday.

Police said that a scuffle broke out between the two youths over a can of beer at about 1:45 a.m. Saturday on the front lawn of a Bridge St. W. residence. Police added that a person then left in a car, while a second person was shot in a house, picked up a shotgun and fired at the car.

The driver of the car, police said, stopped, came out and went into the house on Bridge St. W. At that point, police said, another scuffle broke out and a second shot was discharged. No one was hurt in the incident.

Charged with discharging a firearm is Douglas Howe, 19, of 187 Bridge St. W., while William S. Turner, 18, of 191 Bridge St. W. has been charged with being unlawfully in a dwelling house.

Two Injured In Mishap

A three-vehicle collision on Mt. Front St. Friday resulted in $1,500 damage and cuts and bruises to two passengers in one car.

Barbara Wright, 21, of Kathleen St. in Guelph and Ann Sanders 25 of Richmond Hill, were treated at Belleville General Hospital for cuts and bruises. They were passengers in a vehicle driven by Edward A. Wright, 21, of Kathleen St., Guelph.

The driver of the second car was William Hawes 41, of Point Anne while the third car was owned by Diane Wynyes of RR 5, Belleville.

Police said the accident occurred when a stopped vehicle was hit from behind, pushing it into a third vehicle.

Edward Wright has been charged by police with following too closely.

Many Students Working During Christmas Break

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Once every six or seven years Christmas falls in mid-week and school holidays, is cancelled more, stretch out for more than two weeks.

This year the holiday, from Dec. 21 to Jan. 5, inclusive, lasts 16 days.

As a result, some teachers are heeding mail for the holiday. Southern vacations, special tours exclusively arranged for teachers, workshops, seminars, and conventions are taking in the incident although police said an attempt was made to pry a pay telephone off a wall.

In an earlier break-in which police said occurred sometime between Christmas Day and Dec. 28, someone broke into the apartment of Restaurin Yorks of 125 Mary St.

Entry was gained through sliding a screen and window in the apartment. Taken were 288 worth of groceries and a 140 cheque from a mailbox.

traditional scheduled for the winter break in March. The Christmas season is a time for home and families.

The pre-Christmas season was a time of activity in the schools. Students took on a large part of the job of providing Christmas hampers for the underprivileged. Classrooms held baby shoe and food collections for purchase of the largest item, the turkey. Other supplies for the hampers were brought from home.

At Quinte Secondary, the staff estimates that 60 per cent of its Grade 11,12,and 13 students are working part-time before and during holidays.

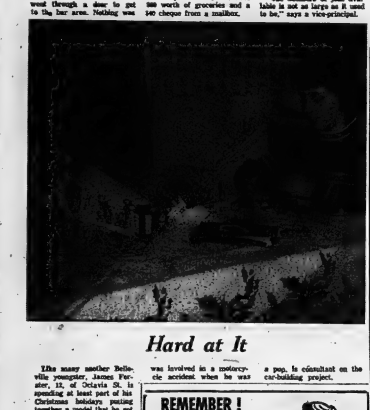
"We are on the edge of the North Front St. service area," says principal, John Hayman. "Most of our student who want work manage to get it."

Inventory taking and sales after Christmas will keep students working through at least part of the holiday.

Gyms at Quinte will be open during the holiday season for team practices.

More than half Bayside's 16-year-old and over student work during the Christmas season.

Indications are that holiday jobs are decreasing slightly. Moira Secondary's staff has observed that fewer students are working this season than a few years ago.



"The number of jobs available is not as large as it used to be," says a vice-principal.

Groceries Missing

City police are investigating two break-ips discovered in the last few days.

Early today, an officer on patrol discovered that entry had been made into the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club. Investigation showed that window near the main entrance leading into a washroom had been pried open to gain entry to the building.

Once inside, the intruder went through a door to get to the bar area. Nothing was

Chief Questions Ruling

TYENDINAGA — Chief William Brant says he will meet in Ottawa today with Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan.

Among issues he wants to discuss with the minister is the ruling of a recent court ruling resulting from the current controversy dividing Mohawks on the reserve, said Chief Brant.

Provincial Judge J. L. Clendenning last week dismissed charges of obstruction against seven Mohawks following incidents at a reserve council meeting in October. Among his findings, the judge ruled Chief Brant had an authority under present regulations to order a man evicted from the council chamber.

Chief Brant said he wants to discuss the ruling and its possible implications for procedures governing council meetings with Mr. Buchanan.

Aid for Students

Contemplating the ghost of another Christmas past is to be reminded once again that while celebration is appropriate and commercialism inescapable at this festive time, the pressing needs of world society remain; they demand our attention and, where possible, a helping hand.

A message from the Ontario Trucking Association is indicative of the selfless attitude of its members in the helping of others.

Instead of gifts to customers at Christmas, many provincial trucking companies diverted funds to assist university students.

Discussion with academic and government people revealed there were many deserving students requiring extra assistance to complete their education, and special aid was given to 173 of them during the past school year.

The allocation brought the total fund of the ATA Trucking Industry Educational Foundation to more than $370,000 since 1958. Bursary assistance has gone to 2,468 students, in addition to supporting specialized projects of the provincial educational system.

Properly channeled, as the above attests, who knows what could be done in myriad ways to make the world a better place for people everywhere.

Artic Problems

A goodly number of the nurses and medical professionals who serve in Canada's far north — and conditions are comparatively few Canadians savor, let alone tolerate — are from overseas.

Britons, Australians and New Zealanders are often to be found braving the little-to-the-raw elements of the vast Arctic region.

And this gives them the opportunity, and right, to say things and point out shortcomings about life there which may not be popular, or complimentary, but nevertheless need to be given voice.

This for instance, in a recent Canadian Press report from Yellowknife: They live years of isolation in remote communities in northwestern Ontario, public health nurse Yvonne Knipe has seen a lot of troubled people.

"If I were a Canadian citizen, I would feel very guilty about the state of the Canadian Indian," says Miss Knipe, 37, who comes from New Zealand.

Miss Knipe, the report continues, provides health services to 1,370 people scattered over the thinly-populated area. About 75 per cent of her patients are Indian or Metis.

"It is most unusual," she says, "when an Indian baby does not have to be hospitalized during his first year for a serious chest, gastro-intestinal or skin disorder, and they will probably have to spend a good deal of time in hospital."

Miss Knipe also refers to the perennial problem of alcohol abuse and loss of self-reliance engendered by the welfare system.

These are the sort of problems to which the government, in co-operation with the Indians themselves, must find answers. Unfortunately they have proved elusive and it is going to take more than mere lip service, and more than the same halhearted effort of the past, in order to really come to grips with the situation.

Jack Benny

Jack Benny of the droll humor, deadpan visage, mock meanness and perennial youth is dead and the world of entertainment is the poorer.

Although Benny's career in show business goes back many years, for most of us it was his weekly television show of recent years that will be remembered. Singer Dennis Day was the comedian's "fall guy" then and Day has a Christmas record out in which, interspersed with his singing, are some dialogue with Benny featuring the familiar voice and of course the excruciating tones of his fiddle.

As we recall, the comedian also played the instrument seriously on occasions — with concert orchestras, for charity.

In recent years Benny produced a couple of "command" specials for television, but it was implicit somehow that there would be more to come.

Now the great man has passed on, after a full and active life that brought pleasure to millions. He was one of a kind.

Foreign Immigrants And Recession Dangerous Mix In Europe in Days Ahead

By JOHN D. HARKNOW

Foreign Affairs Analyst

There is a racial time bomb ticking away and it's not the one we hear about in either Southern Africa or South East Asia.

This one could be in the heart of the European Common Market and against the several million worker-immigrants who left their countries to find better and more affluent European homes.

During the European boom of the mid and late 1960s, perhaps three million Europeans from less-affluent nations, Portugal, Spain, Greece and Turkey went to Germany, the Scandinavian countries, Britain and France for readily unskilled work.

The prospect of hearing Spanish spoken in a high class London hotel or even Turkish in Oslo or Stockholm, now is commonplace.

Their movement not only changed job patterns among unskilled and factory workers but in industrial European states, but created a host of substantial changes in balance-of-payments in the poorer European ones.

Billions have been repatriated earnings into Mediterranean nations are homesites, but in the case of Greece and Turkey they computed with earnings from traditional exports as agricultural products as national revenue of all kinds.

The immigrant, flower of the 1960s like Europe itself, is in fact, wider than this if we include the Asian, African and Caribbean flow into Britain) are that country's immigration and work laws, particularly were tightened self made more restrictive.

Now that economic recession has hit all of Europe, the Mediterranean immigrants are the most unemployed and a change of the entire social security apparatus of enlightened northern Europe is in the offing to hold his job when wages are reduced.

Both emerging circumstances have all the potential for raising bad racial feelings. Hardpressed European middle classes already fume that they pay for social security, will resent their pay for the Southern European immigrants.

The immigrant, out of work and unable to take jobs for the very low pay offered the immigrant, will be tempted to take jobs for better deals to hold any job in hard times.

Switzerland recently relented from strictly penalty foreigners in that country to retain work permits and lives in the country for extended periods of time.

And even though that country is officially trilingual (French, German and Italian), thousands of immigrant workers of similar origins have had trouble fitting into a school system which, for the moment at least has official Swiss languages.

In France, the foreign immigrant problem is compounded by a proud legacy of the colonial era, the presence of tens of thousands of unemployed Algerians and other former colonials existing in depressed and run-down conditions.

Resentment against them is a major factor in politics today in France. And racial prejudice directed against them in a country of mixed peoples and races as openly against French Jews, is an experience which could spread into other European nations.

As yet, there have been no racial attacks against Mediterranean immigrants in northern Europe. The solution might seem to be to send them back to go home.

The problem is that their homelands are harder hit by the present economic recession than the countries where they now live on welfare.

Portugal has a rate of about 25 per cent inflation and a welfare system nearly nonexistent compared to those we pay in Germany or Sweden.

Climate Changes Through History

Scarborough Bluffs Yield Evidence That Southern Ontario Once Covered by Tundra

University of Waterloo

The climate in this part of Ontario was once similar to the climate to be found in the northern parts of Canada, according to two University of Waterloo researchers. The two are a husband and wife team: Dr. Alan Morgan, a soil scientist, and man-environment department, and Dr. Nancy Morgan, of the biology department. They claim 70,000 years ago Southern Ontario was probably covered with tundra, with scrubby willow and birch trees and a few small spruce here and there.

The above claim is not particularly earth-shattering perhaps, but what is interesting is the way they have arrived at it. ... From studying the fossilized remains of pieces of beetles they have been finding in Scarborough Bluffs, Toronto. For the past couple of years they and their students have been clambering up and down the steep and often slippery-clay cliffs of organic debris which they bring back to the campus in plastic bags.

"We look for this black stuff mixed in the silt," says Dr. Morgan. "This is organic material, usually consisting of tree leaves, seeds and moss from previous years. The material is sorted by a Dr. D. Sinclair, Dan Schwartz, have been studying a number of sites from Southern Ontario and the northern United States, as well as from Scarborough Bluffs.

The organic material is carefully separated from the non-organic silt in a lab on the UW campus. The material is washed and strained through a very fine (.149 micron) sieve; the silt runs off and the organic matter is retained. The organic matter is then mixed with kerosene; this results in broken bits of fossil beetles floating to the surface, while they block sprint. The floating material is decanted into another sieve, washed in a detergent to get rid of the kerosene and then in alcohol to get rid of the detergent.

The remaining bits are then put on a microscope, Sometimes ... the University's powerful scanning electron microscope is used.

"Some of the beetles are very tiny — some are less than one millimeter in length," says Alan Morgan. "And the gut only bits and pieces of them; preferably including the elytra (wing covers), heads and thoraces."

They got enough to be able to identify the beetles, however.

In some sites they have identified an many as 1,000 individuals representing some 100 different species. The Scarborough Bluffs findings, to date, contain several hundred individuals from 30 to 40 different species. They have been also working in the old Don Valley Brickyards in Toronto, and have also believed to be about 28,000 years old; there they have discovered as many as 50 species of larvae, and elytra from a species of water beetle which resembles some found in Southern Saskatchewan.

A member of the Scarborough Bluffs fossils, which they estimate to be about 70,000 years old (carbon 14 dating is not accurate for periods of more than 40,000 years) are identical with beetles that live only in the far north today. They, they conclude, the climate in Toronto was once similar to the far north as it is in Canada today, say at Churchill, Manitoba. They also say that 90,000 years ago, or 20,000 years after the Scarborough Bluffs beetles were alive the Toronto region's climate was similar to what it is today.

The Morgans base their conclusions on the knowledge that (1) individual beetle species have survived very little over the centuries and (2) beetles thrive in response to changes in climate they are fussy about the kinds of habitat they live in. As Anne Morgan says: "Climate more accurately, forecast environment, is one of the most important factors limiting the distribution of insects."

Reconstructing climate through the study of fossil beetles is still a fairly new thing. The modern work originated in England about 40 years ago, though mention of insect remains of beetles first appeared in scientific papers about 120 years ago. Alan and Anne Morgan learned the method in England. More traditional methods involve collecting and studying pollen or diatoms (algae) and molluscs. The Morgans believe the beetle method may represent the most reliable way of, for example the researcher to pinpoint changes in climate.

Beetles can fly in and out very quickly in response to a change in climate," points out Alan Morgan.

In England Anne Morgan was able to conclude, from her own doctoral research and with reliable statistical confidence, co-workers, that there had been a number of climatic changes over the past 10,000 years. But she came to the conclusion that changes in climate occurred much more sharply than had probably been believed.

"For example," she says, "we have found it is possible, on at least two occasions, mean July temperatures have risen or fallen by as much as 10 degrees Fahrenheit within a period of 100 years."

The cooling trends went more slowly.

The last "warm" period occurred about 13,000 years ago and the last "cold" period about 20,000 years before that. In the interval there was at least one, and possibly two very cold periods, the most severe probably being about 31,500-17,000 years ago. So far the Morgans have not found any data to indicate Ontario's climate is that much detail.

"The reason for this is that we don't have as much information as in Europe, where in most parts on this continent as we have in the beetle populations of England and Europe," says Alan Morgan.

So they have embarked on a beetle collecting drive and have come up with a surplus way in do it.

They have encouraged co-operative students to start collecting beetles while they are on vacation and bring them to their work terms. Many University of Waterloo students are enrolled in "co-operative" programs which alternate their academic classroom studies with periods of supervised work experience in industry or government service, every four months.

Some students, for example, co-op students as far afield as Edmonton, Alta., Sudbury, Ont., the Gaspe, Schefferville and Labrador, have gleaned and hand hundreds of beetles for the growing collection at Waterloo, which Dr. Nancy Morgan has divided the far north.

"Because we can make between the beetle we are find and the distribution of living beetles, the better we should be able to reconstruct past climates," predicts Anne Morgan. "But a great deal of work is to be done."

Lennox And Addington Studies Regionalism

Napanee Beaver

Lennox and Addington County Council is taking what appears to be a healthy approach toward regionalism in considering the study of restructuring of the existing county system of administration.

It is understood that there are advantages to be gained in amalgamating some services on a county-wide basis in terms of greater provincial grants, and Deputy Reeve Jr. Gordon, president of the county library working well.

Two points seem to suggest considerable, however. One is the length of time required to complete the study. It would seem that with the information available and the expertise of the staff that has been engaged to do it, that the information could be assembled, analyzed and compiled in a report in a somewhat shorter time than two or three years, as suggested.

The other point concerns the views of the people who has been engaged to investigate and report upon county hall. Dr. Richard C. Tindal, in a recent press report, he has been quoted as stating that he considers part of having your councillor right around the corner being more democratic and responsive is more myth than reality.

"Representation," Dr. Tindal is quoted as saying, "involves not only a willingness to listen but the capacity to act and that the councillor is not and the small municipalities so highly valued are unable to act effectively with many of their citizens' concerns."

This indicates that Dr. Tindal is already convinced that there should be a collapse of smaller municipalities to create larger local government units it is his belief that efficiency and "responsiveness" to local needs. So it is hoped that a statement to foresee what he is likely to "recommend" in his study of study". He's already decided on that. His report will be an attempt to justify his view.

Although sharp increases in costs have been the result in areas where regional governments have been implemented by the province, this need not be the case necessarily. The government's record for overall efficiency and economy can't be blamed for fearing that costs would escalate in the event of county restructuring. What we need is a quicker survey with a report later months rather than stretched the two-year term of the two county councils, with information in it on which the 1975-76 council can make a decision and make it stick.

Driver's Safety Belt Foils Gunman

Kingston Whig- Standard

A Florida man recently went against his better judgement (his own opinion) in picking up a lone hitch-hiker at night. Unfortunately, the passenger was anything but grateful for this measure of Christmas cheer and a few moments later drew a gun on the man, ordering him to "stop immediately ... This is a hold up and I mean business." Consequently the would-be killer was herled into the windshield of the car and knocked unconscious. Whereupon the driver took the gun and drove to the nearest police station, his assailant unconscious until his arrival at the local hospital under police guard.

And the moral of the story? Never give a crook an even break.

Migraine Probe at Queen's

Queen's University
Campus 74'

One of the problems of headache sufferers is that the painful condition does not evoke much sympathy from friends, family and especially employers.

Numerous surveys show that migraine, although it has no risk to life, is one of the most medical causes of absence from the work field," said Dr. Stacey Wolff, professor of the Neurology Division of the Faculty of Medicine.

A member of the medical advisory committee of the newly formed Migraine Foundation, Dr. Dinsdale brings with his knowledge of migraine, his personal experiences as a migraine headache sufferer himself.

The Migraine Foundation was established in 1973 with the aim to educate the public, raise funds for research and help in providing service, possibly in the form of clinics where migraines can be treated and studied. The head office is in Toronto.

"Migraine is not diagnosed as often as it should be," said Dr. Dinsdale. "Many migraine sufferers are not well instructed about it.

Migraine can be mistaken for tension headache caused by muscle contraction in the neck and back. Occasionally migraineurs can be helped by identifying a trigger substance in their diet, such as chocolate, said. Doctors must not overlook the possibility of pressure caused by a tumor or blood clot, although this is rare as a cause of headache, he added.

Affecting more than 30 per cent of Canadians, migraine is often inherited by members of the same family. Attacks occur in any age group, although they commonly are first experienced in late adolescence and continue through middle age, starting off at the person gets older.

Classical migraine begins with a change in vision or other perception, lasting five to 20 minutes before the onset of the headache. The headache itself can last from a few hours to days. Common migraine, unaccompanied by any warning, usually involves pain on one side of the head.

Much is still to be learned about causes of migraine. There have been many suggestions centering around changes in the blood vessels in the scalp and brain, Dr. Dinsdale said. "Sometimes triggers the vessels to constrict and then dilate, but the trigger is anybody's guess."

Brazil's exports to Canada of yarn, textiles, fabrics, clothing and cloth for the first six months of 1974 exceeded the total for all of 1973 by $2 million, compared with slightly more than $1 million for the same period in 1973. A major increase was in clothing.

LETTERS

Municipal Representation

The following is the text of a letter addressed to City Clerk Earl Daboo:

Dear Sir: "Are you interested in Civic Affairs?"

Having submitted my name in past years to serve on various Boards, Committees or Council I realize I lack the basic qualification — friends on council.

Thus this year, I will remain interested in city affairs but will not look for my name as I would not wish to replace any of those whose faces have decorated the various Boards etc over the years with unsatisfactory results to many.

It is evident that your request stems from a lack of interest in more than a token gesture.

Why then must Canada be different and call degrees centigrade celsius. Admittedly Anders Celsius, who in 1742 invented the degree scale but everyone else calls it centigrade and why are we have to be different? Could it be that we have an inferiority complex?

Lots to Do New Year's

By AL SABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — New Year's eve party-goers have a variety of choices, both in style and prices, for their year-end celebrations, a survey of Trenton night spots shows.

In some local hotels it will be business as usual. In several others, parties are planned for merrymakers.

At the Redwood Motor Hotel, two New Year's Eve affairs are planned. Cover charge for the first is $19.99 a couple and the other event, $25.

Hotel owner Gordon Leach said the cheaper party will be a little more posh than the former. The hotel will be more elaborate.

He said the hotel is also offering a package deal — either party and a double room for the night for $35.

New Year's day a smorgasbord is planned from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Cover charge at the Queensway Hotel on Davis St. is $7 a couple. The hotel expects about 120 people for the buffet-style dinner and dance. Music will be provided live.

Also the Quinte Hotel, as advertised, will be charged. Two live bands will provide music.

At the Royal Hotel on Dundas St. East and the Plaza Motel and Restaurant on Highway 33 there are no plans for special New Year's eve celebrations. Business will be as usual.

Final Run

As Larry Mayell (front left) completes his final run down one of the Batawa Ski Club slopes Sunday, instructors Fred Weiss of Lindsay and Dianne Hews of Trenton mark the Oak Lake youth on his skiing skill. Larry is one of 13 young men and women who took a weekend course geared to turn out amateur instructors under Canadian Ski Instructors Alliance auspices. Mr. Weiss, a CSIA instructor, conducted the major portion of the course.

Most Pass
Poor Weather Hampers Ski Test

BATAWA — Despite less than ideal snow conditions, 13 Trenton area teen-agers applied themselves to skiing this weekend for the sake of a greater degree of professionalism in their sport.

The group was striving for an amateur instructor's state with the Canadian Ski Instructors Alliance. (CSIA).

A slim majority received that state after the two-day, approximate 15-hour course at the Batawa Ski Club Sunday.

As amateur instructors, they will be teaching the sport to participants in the ski program run by the recreation department of Belleville and Trenton this winter. The course start in January.

Teaching the instructors to teach at Batawa was certified CSIA instructor Fred Weiss of the Bethany Ski school south of Peterborough.

A native of the Lindsay area, Mr. Weiss said he considers himself an ambassador of skiing. His said he strives to instill a sense of professionalism in the sport's instructors.

It's the key word, he said Sunday. That no-sense attitude should be carried from the slopes into the chalet.

Part and parcel of the professional approach is instruction in the ethics of teaching.

An instructor shouldn't belittle or laugh at a skier, either for his peculiar appearance or lay lack of skill on skis, said Mr. Weiss.

Several years ago, at age 60, the instructor took his own words to heart and switched from a career as an engineer to that of a full-time ski instructor.

He operates a marina near Lindsay in the summer, but comes winter he heads to the slopes to teach. Based in Bethany, he frequently travels to smaller clubs, such as at Batawa to teach skills and teach teachers. As at Batawa his weekend, not all aspiring instructors make the grade.

Since the amateur instructor's level was established the qualifications have been stiffened. There are four CSIA skill levels, of which Mr. Weiss holds the third highest.

Cattle Raising Brings Profit

EAST LAKE — On a six acre mini-farm in Alfred Township a former Picton couple has created a pocket-size Devereux in Prince Edward County.

Until 1971, Bruce and Jean Wallace were town residents living close to their jobs.

An employee with Master Feeds, Bruce had close contact with many Prince Edward farmers but little first-hand experience with the farming industry.

His wife, Jean, who is employed by a Picton nursing home was equally unfamiliar with country living.

The decision to give up their home in town was made after Brice found it necessary to move his three saddle horses on four separate occasions.

Wallaces rented in-town stabling facilities for a brief period but found this generally inconvenient.

So decided the next time I moved the horses I would be into a barn of my own," says Bruce.

Two years ago he bought one acre of land in Alfred Township and began to build a house. This construction project was the first of its kind for Bruce who is listed a carpentry and mechanic.

In just a few months time the Wallaces were able to move into their new country home.

Shortly after settling in Alfred the couple bought an additional five acres of land adjoining their property.

Bruce began to farm in earnest assisted by his wife.

Together they worked about an acre and a half of ground for a vegetable garden. They grow beans, corn, cucumbers, peppers and tomatoes and preserve much of the produce for year around enjoyment.

For many years Bruce had sold feed to other county farmers. It was only in finally time to try raising some livestock on his own.

Today the Wallace "herd" includes 18 head of cattle, among them Jerseys, Herefords, Holsteins and Ayrshires.

Although most of the calves are raised for sale as beef Bruce does plan to raise calves from his Ayrshire heifer, Eva.

Small scale cattle raising provides a profit for Bruce because he sells to individual buyers. His stock is not bought or sold through a livestock sales barn.

Fruitful Hobby

Apart from the obvious products of raising fruit vegetables and livestock Prince Edward County's

Bruce Wallace counts the pleasure he gets from his hobby as reward enough.

Since, of chore time, he's joined by the family cat, his constant companion.

Fishing Fees Increased

Non-resident fishermen in Ontario will have to pay $2.25 more to wet a line in 1975 than they did in 1974. The non-resident angling licence fee has gone from $6.50 to $10.75 for seasonal permits and from $2 to $6 for a three-day permit, the provincial ministry of natural resources reports.

Also, the resident Canadian angling licence fee (not required by resident of Ontario) is increased from $4 to $4. All increase are effective January 1, 1975.

Another major change in angling regulations is an all-year open season on rainbow and brown trout in the Great Lakes and a few designated stream mouth areas. At present there is an closed season on Pacific salmon, lake trout and splake in the Great Lakes. A combined limit of five per day is any combination has been set for Pacific salmon and trout (excluding brook trout) in the Quinte area. This change is designed to overcome the problem anglers may have in distinguishing between coho salmon and rainbow or brown trout, the ministry says.

Retarded Seminar Topic

The role of the mentally retarded in the community and how it concerns individuals is the topic for a two-day seminar at Loyalist College.

The seminar will take place Jan. 15 — 16 from 7:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. It is jointly sponsored by the Social Planning Committee of the United Community Services, the Ontario Ministry of Community and Social Services, the Association for the Mentally Retarded (Belleville district) and Loyalist College.

Keynote speaker is Betty Anglin, editor of Mental Retardation, the quarterly magazine of the Canadian Association for the Mentally Retarded.

There also will be resource people involved in work and panels in six areas of community development — social, housing, employment, recreation, education, and health. Those planning to attend should call the UCS at 962-0821.

Quinte Cuisine

Bob Huggan, journalism master at Loyalist College, was born in Scotland. New Year's Eve (Hogmanay to the Scots) brings out his nationality in a very pleasant way. He makes Atholl Brose, a traditional festive drink.

"It's an excellent cold-weather drink," says Mr. Huggan, "and I like it better than eggnog. For one thing, the oatmeal makes it stick to your ribs and keeps you warm longer."

Atholl Brose

one cup clear honey
two cups cereal cream one cup oatmeal
two cups water
two cups scotch whisky

Soak the oatmeal in the water overnight. (See note.)

Heat the honey until it thins, then add the cream as the oatmeal water, stirring until well mixed. Heat these together but do not boil.

Remove from heat and stir in the scotch.

It should be served immediately, but is also good when chilled. Do not reheat.

For a really thick drink, two tablespoonfuls of the oats (after straining) may be added to the oatmeal water in a blender before mixing with the other ingredients.

World-Wide Birth Control Is Deadly Serious Business

LONDON (Reuter) — Lord Ritchie-Calder, doyen of science writers, told a seminar on population policy: "You have to take the stigger out of family planning."

He may have had a point a few years ago. But today, particularly in Asia with its teeming population, family planning is the shape of contraception is nobody's joke. It's a deadly serious, vitally important business.

And despite all the efforts of governments and family planning associations to promote the condom, the coil, sterilization or the pill, it looks like a losing battle as far as population statistics are concerned.

The International Planned Parenthood Federation says devices and propaganda are not enough by themselves to contain the world's population boom. Social-economic changes, an updating of centuries-old cultural traditions and positive population policies by governments are essential too.

But without the work of family planning associations the outlook would be even more desperate. And they can certainly claim, despite Lord Ritchie-Calder's assertion, that they have succeeded in a large extent in making contraceptives respectable.

Nevertheless, by far the most common form of family planning today is not contraception at all but abortion, particularly in the Communist world.

Researchers constantly look for better, simpler modes of contraception and sterilization for the male. Possibly the most significant recent development in the field of pregnancy prevention is the increased attention being given to a technique which could be said, in a sense, to be a compromise between contraception and abortion.

It is a simple matter, by evacuating the uterus, "suction aspiration" is the usual term. In the United States, women's libbers have tended to champion the technique.

Its big advantages are that it can be administered early as in pregnancy—as soon as a woman's period is late, in fact, which does not necessarily mean she is pregnant—and that it can be done by a trained without medical training.

Most doctors are dubious about the idea of non-qualified people handling the technique, mainly for reasons of safety-hygiene, for example.

There are also ethical questions. Sir John Peel, the Queen's former gynecologist and one of the most eminent men in his field, said recently: "I find it very difficult to accept the concept of treating a symptom—the unwanted pregnancy (unequal irregularity)—without attempting a cure."

He cited U.S. figures indicating that in some states like 28 per cent of cases, suction aspiration proved to be unnecessary, but conceded that the risk factor seemed to be extremely low and that it could be especially useful in high-birthrate countries.

Women's lib has also helped focus new attention on the fact that it is responsible's parenthood.

One should it be the woman who has to take pills, with their possible harmful side effects (although a pill study soon to be published is understood to record the lack of most charges)

Men don't have to use coils for diaphragms either and are spared abortion.

Reflecting the new mood is a resurgence in the popularity of that oldest of male methods of contraception, the condom, long stigmatized by its association with illicit sex.

For the man who does not want to be "emasculated" abandoning his ability to father offspring since vasectomy is at present almost always irreversible, the condom remains the only effective male contraceptive.

Somewhere between 19 and 25 million couples are estimated to use it. In Japan, nearly three of every four couples using contraception prefer condoms. There is also a new approach to marketing and promotion: brightly colored (yet still rather unimpressive) packs, exciting brand names and an assortment of colors, shapes and textures for the product itself.

But it may be that the condom is standing or has already reached the zenith of its popularity. What alternatives are on the horizon?

A recent report for the World Health Organization by Drs. gordon Fertin and Rodney P. Shearman concluded that "it is almost certain that a simple, safe highly effective chemical approach to the termination of pregnancy will not be available for human use within the next five years."

There is still some question about the "medicated" intra-uterine devices which release small, controlled amounts of antifertility agents such as copper or progesterone into the womb to prevent fertilization. These seem to be an advance over the inert coils or loops but they can be replaced every year or two.

Injectable contraceptives are under intensive study and pilot projects are under way. A single injection offers protection against pregnancy for three or more months. But some women experience menstrual irregularity and these may be an unwanted delay in the return of fertility.

Another idea is the implanted contraceptive, placed under the skin, or plastic devices which release medication into the vagina or the cervical canal. The most clinical studies of the implant seem to progress and it appears it can provide effective fertility control for at least one year by releasing known amounts of the contraceptive drug into the body every day.

Finding a new, chemical means of male contraception has proved as elusive as it is theoretically attractive.

But recent small-scale clinical studies suggest it might be feasible to develop a male pill which, by combining two types of hormone, would suppress sperm production without inhibiting sex drive or potency.

Vasectomy has become an outpatient procedure in many parts of the world, taking less than 10 minutes and requiring only local anesthetic. Now the search is on for ways of making the procedure reversible by using clips, plugs, valves or other removable gadgets or blockages instead of cutting the vas.

Several of these may become available for general use," the WHO report said.

Researchers still report chilly tentative progress towards developing a reliable post-coital or "morning after" pill.

Donovan — Sweet

A candlelight service at St. Michael's Church took place in November when Donna Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sweet was united in marriage to Richard Wayne Donovan, son of Mr. Lesellie Donovan and the late Michael Donovan.

Rev. John Grainger performed the ceremony.

The bride's sister Jacquelyn Clark of Don Mills served as matron of honor, and the groom was attended by his brother Raymond Donovan, of Sudbury.

A dinner and dance at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall followed the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Donovan now live at 94 Sidney Street.

Timely Tips For Brides

Brides-to-be should plan their engagement notices sent to The Intelligencer at least a month before the wedding.

Notices should be brought in the Classified Advertising Department at the main floor of The Intelligencer. Those without a photograph cost $4, and with a photograph cost an additional $4.79 so that the total cost is $8.79.

As with wedding photos, engagement pictures should be black and white glossy prints for best reproduction in the newspaper. Close-up photos of the couple tend to be more clear than full-length shots.

Wedding photos of the bride and the couple only, excluding the bridal party and relatives.

Information about wedding

Information about weddings be brought in the Women's Department of The Intelligencer as soon as possible after the event. The deadline for photos and story information is three weeks past the wedding.

There is no charge for the wedding story. The photograph's reproduction, however, costs $4.79.

Wedding forms for the supplying of information about the event can be obtained either at the main desk of The Intelligencer, or at the Women's Department upstairs.

Those filling out the forms should be sure to print clearly, and to include the first name of all those people mentioned, including the clergy.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Schneider

Schneider — Johnson

Emmanuel United Church in Foxboro was the setting for the December 7 wedding of Terrie Johnson and Glenn Edward Schneider of Fort Erie.

Rev. Abel Parsons performed the ceremony for which Dorothy Reilly provided the organ music.

The bride's brother-in-law Ronald Keller gave her in marriage. She wore an A-line gown with bell sleeves and a mandarin collar, that she had crocheted herself. Her double-tulle elbow-length veil was trimmed with lace and fell from a Juliette cap. She carried white and yellow daisies with trailing ivy and white streamers, centred with a yellow rose.

Kathleen Derry served as matron of honor in a blue flowered gown with a mandarin collar. She carried a single blue mum with long white streamers.

Ken Stratton served as the groom's best man and Ralph Bridge acted as usher.

A buffet in the church hall followed the service.

After a wedding trip to Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. Schneider have settled at 464 Crescent Road, Fort Erie.

Don't Discard Your Tree

After Christmas, a Christmas tree indoors is a fire hazard. Throw it out — but into the garden, not into the garbage. In the garden, there are many uses for discarded Christmas trees.

"A few branches, cut and laid on the ground to form a mulch, will protect roses, strawberries, chrysanthemums, and other special plants," suggests Ontario Minister of Agriculture and Food Hectior Prud'homme.

"The branches trap snow, and snow is one of the best insulators. It forms an even cover and costs nothing. Mulches prevent the freezing and thawing which heaves the roots and damages plants."

Other uses for the Christmas tree: Evergreen needles and small cut up branches can be dug into the garden sensitive to improve the soil texture.

Flowering bulbs in pots can be rooted outdoors in trenches, for later indoor forcing. If the soil in the trench is protected by thick layers of Christmas tree boughs. In addition, discarded trees make excellent bird shelters and feeding stations.

Ruth Rimmer, Weaver

Quinte Woman

Ruth Rimmer, although a relative newcomer to Belleville, is already widely-known among fellow artists.

A member of the Belleville Weavers' Guild and their most recent workshop leader, Mrs. Rimmer is a weaver with more than 18 years' experience.

Formerly of Burlington, and Toronto, Mrs. Rimmer began weaving when she and a neighbour discovered a mutual interest in learning the craft. They began with a technical school where Mrs. Rimmer continued her study for three years.

It was the natural extension of a long interest in home work.

"My mother thought a summer vacation was wasted unless you had some hand work to show for it," Mrs. Rimmer recalls.

"We all learned to do things with our hands," she says. "I can remember learning to knit when I was five."

Consequently she's an expert at knitting, crocheting crewel embroidery and the like as well as weaving and spinning.

In fact, her Lambert Drive home is completely accessories-ed by the things she hc. created, from the hand-woven upholstery on a favorite chair to a cobwebbed wall hanging to knotted rugs.

It's the color and texture of things that appeals to me," Mrs. Rimmer says. "I suppose and that's why I like doing these pleasant things."

Artist Daphne Odjig Beavon poses in The New Warehouse Gallery, located behind her native arts store in the downtown section of Winnipeg. The gallery is believed to be the first of its kind totally owned and operated by native people in Canada. It is a place where artists can exhibit their works without paying the heavy commissions and fees charged by some galleries. A variety of art forms will be presented, not simply the traditional work often identified in the public mind as the only kind of native art. (CP Photo)

In Winnipeg:

New Gallery Promotes Native Art

WINNIPEG (CP) — Daphne Odjig Beavon, one of Canada's most promising native artists, has won acclaim on three continents with her vivid prints of Indian folklore.

Now, with the opening of The New Warehouse Gallery behind her native art shop in downtown Winnipeg, Miss Odjig is hopeful that her fellow artists in Western Canada will get the recognition and encouragement that often eludes them close to home.

"It's tough for an artist opening up, because not every gallery is willing to exhibit the new artist," she said. "If someone had given me that chance 10 years ago, I would have been very happy."

"A lot of white galleries look at a person's dossier before they decide whether to exhibit him."

The gallery is believed to be the first in Canada totally owned and operated by native people. It is intended as a place where artists can exhibit their works without paying the heavy commissions and fees charged by some private galleries.

Equally important, it is a place where a variety of art forms will be presented, not simply the traditional work often identified in the public mind as the only kind of native art.

Miss Odjig is adamant on this point: "We want to compete in the world as artists, and to go on the bandwagon, as Indian artists."

The gallery's first show, which opened Dec. 8, is a good illustration. Nine other artists, some of them well-known in art circles and some just getting started, joined Miss Odjig in the exhibition.

The styles of the artists are every bit as varied as their backgrounds. Manitoba's Jackson Beardy, for example, is an expert on mythology who began painting as a hobby and was "discovered" during an illness by hospital staff members impressed with his work.

Alex Janvier of Edmonton studied at the Alberta College of Art for four years, drifted away from art and now is back in the field after nearly six years.

Joseph Sanchez is a Pueblo Indian who came to Canada at the age of 10 and now lives at Girouz, Man. Only 26, he has exhibited his work in Winnipeg, Toronto and London.

Miss Odjig grew up on the Wikwemikong Indian reserve on Manitoulin Island, 180 miles northwest of Toronto, and was captivated by the many legends her grandparents told her.

Using her own imagination and self-taught skills, she translated the legends into paintings and later bold and forceful prints as well as murals and illustrations for a series of children's books.

Miss Odjig kept her maiden name professionally, but little else about her work has remained the same over the years. She has used the fine lines of pen and ink to capture scenes of northern life. She has used ground peasant shells, pine cones, wild rice and beads to make collages. Her latest interest is abstract work, verging on the occult and heavy with what she describes as spiritualism.

"You have to experiment to develop," she said. "I have been able to retain my own individuality and my art has progressed through different stages because I have been learning through my own experimenting."

Miss Odjig's career has taken her to the Smoky Folklore Festival in Yugoslavia and to Vixy, Sweden, as the recipient of the Brucebo Foundation Scholarship, and her works have been seen at the Gallery Anthropos in London and Expo 70 in Japan.

For the present, however, Miss Odjig said she would like to remain closer to home. Despite the work associated with the opening of her new gallery and plans for exhibits next year in Montreal and Ottawa, her real hope was to concentrate on her own continuing development as an artist.

Co-operate On Culture

EDMONTON (CP) — A summer program of co-operation between business and government this year included an arts component run by a Calgary church group in an old prairie township, a touring puppet caravan and an Edmonton trail association. The Imperial Oil employment program, in its third year, enabled 40 students a week to work at cultural projects across Alberta during a period of 16 weeks. The $23,000 program was administered through the department of culture, youth and recreation.

Ann Landers

No Excuse for 'Trial Marriage'

Dear Ann Landers: I am the father of three children. Our 19-year-old daughter was married and divorced within seven months and is now living at home while completing her education at UCLA. She is nearly 21.

Our second daughter, Jill, who is just 11 months younger, decided to move in with her boyfriend. She goes to college and works part time.

I find it impossible to condone her actions even though I've been told by many that this is a common practice and the parents see nothing wrong with it. Jill insists she is completely happy and one day she may marry the young man. If, however, they decide to go their separate ways, she claims she will have no regrets because it will have been "a good experience."

Jill's major point is her sister's divorce. She claims that if she and the young man had lived together for several months they would not have married.

I have let Jill know that her behavior is totally unacceptable to me and that she is not welcome in our home. My wife is not as serious about the situation and so am I. Am I wrong, Ann? What are your views?—Sad Dad

Dear Dad: Although a great many students are living together these days I still think it is a bummer and you've said so repeatedly. Shacking up is not marriage, as many who have tried it have painfully learned.

I believe you are wrong, however, to close the door on your daughter. She is old enough to choose her own lifestyle, but you ought not be so rigid and punitive merely because her views are different from yours.

Bury the hatchet, already. Life is too short, dad.

Dear Ann Landers: My in-laws' home is a potential death trap for my 15-month-old toddler. Under every table there are containers with household cleaners, gasoline, lighter fluid, furniture polish and detergents. My mother-in-law lives on a little girl and wants me to leave her there when I go shopping or to a club meeting or attend a church affair. I would love to help her, my kind offer, but I'm scared to death that my child might get into some of that stuff.

My husband says I'm being overly protective. The mother-in-law claims she is a good "watcher" and I have nothing to worry about. What do you say?—Worried

Dear Worried: I say you are absolutely right. Every year approximately 4,000 children die because someone wasn't a good enough "watcher." An additional 12 million children have non-fatal accidents that need medical attention. Stick to your guns, mother. Tell grandma that unless she puts all the stuff in a locked cabinet, you will not leave your child with her.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I split after four years of marriage. Everything was divided and sold. The lawyers' bills were our of this world.

After three months of hellish loneliness we decided to remarry. We're settled all our differences and are happier now than ever. But we are still paying the lawyers.

Please tell your readers that if a lawyer is honest he will do everything in his power to get the couple to "reconsider" We others.

Work Ethic Still Thrives

In a speech by Reuben C. Baetz, executive director of The Canadian Council on Social Development, he called for a brand new approach in the question of the work ethic and the so-called welfare state.

A prime recommendation was summarized as follows:

"That we develop a less pessimistic, alarmist and subjective attitude to our fellow Canadians and their adherence to the work ethic.

"By work ethic is neither dying, nor as weak as we think it to be. The vast majority of Canadians still believe the only acceptable and responsible way to maintain one's independence is through work.

"The only exceptions to the rule are the few low-income Canadians, the 'coupon clippers' who never have and never will work, and the handful of hardy 'co-outs' at the other end of the income spectrum who reject what they regard to be the overly materialistic values of our society."

Of course he and we realize that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy", and we are also making nearly enough good use of our leisure time. By "good use" I mean doing something that will help us as a family or spiritually, or improve our physical health. Good reading, good conversation, an engrossing, creative hobby or two. I could name a thousand things which would help us to grow.

Even once in a while the dear old kind has provided us with something which is food for thought - and action.

Dear Doris: Just display our minister had this chart for the children:

I.Q. - Intelligent Quotient - With which we are born.

P.Q. - Personality Quotient - How do we make ourselves appealing in a Christian way?

C.Q. - Character Quotient - What doings can certainly mar our characters.

We all wish we could live again many phases of our lives. I could. I wonder never allow busy-ness (yes, I mean that spelling) to interfere with listening to every word my child was telling me. If this communication would be so always remained open - at Nan.

Dear Nan: Thank you. I am quite certain many, many readers will benefit from your Doris Clark Interviews Reuben C. Baetz, executive director of The Canadian Council on Social Development, as he called for a brand new approach in the question of the work ethic and the so-called welfare state.

during those hectic early days, would echo your dear wish. Perhaps some of our new brides will be reading, letting your wisdom sink in.

Confidential to I Squeeze Them: Bad habits can be broken! You may wish yours was smoking instead of squeezing whirlwinds - but I don't. People get far more addicted to smoking.

You can stop this unpleasant habit. Think of the scars that won't go away even after you've grown up and long since left your acne behind. Every time you are tempted to squeeze, get your hands busy doing something else.

Keep some knitting or some housewifing handy to pick up on the spur of the moment. Sit on your hands if necessary to keep them away from your face. It won't be easy at first, but anything worth doing is worth determination and self-control.

I'm sending you my 85-cent booklet "Acne - What You Can Do About It" to help you understand what this is all about.

(There is helpful Canadian literature which may shed light on your problem. Write to Doris about it, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply.)

Oshawa's Paul Howard Coasts to Quinte Cup

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

Paul Howard, a 19-year-old resident of Stouffville, walked away with the Quinte Cup at Lake Ontario Speedbowl and Raceway on Sunday as top snowmobile racer at the local event. Howard also pocketed close to $300 in winnings.

"I don't usually race in B function events," said Howard, "but this is sort of a preparation to the Kawartha Cup in Peterborough next week-end." The Kawartha is the 3, 4, and 5 of January.

Although he is still in his teen years, Howard has been racing for close to eight years. "I started when I was 11," said Howard, "I guess it's just in my blood."

Howard is part of the three man Davis racing team out of Oshawa. Also running in the Belleville competition were his teammates Barry Davis and Ronnie Van Dyke. Ronnie finished third in overall standings in the women's event.

He finished with around 980 points based on a second place finish in the 440 modified stock, second in the 340 super stock, fourth in the 250 modified stock and fifth in the 340 modified. Altogether about 250 snowmobiles participated in 15 races.

Charlie Demille, of Fuchsee, was second in the men's event. He finished first in the 250 super and second in the 340 modified. Demille took home about $225 for his two finishes.

Third in men's was Wayne Thomas of Cardiff. He finished up with about $80 based on a first in the 440 modified and a first in 340 super stock. Thomas was also entered in the 440 mod and 440 stock, but his machine broke up on him at the beginning of both races.

Dale Howard, the 23-year-old Thomas, stopped at the Quinte Cup as a form of preparation for the Kawartha.

Deb Selig, of Toronto, finished first in the women's event with a first in the ladies stock 440. Sue Hanna was second with a first in ladies 440 and a second in ladies 340. Ronnie Van Dyke was third in over-all standings with a third place finish in the ladies 440. Local driver, Mary O'Neill was fourth with a third place in the ladies 340.

Belleville's Terry Quinn was first in the junior 250 stock with a first place finish in the junior 250 and a second in the junior snocross 328. Brian Selig of Toronto, was second with a first in junior automod and a third in junior 250. Both the junior events were stock.

Super stock 250 was won by Dave Cox, of Sydenham; amateur stock 440 was by Tim Black, of Colborne, with Tweed's Gary Barton third; 340 amateur stock was taken by Colin Devine, of Alnt, with Stuart Dreyer of Plainfield third; open modified stock 340 was captured by Ray Hoard; Larry Wood: open 440 modified was won by Bob Nagy, of Niagara Falls; and stock 340 was won by Oshawa's Dave Savery; super stock 440 went to Blair McCann, of Dwight, and the open modified was captured by Ray Theuret, of Alnt.

Just over $2,000 was handed out in prize money.

This collision took place on the first turn at the Quinte Exhibition and Raceway during the 340 Super Stock event. Wahzen Baird, from Port Colborne, blew a belt while rounding the corner and two other drivers ran into him. One was Gus Larchille, from Quebec (standing up left), and the other was Larry Lampman, (96) behind ma chine, from Port Colborne. (678) Wayne Hewitt was forced to ditch his machine into the fence and (666) Daryl Thompson narrowly escaped the incident. No one was injured in the accident, but Baird's machine was a write-off.

Silver Puck Tournament

Stage Set for Title Games

By DOUG WALSH
Sports' Editor

TRENTON — After three days of play in three divisions, the Trenton Minor Hockey Association's annual Silver Puck Tournament winds up today with six championship games.

The finals get started at 3 p.m. with the Peewee atoms staging their showdown as Belleville Minor Travel meets Napanee.

Belleville Towers — Food City meets Kingston Township in the 4:30 p.m. major atoms championship game.

In Peewee action, the minor final finds Trenton meeting Oshawa at 5:30 while Trenton holds up with Picton in the bantam section at 6 p.m.

Belleville Mclnroy Construction will battle up with Trenton in the Bantam major championship game at 7:30, and at 8:30, B's Trenton and Kingston Township in the major bantam match.

Mclnroy and the Trenton bantam made sure-of their averages stand up to gain the bantam minor final. The two teams finished in a tie with Kingston Township in their respective leagues and each clicked a mark of 3-1.

Mclnroy's goals for and against in the three games: 16-6 for a spread of 10; Trenton 9-3, for seven and Township, 8-3, five.

The Belleville team took a must win from Township in the final minor bantam match of the tournament, battling out a 3-1 decision when the chips were down.

Darrell Coleman fired both Mclnroy goals, each time combining with Kevin Mc agher. Tim Soule was also in on what turned out to be the winning goal as Coleman shot the Belleville squad in front 3-0, early in the third.

Township prevented Bob Neale from chalking up a shutout when Tim'Allen potted an unassisted counter with time running out.

Mclnroy dropped a close 4-3 decision to Trenton in the first game of the Bantam action, Sunday and then proceeded to whip Oshawa 11-1.

Tom Koppenaal was a two-goal shooter for Trenton with singles going to Sam Bateman and Bill Hilton. Sam Casey, Coltman and Greg Sproat looked after the Belleville scoring.

Clarence Brockema had three goals in the romp over Oshawa. Checking in with two each were Casey, Steve Molina and Mark Crawford while singles went to Meagher and Jeff Simpson.

Trenton other one came over Oshawa, 8-1. The Kingston team blanked Oshawa 4-0 and nipped Trenton 3-2 before bowing to Mclnroy.

In the major section, Trenton chalked up a perfect 3-0 record, topping Napanee 4-1; edging Kingston Township 6-5 and posting a 3-1 squeaker from Lindsay.

Township qualified for the final with a 3-1 mark.

In Saturday's Peewee games, Trenton skated to the major final with a 3-0 record and will meet Oshawa which finished 3-1, in the championship match.

Trenton also went to the final in the minor section, posting a mark of 3-1, equal to its opponent, Picton.

Belleville's only representative was in the minor section where Dixie Lee finished a 3-2, losing a pair of 3-2 decisions to Trenton and Frankford before turning on the power in its last tourney start to whip Picton 7-1.

In the convincing defeat of Picton, Dixie Lee spread its seven goals among as many players. Finding the mark were Stu Emerson, R. Mandeville, Craig Saxby, D'Arcy Maher, Rory MacLeod, Dave Howe and Brian Crookright.

It was Emerson and Bryan Lambie firing the Dixie Lee goals in the last to Trenton which got singles from Dan McDonald, Jim Turner and Dave Yeager.

Dixie Lee blew a 3-0 lead in the loss to Frankford. Saxby and Ken Donaldson scored for the Belleville side. Grant Mullen fired the winner for Frankford. Also clicking for Frankford singles were Todd Pike and Robert Collins.

Friday, in the Atom section, Kingston Township dominated the action

Both major and minor teams from the Township won eight times games to qualify for the finals.

Seven was the lucky number for the majors. The team blanked Napanee 7-0; whipped Trenton 7-4 and topped Belleville Towers — Food City 7-4.

The Township minors said it in more convincing style, scoring 9-1 over Napanee; overpowering Trenton 10-3 and outscoring Belleville McDonald's 9-2.

Towers — Food City made it to the other half of the major final and will supply the opposition Monday. The Towers second in the round-robin with a 3-1 record.

Towers got by Trenton and Napanee by 4-1 and 3-1 scores before bowing to Township.

In the win over Trenton, Towers got a pair of goals from Eric Baker and singles by David Meagher and Jim Wilson. Darrell Shiels was the Trenton marksman.

Robbie Silbeckenskas, Wilson and D. Cooke had the Belleville goals as the team tripped Napanee.

In the loss to Township, Towers' goal went to Chris Coates with a pair, Bakey, and Ron McIntyre was good for a pair with singles for Steve Campbell, Paul Reed and Peter Hall.

Picton marksmen were John Yearwood with two, and Ross Smirk.

Can't Forget Loss to Bruins

Curt Ridley Backstops Rangers to Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goalie Curt Ridley recorded his first National Hockey League victory Sunday night but he still was having trouble forgetting his first loss.

Ridley made his first appearance for New York Rangers 19 days ago in Boston and gave up six goals before coach Emile Francis took him out of the match which the Bruins won 8-3.

The Winnipeg native stopped 25 shots against the expansion Kansas City Scouts Sunday night to help the Rangers win 3-1.

"This game will have to help my confidence," he said. "I was nervous tonight. I was thinking, 'I just hope like hell I don't have to make another game like Boston.'

"When you get that—many goals scored on you in that short a time, you begin to ponder. But I feel better now."

In other games Sunday, New York Islanders goalie Glen Resch shut out Washington Capitals 7-0, Philadelphia Flyers beat Buffalo Sabres 5-2 and Chicago Black Hawks defeated New Leafs Blues 5-2.

Toronto Maple Leafs beat the Islanders 3-1 Saturday, Chicago edged Philadelphia 3-2, Atlanta Flames tied 3-3 with Pittsburgh Penguins, Montreal Canadiens whipped Kansas City 7-2, California Seals drubbed Los Angeles Kings 9-2, Vancouver Canucks beat Boston 6-4 and St. Louis defeated Minnesota North Stars 4-3.

Billy Fairbairn's third-period goal broke a 1-1 tie at New York and gave Rangers the lead over Kansas City, which never caught up.

"I got the puck and I'm sure glad it was a screened shot my cost," said Fairbairn whose first goal was hurry during the game.

"My wife Lloydene called after the second period and told me to get a couple of hot bakes. "I told her I would get out, score the winning goal."

He did beat that, taking a pass from Brad Park and poking the puck between Kansas City goalie Peter McDuffa's legs from about 15 feet out.

Al Lanbever, Md., Resch had to make only 19 saves for his second shutout of the season, beating the expansion Capitals, who finished 1974 with just three victories in 37 games.

Gary Smith and Ralph Stewart each scored twice for the Islanders.

Goalie Bernie Parent had an outstanding game for the Flyers at Buffalo where the Sabres outshot Philadelphia 33-17. The Flyers jumped to a 2-1 lead on first-period goals by Reg Leach, Bob Kelly and Bill Clement and the work of Parent and plenty of close checking the rest of the way held off the Sabres.

Tony Esposito, who last season shared the Vezina Trophy with Parent as the league's top goalies, had an easier night in the Chicago nets with the Hawks outshooting St. Louis 35-18.

Doug Jarrett scored the Hawks' first goal and assisted on scores by Dennis Hull and Stan Mikita.

Tonight's schedule has the Montreal Canadiens at Toronto, at Pittsburgh and Los Angeles at Detroit.

World Junior Hockey

Canada Team to Beat

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada and the Soviet Union came to with easy victories in world junior hockey tournament play during the weekend.

Canada downed Sweden 10-1 and the Soviets beat Czechoslovakia 5-1 Sunday. Finland and Czechoslovakia battled to a 1-1 draw Saturday.

Canada meets Finland while the United States meets Sweden, both winless in their opening games, in Fargo, N.D., tonight.

Two European coaches said following weekend action that Canada has a good chance of winning the round-robin championship won last year by the Soviet Union.

"I was asked last year and I said Canada had little chance of beating the Soviets," Sweden coach Lennart Skoglund said after his club was defeated by the Western Canada Hockey League players. "But Canada this year has a good chance to beat them."

Miroslav Kubera of Czechoslovakia, whose team lost to the Soviets Sunday and dropped two exhibition games to Canada prior to the tournament, said: "Yes, I think Canada will beat the Soviets in this tournament."

Both Canada and the Soviets have two more games before they meet in the final game of the tournament next Sunday.

The Soviets led 2-0 after the first period and 5-1 by the end of the second period of the sixty-minute choppy game. Referee Fred Upton of Canada handed out 18 minor penalties, 13 to the Soviets, as both clubs played with the sticks high and active.

Victor Khatalev scored two goals for the Soviets with Fedin, Boris Chuchin and Alexander Rahimov each scoring once. Karel Holy got Czechoslovakia's goal.

After the surprise win Canada's handling of Sweden, the European Junior champs of Canada played Sweden on even terms through the first period but got two big breakaways by goaltender Alex Oserman—that resulted in goals. Then, after both clubs scored in the first two minutes of the second, Canada took command.

Coach Jackie Hamelin had only days in which to produce his lines, but so far he has been right with each one.

In Canada's first game it was the unit of Bryan Trottier, Kelly Greenbank and Brian Sutter that led the way. Saturday it was Mel Bridgman, Dale McMullin and Rick Blight.

They scored five goals—Bridgman and Blight had two each—and picked up four assists. They speeded the scoring and went to work again Sunday. Sweden cut the margin to 3-1 in the second.

McMullin from Brandon West Kingi, has six points in two games while his Brandon team-mate Blight and Bridgman, the league's leading scorer from Victoria Cougars, each have four points.

New Haven Gets the Nod

Battle of Cellar Dwellers

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was a battle of last-place teams in the Northern Division of the American Hockey League, but what New Haven Nighthawks and Springfield Kings lack in points they make up in offensive power Sunday night.

The Kings outshot New Haven 36-23 but came up on the short end of a 4-3 decision at the hands of the division cellar dwellers.

In other AHL games Sunday, Virginia Wings downed Nova Scotia Voyageurs 3-1 at Halifax, Providence Reds edged Richmond Robins 5-4, and Rochester Americans defeated Syracuse Eagles 8-4.

In an exhibition game, Soviet Wings beat Baltimore Clippers of the AHL 9-3.

Lowell Ortland started the scoring with 12 seconds left in game in the NewHaven game to give the Nighthawks the early lead.

Peter Sullivan gave the Voyageurs the lead on a breakaway goal with just over a minute left in the period, but Rene Robert tied the score at 4:12 of the second period.

Nova Scotia outshot the visitors 36-23.

Noll's Steelers Get by Raiders

CHUCK NOLL

OAKLAND (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers are heading for the Super bowl for the first time in their 42-year history.

On Jan. 12 in New Orleans, one of seven AFC Western Conference champions will be Coach Chuck Noll's Steelers and the other will be Oakland or perhaps Cincinnati Football League champion.

The other dream, of course, is to win it. To do that, the Steelers will have to beat the Miami Dolphins. But for now, beating Oakland 24-13 in one of pro football's grand old bowls.

"I feel like a big shot," the 52-year-old Noll said after the Steelers said, savoring the 26-13 victory over the Raiders in Sunday's American Conference championship.

"It was meant to be—we were meant to win this one," said quarterback Terry Bradshaw. "We knew we were going to win this game, we came here with the confidence to win."

Bradshaw threw the ball only 17 times and relied on tremendous support from running backs Franco Harris and Rocky Bleier.

Harris ran 30 times for 111 yards and two touchdowns. And when the Raiders managed to stop him—which was rare—Bleier was right there, adding 96 yards on 18 carries.

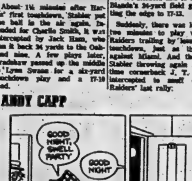
Bleier, who got into the ground game late, rushing three times for 15 yards, The Vietnam Oakland offense, on the other hand, managed only 39 yards rushing in 21 attempts.

They gave up nothing on the ground, nothing on the passing of John Madden. "Our passing game couldn't help us because we couldn't get the run going. I don't remember when our ground game was shut down like that," Madden said.

Pittsburgh's Mean Joe Greene, the defensive tackle who sometimes terrorizes lesser opponents, was Bleier's passing game objective. He was double-teamed and Bleier was open. He caught four passes for 70 yards.

We played them man-to-man up front. We had two people back there. I guess we did," Noll said. "With Oakland going nowhere on the ground, they had to put Ken Stabler's left arm, which is not as strong as his right, and lose touchdowns in their victory over Miami Dolphins a week earlier.

For a while, it appeared he had accomplished that feat for Steelers. The teams started the second half on the ground. Pittsburgh Blanda had kicked a 48-yard field goal for Oakland in the first quarter and Roy Gerela had knotted one in the second. Stabler completed four straight passes, the last one a 30-yard thrown to Cliff Branch that put the Raider ahead 10-3.



Undaunted, the Steelers took the ensuing kickoff and blew the Raiders apart with a 61-yard, nine-play drive that ended with Harris crashing through the middle for eight yards and touchdown on the first play of the final quarter.

"That was the turning point when we went the length of the field and scored after they'd scored," said Pittsburgh coach Chuck Noll.

Almost 14 minutes later Bradshaw fired his first touchdown pass, hitting the ball in the air again. Intended for Charlie Smith, it was intercepted by Jack Tatum, who took it back 34 yards to the Oakland nine. A few plays later, Bradshaw passed up the middle to Bleier, added the six-point touchdown play and a 17-10 lead.

Back again came Stabler, using short passes to Branch and to Clarence Davis, to move the ball to the Pittsburgh six but the Raiders had to settle for Blanda's 30-yard field goal, cutting the edge to 17-13.

Suddenly, there was less than two minutes to play and with the Raiders trailing by less than a touchdown, just as they had against Miami, Stabler threw to Bleier. Stabler throwing again and this time intercepted by Mel Blount, who intercepted to sniff out the Raiders' last rally.

Ipswich Town On Top

LONDON (Reuter) — Ipswich Town starts 1975 as the leader of the English League First Division after beating Leeds 2-1 at 1-0 win at Elland Road Saturday.

Liverpool were second, still on top of the table when its match at Everton was postponed by gale-force winds.

Roger Osborne scored his fourth in the 26th minute for a 2-0 victory at Birmingham.

Ipswich is being hailed every year now. Is Middlesbrough, which drew 3-1 at Everton.

Bob Latchford scored for Everton before Willie Maddren scored for Middlesbrough.

It was the day of the happy return for Queens Park Rangers manager Dave Sexton to Chelsea and Francis Lee of Manchester City to Maine Road ground.

Rangers won 3-0 at Chelsea, from which Sexton was sacked manager three months ago after seven years at the club, with centre-forward Lee Derby rivals Manchester City, his former club, which lost 3-1. Its first home defeat this season.

The Rangers goals came from Don Givens, who got two, and Gerry Francis.

Like Lee, Geoff Hurst of Stoke City scored the winning goal against former club, West Ham United, which lost 2-1.

West Ham led on a goal by Pat Holland, but a controversial penalty awarded by referee Norman Ashley Stabler's cross from the ensuing kickoff and blew past John Mahoney had hit the ber.

Leeds Utd., Geoff Hurst of Stoke City scored the winning goal against former club, West Ham United, which lost 2-1.

West Ham led on a goal by Pat Holland, but a controversial penalty awarded by referee Norman Ashley Stabler's cross from the ensuing kickoff and blew past John Mahoney had hit the ber.

Leeds Utd., at the bottom of the table, appears to have a First Division future—Dennis the 35-year-old striker Ron Futcher.

His goal three goals in his home debut at Luton beat Wolverhampton Wanderers 3-2 to record the third win in their league win. And on Boxing Day, Futcher hit the goal on which Luton beat Ipswich 1-0 and handed the Suffolk league leaders off the top of the table.

A week ago Luton had only three points. Now, with 27, it is only one point behind the second-last Second Division club, Leicester City.

Second Division leader Manchester United met with a rare 1-0 defeat at Oldham, where Manchester Utd's Martin O'Neill penalty proved decisive.

In the Scottish League, Celtic maintained its two-point lead over Rangers with a 1-0 victory at Kilmarnock on Kenny Dalglish's goal in the 36th minute.

Derek Johnstone and Jim Pearson scored to give Rangers a 2-0 win at home against Ayr United.

Errors Mar NFC Final

Vikings Are Back Again

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — In a strange, error - filled battle, Minnesota Vikings rallied to their second consecutive National Football League conference championship and another Super Bowl appearance with a 14-10 victory over Los Angeles.

"We just made too many mistakes in opportune situations," said Rams' quarterback Jimmy Harris, who completed 13 of 23 passes attempts for 202 yards. "They played better than we did and beat us."

Minnesota, which has gained a reputation of turning opponents' mistakes into championships, advanced the ball four times because on turnovers. However, the Vikings were plagued by five turnovers in addition to numerous blunders — particularly penalties possibly resulting as an aide interaction which occurred when the Vikings' punter.

"We'll take them any way we can get them," said Jocko Nelson, the Vikings' assistant coach.

Minnesota took a 7-0 lead in the second period when Fran Lash, a second-year wide receiver from Northwestern, hauled in a 32-yard scoring pass from Fran Tarkenton a step ahead of LA right cornerback Al Clark.

"I've told me to run a fly pattern," said Lash about his first professional touchdown reception. "I was pretty much man-to-man against Clark."

The Rams countered with David Ray's 37-yard field goal to cut the deficit to 7-3 by halftime.

Then, in the third quarter, a series of unlikely developments unfolded.

Vikings' Mike Kirchoff punted the ball out of bounds at the LA one. The ball was brought in by a 73-yard pass play from Harris to wide receiver Harold Jackson who was pushed back, moved to the Minnesota one.

Quarterback Bob Lee entered after taking a desperation pass from Harris for 19 yards, and was knocked out of bounds inside the Vikings' 10 before being sacked by Jeff Wright.

The Vikings then began a long and I was able to break away," said Harris. "The Vikings gave several defensive fronts, and I say anything we didn't expect."

Lee's pass was intercepted by LA back to the air, Harris completed seven passes in a row on the next play he was intercepted by Nate Wright, ending in the end zone. Harris' pass, intended for tight end Pat Curran, was deflected by Vikings defensive back Jackie Wallace.

"Wallace made a super play and tipped the ball right to me," said Hilgenberg. "I'm too tall and he slow to have tried to run the ball out."

Minnesota quickly drove 32 yards with veteran running back Dave Osborn hurdling the final yard to push the Vikings to a 14-3 advantage early in the fourth quarter.

Harris got the Rams back into the game three minutes later when he combined with Jackson—on a scoring pass covering 64 yards to chop the Minnesota lead to 14-10.

Bob Hope and George Burns Give Eulogies as Benny Buried

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The "end of vaudeville" trouper," Bob Hope remarked at Jack Benny's funeral tributes for the entertainer world around as they Hollywood fashion to pay a final tribute Sunday to the genius, self-effacing comedian who died Thursday night.

About 350 persons crowded into the Hillside Memorial Park Chapel in suburban Culver City for the service while 3,000 others stood behind police lines outside in late December sunshine and heard Hope's eulogy. Hebrew prayers and brief, tasteful tributes of Benny's closest friend, George Burns.

But it was an acutely crowd by Hollywood standards and the most star-filled in recent memory. Missing for filial piety was Benny's respect for Beverly, who died of cancer of the throat in 1965.

Hope began by quoting a message to Benny's widow, Mary Livingstone, from President Gerald Ford and his family. His usual composure shaken, Hope continued: "Last Thursday night, the world lost someone I loved very much . . . But the said that is left is quickly filled with happy memories."

Hope commented that great performers come along "once in an" he named Al Jolson, Humphrey Bogart, Clark Gable, Will Rogers, Maurice Chevalier—and Jack Benny.

"He had a rare magic, like Keaton and Gershwin . . . He was the undisputed master of timing and yet he left us much too soon.

"He was stingy to the end; he only gave us 39 years and that wasn't enough."

Rabbi Edgar Magnin of the Wilshire Boulevard Temple where Benny worshipped, intoned the 23rd Psalm and the Mourner's Kaddish and intoned Burns.

The grave - twisted cassette seemed bowed by the years and said haltingly, "I don't know whether I'll be able to do this, but I told Mary I'd try."

Burns continued in a low, faltering voice:

"You all knew Jack. What can I tell you about him that you don't already know? I knew him for 55 years and I considered myself very fortunate, very special because at 8, I can't remember my life without him. I'm going to miss him."

The crowd began to form at the cemetery in early morning. Onlookers pressed forward for a closer view of the celebrities and sometimes had to be pushed back by police.

Among other celebrities buried at Hillside Memorial Park are Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor, Jeff Chandler and Hal March.

The services were simple and brief, in keeping with Benny's style and sense of timing. The closed casket was covered with torn and gardenias, and bowers of floral display lined the back wall of the chapel.

Before the graveside ceremony, the people who had walked solemnly were permitted to enter the chapel and pass by the casket as the celebrities wished.

The widow did not appear, remaining secluded in the family room at the side of the chapel.

"Jack Benny was the richest man I know," Hope told the mourners. "He was happy with what he was, what he was and where he was."

The entombment was private.

Trudeau Expects To Run Next Election

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Sunday he will lead his Liberal party in the next federal election if he feels he has something to offer the country.

Mr. Trudeau, speaking in a year-end interview on a CTV television network program, repeated Dec. 16, said he will be changing course if over the next four years of government and "if I've got any exciting ideas that I can get enthusiastic about which is very possible, I'll try again.

There had been speculation the prime minister might step down before the next election, having led his party to three consecutive victories at the polls.

Part of the speculation stemmed from recent comments from Margaret Trudeau about the difficulties of life as wife of the prime minister.

However, in the interview, Mr. Trudeau said he will be able to deal with the problems.

"I realize what I hope most men realize after they've been married for a little while, that their wives have problems in assuming this new life of being married.

"It is a course, my life and a husband's life goes on; I was prime minister before, I remained prime minister after. I was still doing the same kind of work.

"But for a wife to come into this, she is expected to adapt suddenly to this new kind of life. Sometimes she has to do it more artificially overnight," Mr. Trudeau said.

"She has to do it, being very young, and I've certainly drawn conclusions about the difficulties of women assuming their husband's identity in the modern world."

The hour-long discussion with Bronco Phillips, CTV's Ottawa bureau chief, and Carole Taylor, a network interviewer, covered a wide variety of topics, including both the domestic and international scene.

The prime minister spoke briefly of economic problems around the economy, saying Canada should be better off than other countries in the event of severe economic shocks.

"It won't be as tough for Canadians," he said. "... I think Canadians will still be better off than most no matter how bad the world goes."

Mr. Trudeau said nations are beginning to realize the high degree of interdependence involved in the world economy and are increasing co-operation. However, there were no instant solutions to world problems.

Touching on the close economic links between Canada and the U.S., the prime minister said he sees no major irritants between the two countries. He said there are minor problems, such as the auto pact, the recent decision to cut Canadian oil exports and Canadian opposition to deep seaports, but they do not form wide gaps between the two nations.

"Sure, there's bound to be little irritants, but they've never led, in recent years at any rate, to any social crisis between countries," he said.

"I have no cause to feel that they will lead to any social crisis this time. . . ."

Three More Top CIA Officials Quit Counter-espionage Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three more top officials in the Central Intelligence Agency's counter-espionage division are stepping down amid a reported policy dispute and allegations that the agency is involved in domestic spying.

Along with the resignation announced Friday of James J. Angleton, chief of the counter-intelligence chief, the three departures leave vacant the top command of the division, which is to have disagreed sharply with CIA Director William Colby over dealings with the Soviet Union and Colby's decision to open some of the agency's files.

Colby is saying this is routine, "a well-planned succession" said at the department.

Meanwhile, it was learned that Angleton, named in published reports as the precursor of the alleged domestic spy operations, once served on the intelligence agency's staff reported directly to the White House on the threat of domestic subversion said of the department.

The so-called Intelligence Evaluation Committee was established by Harold Macmillan, former assistant secretary-general and now a defendant in the Watergate coverup trial, the sources said the committee was established by a staff aide included Richard Ober, named as the man who ran the CIA's illegal domestic surveillance activities on a day-to-day basis.

Angleton has been under Congressional investigation of illegal domestic spying. Ober, once an aide to Angleton and now on the National Security Council staff has declined to comment.

In addition to Angleton, 57, whose resignation was requested by Colby 30 days ago, Raymond Rocca, 57, No. 3 man in the counter-intelligence division, Newton Miller, chief of operations, and William Hood, 54, executive officer, also are leaving the agency at the end of this month. Rocca, Miller and Hood could not be reached and are stepping down, but declined to comment.

The CIA's mandatory retirement age is 65 for most of its employees, but the agency requires them who have served overseas to retire at age 60 or target others to do so as well.

Angleton's resignation and those of four officials said their declines were influenced in part by a published report that government employees who receive bribes can get off the hook. However, the source said allegations of domestic surveillance and a long-standing policy dispute with Colby were the major factors in the resignations, Rocca and Miller.

It was learned that Angleton's name was mentioned in one draft of the 22-page report on the alleged domestic spying Colby was forwarded to then President Ford. Details of the existence in Angleton could not be determined.

Angleton was identified by two ural sources as head of the agency's operations in New York City during the early 1970s. The New York Times reported in its Sunday edition that as many as 20 CIA agents spied on anti-war activists and other militants in New York during the late 1960s and early 1970s. Colby called the report "about two basic nonsense."

On Sunday, Senator William Proxmire (Dem. Wis.) said on ABC News' Issues and Answers he had learned from sources he called very reliable sources that the CIA did engage in surveillance, break-ins and wiretaps while spying on American citizens in this country.

Canadians Seem to Prefer To Greet New Year Quietly

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Many Canadians are casting aside traditional party hats noisemakers and fence-laced festivities and plan to just sit and relax as the New Year rolls in Wednesday.

Vancouver Mayor Art Phillips is among those who view the tranquil way of bringing in the New Year as a welcome change.

"I really find the New Year's thing quite artificial (these days and don't get out much," says Mr. Phillips.

He spent last Dec. 31 in Aspen, Colo., relaxing in the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band.

"It was the first time I had gone out on New Year's Eve for years," said the mayor, in Aspen again this year sitting and planning to greet the New Year there quietly with friends.

They will also. Many other Canadians, including scores of federal and provincial politicians, also plan to see in the New Year quietly.

Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed and his family are vacationing in the mountains and Newfoundland opposition leader Robert Aspell will be with his family at their country home near St. John's "in front of a roaring birch fire, consideringly even greater success than 1973 achieved in 1974.

Other public figures, including Governor General Jules Leger and Prime Minister Trudeau and with Margaret, have gone to warmer climes.

Meanwhile, hotels and nightclubs in major cities still are expecting the usual throngs of merrymakers seeking more uproarious activities.

Prices vary, but Toronto marks Thursday night with one of the highest in the country.

Many hotels are packing up rates Dec. 31 and most larger cities have set aside dinner of $100 per couple for dinner and entertainment.

Couples with extra cash and an appetite for extravagances can count as much as $25 (at the Hyatt Regency Hotel) for a full plate of New Year's Eve fare, including a champagne and oyster reception, a double orchestra, entertainment abroad, "endless" wine with dinner.

They can also dance the night clocked in the all-night ticket there.

Pairs who shun that degree of activity and expense can opt for a more modest evening with as little as $6 to $15 for admission to one of the city's many nightclubs. Drinks and food are separate.

Toronto residents also may leave their cars at home and ride the city's transit from 6 p.m. to 4 a.m., courtesy of a $375,000 subsidy to the public system for the third consecutive year.

The city's police force also is trying to make the streets safer. It has had about 200 extra men on duty since the start of the holiday season, holding spot checks to weed out impaired drivers.

But many city forces have not introduced any special safety programs and several police spokesmen said New Year's Eve has been relatively quiet in recent years.

RCMP in the western and Atlantic provinces have increased surveillance, however.

Police here note has the first fully-outfitted mobile breathalyzer testing van as a further deterrent to drinking and driving unit, purchased by the provincial government. It will be used in conjunction with regular RCMP checkpoints.

Lawrence Undecided

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP) — Federal MP Allan Lawrence, a former Ontario cabinet minister, said Monday he has not yet decided whether to seek the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party. Lawrence is Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield's chief rival.

Mr. Lawrence resigned his provincial seat in the Toronto riding of St. George to run in a by-election in the 1972 federal election. Mr. Stanfield said after the election he will step down before the next national vote.

During his 14-year stint in the Ontario legislature, Mr. Lawrence held two cabinet posts and came within 44 votes of defeating Ontario Premier Wm. Sam Davis in the 1971 provincial election campaign.

He said in an interview that the national leadership is a gruelling job. He also cited the lack of French as a possible drawback.

Mr. Lawrence said the party's leadership convention is to be held in late 1976 or early 1977.

IN MEMORIAM

ARMSTRONG — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Arthur John Armstrong, who died Dec. 30, 1971.
A little tribute small and tender,
Just to say we still remember
Sadly missed by daughter Marjorie, son-in-law Ernest and granddaughter Linda.

CHANTON — In loving memory of a dear brother, Ernest Chanton, who passed away Dec. 30, 1972.
"For we are sisters, by birth,
When a new tie was not to be,
But one that dearer, stronger yet,
Two sisters' love in childhood met."
You didn't deserve what you went through,
And so the years you've spent
Don't matter much to me.
But I'm only glad you're home,
Sadly missed and always remembered by your sister Ruth and family.

CHANTON — In loving memory of a dear father, Ernest Chanton, who passed away Dec. 30th, 1972.
In vain we call, in vain we cry,
We watched you fade away,
We miss you more than anyone
Ever taught to say.
Dear when we are sore drooping,
Sad and lonely, dear father,
We could but wish you back,
But God thought best.
Sadly missed by Mavis.

Bird Man

Christopher T. Ridley, working almost entirely with small private donations, has built Birdwarzen Sanctuary on the outskirts of Winnipeg into a well-know refuge for countless varieties of living creatures. Mr. Ridley is shown with a young snow owl he is treating for injuries. (CP Photo)

Soft-spoken Conservationist Maybe Endangered Species

WINNIPEG (CP) — In an age filled with concern about endangered species, men like Christopher T. Ridley may be the most endangered species of all.

The soft-spoken bachelor has surrounded himself with birds and mammals, cared for their injuries, studied their habits and served as adviser and teacher to Winnipeg animal-lovers for most of his 66 years.

Working almost entirely with small private donations, he has built Birdwarzen Sanctuary on the outskirts of the city into a refuge for countless varieties of living creatures.

Sam the Toucan and Izzy the Pelican are among the most famous of Mr. Ridley's exotic wards, but the main work of the sanctuary is the care of local birds brought there by the thousands.

"During the summer months, there's people in and out of here at all hours of the night or day with injured creatures that they find or with pet problems and I don't get five minutes to myself," he said.

Love of animals came early in life to Mr. Ridley, the youngest child of a family that emigrated from England in the early 1900s to homestead in Manitoba's interlake region. He says his mother was the "instigator" of this interest.

"She encouraged me in every way possible ever since I was a tiny fellow to care for anything that was found injured."

The Ridleys moved to Winnipeg in the 1920s and the first of several animal sanctuaries soon became a reality. As the city grew, the family moved to less developed areas and Mr. Ridley eventually found himself totally engrossed in a career as a "free-lance zoologist."

Birdwarzen, now serves as the focal point for a host of activities. Visitors and school nature groups are frequent guests for impromptu tours of the sanctuary.

Mr. Ridley and his animals have made numerous appearances on local radio and television shows and he has been the stages each spring at a Winnipeg shopping mall have captivated thousands of local residents.

Most of his wards are put back into their natural habitat as soon as their injuries heal. Despite his formal training in zoology, Mr. Ridley places far greater emphasis on the practical rather than the theoretical side of the profession. And he has a strong personal aversion to animal shows featuring "trained" creatures.

"I don't believe in training animals to do spectacular tricks," he said. "Domestic pets are trained to do all sorts of weird and unusual things. I think it's ridiculous. I like a dog to be himself."

Mr. Ridley has worked with zoologists for both provincial and federal governments. But he has never had a formal job in zoology nor received more than a modicum of government support for his work.

Instead, he has relied on private donations and a modest income from boarding animals to sustain his sanctuaries.

"I've often wondered how I've managed to carry on over the years," he said. "I didn't do it because I make money, because I don't. It's very unremunerative."

One of Mr. Ridley's biggest concerns has been to ensure the survival of his sanctuary. This concern has finally been allayed with the purchase of 30 acres of property near Argyle, Man., with the support of the Winnipeg Game and Fish Association.

Jackson Most Prominent Of Canadians Lost to 1974

By R. E. ANDERSON
The Canadian Press

One of the great ones in the Canadian art world died in 1974.

He was A. Y. Jackson, last of the famous Group of Seven that, in the early 1920s introduced a new and at the time almost revolutionary style of painting—bold, vigorous, colorful and "different" in its portrayal of the rugged Canadian landscape.

A. Y., as he was familiarly known, sure and painted much of it, from Ontario's Georgian Bay, his favorite subject, to the High Arctic in his 91 years.

Alexander Young Jackson in his last years lived in semi-retirement in Kleinburg, Ont., in the art-gallery home of his e x - b r o t h e r Robert McMichael that contains many of the Group of Seven's works. He died in hospital near there April 5.

Other Canadians prominent in the world of art who died during the year included Frederick Winkler, architectural sculptor, who did the stonework on a Toronto bank building and on the Toronto Stock Exchange building, died in Toronto Nov. 27 at the age of 77.

The theatrical world lost Andrew Allan, pioneer of Canadian radio and television drama, who died Jan. 13, aged 66, and Brian Doherty, founder of the Shaw Festival at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., who died Oct. 30 aged 58.

Many well-known newspaper men died.

A.-P. Mercier, 73, former president of The Canadian Press and former vice-president and general manager of Quebec Le Soleil, died Feb. 19 and James M. Minifie, 74, retired Washington correspondent of the CBC, in Victoria, B.C., June 13.

Gerald Campbell, parliamentary reporter with Ottawa Citizen from 1925 to 1972, died June 17, aged 67, and Fred O'Malley, former rr executive editor of the Montreal Star, three days later, aged 78.

Peter Whitnall, 67, former Winnipeg Free Press reporter and CBC commentator and producer, died Oct. 12. He was best known as Mr. Fixit for his television programs.

The Roman Catholic Church lost James Cardinal McGuigan, 71, who died in Toronto April 7. Cardinal McGuigan was the former Archbishop of Toronto and Canada's first English-speaking cardinal.

The Anglican Church of Canada lost two notable figures: Rt. Rev. Thomas Greene, 91, former Bishop of the Yukon, in Toronto Feb. 1and Rt. Rev. Cecil Queen, 75, bishop of Huron, in London, Ont., Feb. 21.

George Henry Dowell, former Progressive Conservative member of Parliament and Ontario cabinet minister, died in Carleton Place, Ont., May 17. Hon. Lionel Chevrier, a former minister in the cabinets of Liberal prime ministers Mackenzie King and Louis St. Laurent, died in Ancaster, Ont., May 2.

A stalwart of the New Democratic Party, M. J. Coldwell, a former national leader of the NDP's predecessor, the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, died in Ottawa Aug. 26 at the age of 83.

Among sports personalities who died during the year were Lloyd Percival, 81, founder of the Toronto Maple Leafs and sports training authority, in Montreal July 31; Tim Horton, 44, National Hockey League defenceman for 1774 years, in St. Catharines, Ont., Feb. 21, and Phil Farley, 66, noted amateur golfer, in Toronto April 10.

Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, considered Canada's top battle-field commander in the Second World War, died in Toronto May 15 after a long illness. He was aged 71.

New Telescope Offers Fresh View of Space

SYDNEY (Reuter) — Man's exploration of outer space has taken a significant step forward with the inauguration of a huge telescope some 300 miles north-west of Sydney.

A joint Australian-British venture, the giant telescope will give the world its first chance to explore the almost virgin territory of the southern sky.

The Anglo-Australian telescope, as it is called, at Siding Spring Mountain, is superbly well positioned to study the two Magellanic clouds, the nearest galaxies to our own, which can be seen only from the Southern Hemisphere.

Only the telescope can also look right into the centre of our own galaxy, the Milky Way, giving it a decided advantage over telescopes in the North ern Hemisphere, where the Milky Way appears low in the sky.

The 388 million telescope was inaugurated recently by Prince Charles. Brilliantly clear test photographs of the southern skies have already been produced by the telescope.

Astronomers are predicting that this 13-foot mirror will prove better than anything currently operating, including even the one greater giant 200-inch-lock scope at Mount Palomar in California.

Astronomers believe a spate of discoveries will follow, including many surveys.

The dome of the scope dominates the 3,800-foot-high Siding Spring Mountain at a site chosen after an Australia-wide investigation because it is 60 per cent cloud free from clear-time clouds.

Because of its remoteness, no artificial light problems exist and it is expected that about 1,- 500 hours of steadily clear night sky will be available each year.

The heart of the telescope is the circular mirror—a block of glass specially mined at its upper surface by a thin layer of aluminum. The material itself, called cervit (for ceramic vitreous), has been carefully shaped so that the mirror will bring to a sharp focus the light from any object to which the telescope is pointed.

Raisins and Almonds

In her first professional role, eight-year-old Susan Member of Winnipeg stars in Raisins and Almonds, a one-hour drama telecast Sunday, Dec. 1 — CBC-TV. Raisins and Almonds is a story of a young Jewish girl's experiences of Christmas in a small Protestant province town in 1936.

Cuba Slowly Reopening Miles of Fine Beaches

HAVANA (Reuter) — Cuba is slowly and cautiously reopening its hundreds of miles of unspoilt and sun-splashed beaches to international tourism.

After being ignored by the glamour tourist brochures for nearly 16 years, the island is being rediscovered by Western visitors, mostly Canadians.

After Fidel Castro's guerrillas toppled the dictatorship of pro-American strongman Fulgencio Batista in January, 1959, tourism dwindled almost to zero in this former playground of the Western Hemisphere.

Weekend trippers from nearby Florida and package tourists from New York stopped flocking to Havana even before the United States decreed its boycott of the Castro regime.

The closing of the Mafia-controlled gambling casinos, pornographic shops and sex movie theatres which gave Havana its nickname of "brothel of the Americas" was enough to discourage some tourists.

Another factor was political uncertainty.

In recent years, the tourists have mainly been members of official delegations, East Germans or Soviet workers on Caribbean cruises and West European youngsters sympathetic to the regime.

Occasionally bold spirits landed at Havana airport, but soon found touring was practically impossible because of transport and accommodation problems.

Cuban authorities were busy promoting "domestic tourism for a population which by and large had never even been on a holiday.

Modern and well-equipped beach and mountain resorts sprang up throughout the land, reaching into remote and neglected areas, for the benefit of workers, peasants and students.

Almost anyone in Cuba can hard to spend two weeks in one of these resorts or in the capital's once exclusive, American-owned palaces such as the Habana-Libre, formerly the Hilton, or the Riviera.

Exclusive beach clubs, where the local aristocracy and industrialists once paid up to $1,000 a month in membership fees, now are open to everyone.

But in the last few years, Cuba has witnessed a revival of Western tourism, though not in its traditional, pre-revolutionary form. The island's drastic social and economic changes have banished its reputation as a corrupt and prohibited tropical heaven.

The French led the way four years ago by organizing three-week summer stays at a beach resort 40 miles east of the capital for a price of $495, including the round trip to Paris from Montreal.

About 1,000 French tourists came each year, more out of political curiosity than for the pleasure of swimming in the sunny Caribbean. They are usually professionals in their late and with a common sympathy for the Cuban revolution.

They combine sunbathing and underwater fishing with excursions around the well-travelled circuit of industrial complexes, housing projects and historical sites.

With Cuba's isolation slowly ending, groups of Latin-Americans—Mexicans, Peruvians and Venezuelans—are soon more frequently.

But the most numerous tourists from any non-Communist country come from Canada. They come essentially to enjoy the winter Caribbean sunshine and are much less politically motivated than their French counterparts.

During the present winter season, from November to April, an estimated 12,000 Canadians are expected to flock to the island on three to five chartered airliners a week. Most will spend a week at the resort of Varadero, 90 miles east of Havana.

Once a favorite spot with U.S. millionaires, Varadero boasts one of the most beautiful white sand beaches in the world.

Two Canadian travel agencies operate in Cuba. Their fees average $230 a week, all included. Tourists are accommodated in luxury, air-conditioned hotels on the beach itself and enjoy every facility for sailing and underwater fishing.

The package includes one full day in the capital sightseeing and buying souvenirs.

Brando's Sister Balks At Giving Away Land

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Marlon Brando says he will give all his land holdings in the United States to American Indians, but his sister, who shares some of the land with him, says she will not go along.

"Over my dead body," Mrs. Richard Loving said Sunday about Brando's inclusion of the 240-year-old farm he plans to donate.

"We are not giving this land away. There is no question about it."

Mrs. Loving lives on the 40-acre farm in Mendocin, Ill., to retain about 40 acres surrounding her apartment development in nearby Anaheim.

"I think getting up all my land in America will entitle me to ask others to make a contribution, too," Brando said Saturday in a telephone call to The Associated Press.

Mrs. Loving said she spoke to Brando about the proposal Saturday and felt certain he did not mean to include the Illinois land.

Brando has been active in Indian causes for several years. He refused to accept the 1972 Academy Award best actor because of the way motion pictures had portrayed Indians in the past.

Brando said he will sign a quit-claim deed today to give the acreage in Liberty Canyon, near Calabasas, Calif., to Hank Adams of The Survival of American Indians Association.

Showbiz Briefs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Don Rickles' five-time Emmy-winning comedian who starred on the Andy Griffith show—and Tim Conway, mad-cap comedian on McHale's Navy, are thinking of teaming up.

Five months ago they teamed with straight man Bill Bixby in a Walt Disney movie, The Apple Dumpling Gang. It has not been released yet.

Conway said he has written a number of sketch ideas for a comedy team, and said he hopes he and Knotts have time to work on them.

Knotts said: "We see a greater potential for ourselves after this (the film for Disney). We've talked about getting a property for ourselves and maybe a picture of our own, where we have a little more control over things. We see the possibility of a team."

ADDIS ABABA (Reuter) — Ethiopia's military rulers have ordered the television bureau of the Western world off the country's screens.

Ethiopian television used to be dominated by mass-produced British and United States entertainment such as Bonanza, Simon Templar, Jason Kbar, High Chaparral and Peyton Place.

However, since last Friday, when Ethiopia's ruling military council announced it would turn the country into a socialist state, Western-made themes of romance, shooting, killing and pursuits on horseback have vanished.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sonny Mitchell, star of the 1976 television series Barefoot in the Park, has filed for bankruptcy, listing more than $300,000 in debts.

The entertainer's bankruptcy petition in Los Angeles federal court listed three automobiles and a piece of property in Oregon as his only major assets. He said his total income for 1972 and 1973 was $38,000.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Actress Stella Stevens is suing $7 million in damages from Playboy magazine publisher Hugh Hefner for allegedly publishing photographs of her in Playboy without her consent.

Miss Stevens said in a Superior Court suit filed Friday that photographs of her were published that depicted her "in a highly degrading and humiliating manner."

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Tuesday—Dec. 31

Aries (March 21-April 19) This should be a fun day and evening for you socially. It's likely you'll have several interesting invitations to pick from.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) The celebration should be at your home today because that's where everyone will have the best time. You'll get some drop-ins anyway.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You're going to be hearing from, or running into, people you haven't been with for some time.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) The day has some very unusual conditions in effect you that will later prove profitable to some material manner.

Leo (July 23-Aug 22) The early part of the day will bring some colour frustrations. By late afternoon and evening they'll all be forgotten and you'll have a ball.

Virgo (Aug 23-Sept. 22) A problem on your mind will cause you to withdraw a bit, but some good news that follows will quickly erase it.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An activity that you've anticipating not to be much fun is going to turn out to be a real lark.

What's more, you'll meet some interesting folks.

Scorpio (O-t 24-Nov 22) Aside from one who thinks in petty terms, you'll command a great deal of attention and respect from all others wherever you go.

Sagittarius (Nov 23-Dec 21) You can have a good time this evening but don't pay an arm and a leg for it. Figure out how to have fun inexpensively.

Capricorn (Dec 22-Jan 19) You tend to anticipate events in a negative fashion before they happen today. The end results will be far more pleasant than you think.

Aquarius (Jan 20-Feb 19) Put the interest of one you care for above your own and you'll be surprised how delightful everything will work out.

Pisces (Feb 20-March 20) You're going to be rewarded in a mysterious manner for something that you did for another in the past.

'Fallen Arches' Are Flat Feet

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Just recently I took my daughter, age 11, who is not an obese, heavy side, to buy shoes. The shoe salesman told me she had very low arches. I'm told that is this the same as flat feet?

He also said her feet would give her a problem later on in life. This is the first time it has ever been brought to my attention. I'm wondering if, at her age this can be corrected?

The salesman tried to sell me two or three kinds of supports he said would help her. I said no. Should I have bought them?—Mrs. A.L.

I think you were wise in not buying them, but not for economic reasons.

An "eyeball" diagnosis of a foot problem is a dangerous jet won't do, no matter how well meaning the salesman is, and I'll bet most shoe salesmen would agree to that.

Your daughter may well have an arch problem. If so you can be thankful the salesman brought it to your attention.

Now the next step is for you to see your doctor and learn the truth. Take your daughter to a foot specialist.

Fallen arches would tend to be painful, and she probably would have complained of this earlier. Yes, "fallen arches" is the same thing as "flat feet."

The foot specialist would be able to tell you if there is a problem and just how serious it is and whether the answer is orthopedic shoes or surgery. Or flat foot does not necessarily require treatment or special shoes, as a matter of fact.

Dear Doctor: I have the silliest condition. My scalp is not unbearably at times. I am in brave no dandruff and nothing like two shi's shampoos has been able to detect.

One told me the itching might be caused by poor circulation, which is unbelievable to me.—D.J.

I can't go along with the poor circulation idea either. Didn't they make you eliminate suggestions? In the absence of any disease process in the scalp, it's quite possibly could be due to dryness.

I suggest a shampoo with more oil in it. Detergents in many shampoos can cause dryness which will make you itch.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I used to go only to a fully-qualified eye doctor for my annual eye examination. Now I live in a small town where we have only optometrists.

The last two years they have given me my eye exam, which included glaucoma tests. I am 65 and I understand that the rather critical age as far as glaucoma is concerned.

Would you say it is best for one to insist on this periodic eye examination (especially the glaucoma test) being made by a qualified eye specialist?—Mrs. H.

Nothing wrong with having the tonometer (Glaucoma) test done by the optometrist. It is a simple procedure to measure the pressure of the eye (Gd).

But you do want an annual eye examination, because as I say, any eye problem can begin.

The optometrist can examine for the most obvious eye defects, if anything serious is found, the usual course is referral to a specialist (ophthalmologist).

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there anything abnormal about a 57-year-old woman still having only 2 monthly menstrual periods? The flow has lessened somewhat but everything else is normal. I was when I was a young woman. I am very active sexually and enjoy this part of life very much.

I had a complete physical last year and all was well. All my women friends ceased menstruating years ago so it makes me wonder. My young doctor could give me no answer. Do some women never go through menopause? Is there danger of my becoming pregnant?—Mrs. H.P.

Not exactly common but not abnormal, either. Your ovaries are still producing enough estrogen to initiate periods, but lessening flow is an indication of approaching menopause.

Chances of pregnancy at your age are slight, as fertility declines after 45 or 50, but not totally impossible.

Most or all will women go through menopause.

DRILLING BANNED TILL '78

Offshore drilling in the Beaufort Sea will not be permitted until the summer of 1978. This will allow environmental studies by the oil company companies of the Arctic Petroleum Operators' Association.

INCIDENTALLY, THERE'S A NIGHT EXTENSION COURSE ON AMBULANCE DRIVING

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Jim: "Here is a hand from the May, 1940 Bridge World that doesn't prove anything, except that we don't need serious bridge hands every day.

Oswald: "Every bidder is above whimsy. Once South started with two notrumps he just trapped, and he stuck his gin and didn't run to six clubs."

Jim: "West opened the queen of diamonds and continued with the Jack. South thought and thought and finally played low from dummy, whereupon East had to play the ace. Then East led back a club and South won is business."

Oswald: "He led a diamond to dummy's king and ran clubs. When he came down to four cards he was looking at the four sevens. West was holding the ace of spades; the king-queen of hearts and ten of clubs. East dummy the ace-jack-ten of hearts and king of spades. East was holding his head."

Jim: "Bridge called the hand 'The dwarf sevens.' When South led the seven of clubs West was squeezed. He did the best he could and clinched the ace of spades, whereupon South chucked dummy's king; led the spade seven and claimed since West couldn't hold on to two hearts and a diamond."

Guatemala Air Crash Kills 21

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — A chartered sightseeing aircraft in flames while taking off from remote Jungle airport near the Mayan ruins of Tikal, killing 21 American tourists and a Guatemalan crew of three, officials said Sunday.

Victims of the Saturday evening crash included two persons from Columbus, Ohio, a family of four from New Jersey and 12 persons from the New York City area, including a mother and her two children.

The aircraft had lifted off from Tikal airport in northern Guatemala and was bound for Guatemala City when it crashed 300 yards from the unpaved runway.

Cause of the accident was not known, officials said. The plane had taken the tourists to visit the Mayan ruins of Tikal in the state of Petan.

Palsy Victim Sees Brother Murder Mother

NEW YORK (AP) — A 17-year-old cerebral palsy victim, unable to act because of his condition, watched his 39-year-old brother kill their mother and leave her head down in a water-filled bathtub before police arrived.

Police gave this account.

The handicapped youth, James Brown, who is able to talk, went to a neighbor's home about 8 a.m. and managed to alert the neighbor that something had happened.

The neighbor called police, who went to the house and found the mother, Dessie Brown, 57, dead, with her head submerged in bloody water. Communicating with his 17-year-old in writing, police learned his version of what had happened.

Police arrested Dennis Brown and charged him with murder in connection with the death of his mother.

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson said Sunday that British workers must moderate wage demands in line with the Labor party government's economic policy to curb inflation.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ald. Paul Yorke, chairman designate of the city's environment and protection services committee, said Sunday that pollution control costs are so high the committee must look at new ways of paying for them.

He suggested a surcharge or tax on newspapers, "on perhaps a tonnage basis," since newsprint accounts for about 10 per cent of the city's garbage.

Kissinger Is Chosen Most Admired Man

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — For the second consecutive year, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger heads the Gallup Poll's annual list of most-Americans admire man.

Rev. Billy Graham finished second in the poll for the fifth consecutive year. He has figured among the top 10 "most admired men" 18 times since the list was first compiled in 1948.

For the fifth time in the poll's history an incumbent president was not in top spot. President Ford was in third place, the same position as former president Richard Nixon is last year. But this year Nixon dropped to seventh.

There were two newcomers in this year's list, Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller in sixth place and California Gov. Ronald Reagan in ninth.

Faisal Time's Man of Year

NEW YORK (Reuter) — King Faisal of Saudi Arabia has been chosen Man of the Year for 1974 by Time magazine, which cited the Saudi monarch's role in quadrupling the price of oil and his power to raise or lower oil prices in the future.

"Throughout 1974, Faisal's actions about all prices and related matters touched in varying degrees the lives and pocketbooks of virtually every human being on earth," Time said.

Trudeau Named Top Newsmaker

The Canadian Press

The triumph of the Trudeau Liberal government in the uly 8 federal election was clearly Canada's top story of 1974, say the men who select the news that will be read, heard and viewed daily across the nation.

The world tale of Watergate—from the bungled burglary to the presidential pardon—ranked resoundingly as the world's biggest news story of 1974.

Because of his victory, Prime Minister Trudeau was viewed as Man-of-the-Year in Canada. In his disgrace, Richard Milhous Nixon earned distinction as Man of the Year on the international scene.

And Margaret Trudeau, the prime minister's wife, was seen by Canadian editors as the leading Canadian newsmaker outside politics.

The views are expressed in The Canadian Press' annual poll of member newspaper editors and news directors of radio and television stations served by CP's subsidiary, Broadcast News.

Bomb Threat

TORONTO (CP) — Kenneth Terry Morton, 25, of Toronto has been charged with extortion in connection with a threat Saturday to blow up an Eaton's plaza department store unless a $15,000 ransom was paid.

Police said store manager Robert Harvey Harvest was ordered about 5 p.m. to leave the money beside a nearby bank or the bomb would explode.

Police made no attempt to clear the store because they feared a stampede. They told Mr. Harvest to pay the ransom.

The money was placed in a brown paper bag where a man picked it up a short time later. Police failed to find any explosive device at the store.

Minimum Wage Too Low--Andras

OTTAWA (CP) — The basic provincial minimum wage in much of Canada is too low, says Robert Andras, manpower and immigration minister.

Speaking in a taped interview on the CTV television network program Question Period for broadcast Sunday, the minister also said the federal government is often unjustly blamed for employment problems in the country.

"I will say quite frankly that the minimum wage is too much of Canada right now is too low," he said.

But Mr. Andras also added that there is little the federal government can do because almost 95 per cent of minimum wage laws fall under provincial labor codes.

"If you (industry) can't get workers, you'd better look to yourself as to some of the reasons and not try and use the whipping boy of government benevolence and so-called over-permissiveness for all the problems you're facing."

The minister said the government's unemployment insurance plan and income security plan are used as whipping boys to cover the inadequacies of others.

Three Biggest Cities Said Growing Too Fast

OTTAWA (CP) — Population growth in Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver is growing faster than city "systems can handle there," says Robert Andras, manpower and immigration minister.

Interviewed on the CTV television network program Question Period for broadcast Sunday, the minister said that in the last 6 years almost 56 per cent of all immigrants have settled in the three major centres.

"There are thousands of people, if I may say, descending upon Toronto, Vancouver and Montreal together with thousands of people coming from other parts of Canada to those cities," he said.

"I personally think it's probably not right that people should go to Toronto in the numbers that they have been going over the last few years. I don't think that the structure there can stand it.

"It causes all sorts of difficulties; land cost rises, the tensions of congestion all these sorts of things."

Mr. Andras said he is not prepared to initiate a system by which immigrants would be required to stay in certain parts of Canada for a stated period as part of their entrance requirements.

Plea Bargaining Case Is Reported

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says a Toronto man charged late last year in connection with a drug raid escaped a fall sentence through secret plea bargaining.

The newspaper says in a front-page story that the accused, who suffered severe facial injuries in the incident, signed a release form promising not to bring a civil suit against the arresting officers and the Ford Motor Co. in the negotiations.

The newspaper says David Ollie, 24, was arrested Dec. 6, 1973, after six police officers broke his apartment door.

Ollie suffered a crushed nose and a broken cheekbone, during the incident, the newspaper says.

A jury in no way Ollie was charged with "wounding, possession of a dangerous weapon, assault causing bodily harm, two counts of assaulting police, and possession of narcotics for the purpose of trafficking."

The newspaper says four of the five assault-related charges eventually were dropped and the charge of wounding was reduced to assault causing bodily harm.

A federal Crown attorney is quoted as saying the officers involved in the raid were quite anxious to have Ollie sign the release.

Truce Extension Sought
Britain Offering Detentions' End

LONDON (Reuter) — The British government offered early release for more than 100 prisoners in Northern Ireland today and promised to end detention without trial if the present guerrilla truce continues.

The offer was made by Merlyn Rees, secretary of state for Northern Ireland, two days before the scheduled end of a Christmas truce called by the Irish Republican Army (IRA).

Rees refused an immediate mass release of the 381 persons now held without trial. He said only 39 detainees could be freed at the moment.

But he offered early freedom for about 100 prisoners who were tried and convicted of politically-motivated offences. The offer would affect persons due for release by the end of next March.

In addition, 20 untried detainees would be granted a three-day parole over the New Year.

The truce was called on Dec. 22 by the IRA's Provisional wing-the faction that does most of the fighting in push British troops out of Northern Ireland.

Eleven persons were injured. Eight of them apparently were struck by bullets or fragments of bullets, authorities said, and the other three were hit by flying bits of glass.

Anthony Barbaro, 17, a senior, was captured Monday afternoon after police stormed a room on the school's third floor. The youth, lying on the floor and wearing an apparently defective gas mask, was not injured but was overcome by poison tear gas.

A task had been sent to the school to help in the removal of injured during the bloody two-hour shooting rampage by the son of a manufacturing firm executive. Authorities said they did not know why the youth opened fire.

Classes were in recess for the holidays, but several pupils and school employees were in the building at the time.

Shot to death were Mrs. Carmen Wright, 34, who was riding by the school in a car; Michael Pugh, 38, a gas company meter reader who was gunned down on the street; and school custodian Earl Metcalf, 42, who was shot inside the school.

Provisional leaders said they might extend the truce if the government moved some way to meeting their long-standing demands.

These include withdrawal of British troops from the streets of Northern Ireland and an amnesty for all prisoners held-with or without trial-for politically-motivated offences.

In a new year's message to the people of Northern Ireland, Rees said the government was looking for a permanent cessation of the violence that has cost 1,146 lives since 1969.

"If that occurs the government will not be found wanting in its response," Rees said.

But the government will not barter the safety of the community," he continued. "That is temporary respite from murder and destruction."

Rees promised to state during January how, if peace continued, he planned to make "orderly and progressive reductions in the level of troop activity."

But military activity will match the level of violence, the minister said.

"I am not going to act precipitately before I am convinced the opportunities are real and not illusory."

Student Sniper Kills Trio

OLEAN, N.Y. (AP) — An honor student who was one of his best marksmen on his high school rifle team faces three murder charges today in the sniper-shooting deaths of three persons at Olean high school.

Eleven persons were injured. Eight of them apparently were struck by bullets or fragments of bullets, authorities said, and the other three were hit by flying bits of glass.

Anthony Barbaro, 17, a senior, was captured Monday afternoon after police stormed a room on the school's third floor. The youth, lying on the floor and wearing an apparently defective gas mask, was not injured but was overcome by poison tear gas.

Nicaraguan Guerrillas Take Comrades to Cuba

MANGUA (AP) — The Nicaraguan guerrillas who freed 13 hostages after a 31-day siege and flew to Cuba with about $500,000 and 14 comrades were "cool, calm professionals," one of their captives reported.

"They were all very young," said Lucia Pelaty, 37. "I would say most were much younger than 25 but they were not nervous. One of the girls said they would fight to the death if they didn't succeed."

Three women were among the eight members of the Sandinista Liberation Front who invaded a suburban home during a social party Friday night, killed the host and two police guards and took the other 33 persons in the house captive.

The terrorists released 28 women, children, servants and musicians on Saturday and Sunday. They demanded $3 million and safe passage to Cuba for themselves and Sandinistas in jail in exchange for the 13 other hostages, who included Nicaragua's foreign minister and 12 ambassadors to the United States and the United Nations.

The guerrillas freed their remaining hostages Monday afternoon and were flown to Havana along with 14 other Sandinistas who were released from prison. They were accompanied by the Spanish and Mexican ambassadors to Nicaragua, the papal nuncio and Archbishop Miguel Obando y y Bravo, the go-between in the negotiations between the government and the terrorists.

Thirty Ottawa EMO Numbers All Silent After Office Hours

OTTAWA (CP) — It seems that outside office hours, the Emergency Measures Organization (EMO) is not the place to telephone with a report of an impending air attack.

Such a call Monday night to the national headquarters of the organization elicited no response and there was no answer in the Ottawa-Carleton regional office of the organization, responsible for co-ordinating activities in the event of an air attack.

However, the Ottawa telephone directory lists a second number to call if there is no answer at the first number listed for the Ottawa-Carleton regional office.

The second number rings at Ottawa city hall, where a caller was told Monday night: "We have the number around here somewhere. Hang on a minute."

After three minutes the clerk returned and advised the caller to try a certain number. It was the first number listed in the directory for the Ottawa-Carleton regional office.

Attempts to reach someone at the organization's 20 numbers listed in the separate directory of government offices were equally futile.

The official purpose of the call was to talk to an EMO official about the weather that resulted early Monday from a false alarm in the defence department's emergency warning system in south-central Ontario.

Cause of the 15-minute false alarm was still under investigation.

Lt.-Col. Bev Yetman of the Canadian Forces information services said the defence department has seven warning systems in various sections of Ontario to alert the population in the event of an impending air attack by a foreign military power.

"According to defence department plans, radio stations were to prepare to switch to an emergency broadcasting frequency when the sirens were sounded. Staff in most newsrooms, however, couldn't find the yellowing pages listing procedures for doing so.

Gold $203 an Ounce for July Delivery

CHICAGO (Reuter) — Gold bullion (Silver went on sale in the United States for the first time in 41 years at world record prices.

To the popping of champagne corks, U.S. brokers launched the 1974 "gold rush" here by selling gold at $203 an ounce for delivery in July, 1975.

Pushing the first man to buy gold in the United States whose dealing became legal was New York Senator James Buckley, who bought two-and-a-half ounces at $182 an ounce at a ceremony in New York just after midnight.

New York is an hour ahead of Chicago in time and scored on the Mid-America Commodity Exchange, which opened here one minute after midnight central time for a brief session.

At the close of the session, which was in gold futures trading, gold for February delivery was priced at $185 an ounce, for March at $185.50, for May at $201.50 and for July at $203.

Trading on the London bullion market Monday reached a record $197.50 an ounce before dropping to $191.50.

The Mid-America Exchange opened for business in a holiday mood, with balloons-colored a yellowish gold-floating from desks and 600 guests sipping champagne as they watched the perspiring floor brokers screams their bids and offers to sell.

Americans have been banned from dealing in gold since President Franklin Roosevelt made private ownership of gold illegal in 1933.

Department stores, jewellery shops, banks, brokerage houses and commodity exchanges have announced they are back in the gold business.

Copter Carries Windsor Gold To U.S. Market

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — A helicopter carried 20 pieces of gold worth about $2,000 from Windsor, Ont., early today.

The first buyer at Southfield was Dagoar-old Carlene Brown who bought a quarter of an ounce for $52.79.

Miss Brown bought her gold through John Johnston of Windsor, who acted as a broker for nuts dealer Jeff Tann, 33. Her purchase came just minutes after the helicopter set down in a parking lot at 12:40 a.m.

Gold Drops Sharply in Europe

NEW YORK (AP) — Apprehensive bankers and eager coin dealers prepared for a hectic day today as, for the first time in 41 years, individual United States citizens were permitted to buy and sell gold.

After reaching record peaks, gold prices on European markets began to decline Monday, with prices dropping sharply today as dealers in Zurich and London awaited returns from gold dealing in the U.S.

In London, the price was fixed for this morning's trading by the five major bullion dealers at $187.50 an ounce, more than $10 below Monday's record opening quote of $198 and well below Monday's closing price of $192.50.

Gold opened in Zurich, Europe's other major bullion market, at $193 today and by mid-morning dropped to $182.50. It had closed at $198.25 in Zurich Monday.

The price of gold also plummeted in Paris, where it had closed at $200.12 Monday. Today it opened at $193.36. The price is usually higher in Paris because of tight exchange controlled regulations.

PICTON — A shaggy grey Persian cat nicknamed The Moocher is a feline "born loser."

Early this summer the young cats and another tiger-striped feline were dropped on Hill St.

After watching the homeless animals for a few days a Hill St. resident, Cecelia Pollard, began to feed them. She offered the cats temporary shelter in her garage and treated them with table scraps.

In early November, shortly before she was to leave for her annual winter vacation in Florida, she decided to settle the cats' future.

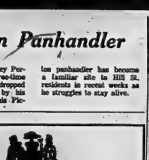
She inquired at a local animal hospital and was told homes could be found for both strays if she delivered them to the shelter.

Miss Pollard caught one cat with no problems but The Moocher, intimidated by the weeks of running as a stray, eluded capture.

Concerned, Miss Pollard made arrangements for a neighbor, Mrs. Edna Rogers, to continue to feed him.

For several weeks she carried pet food and scraps to the Pollard garage where The Moocher made headquarters.

About three weeks ago Mrs. Rogers and her husband both died suddenly within a few days of each other.



The Moocher once again was without room and board.

Orphaned by his benefactors the Moocher seems to have plans for living at home yet a month until Miss Pollard returns from Florida in the spring.

Persian Panhandler

The Moocher, a grey Persian tom cat, is a three-time loser. He's been dropped once and orphaned by his benefactors twice. This Picton panhandler has become a familiar site to Hill St. residents in recent weeks as he struggles to stay alive.

Trail Requests Outpace Funds for Improvements

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

Eastern Ontario snowmobile clubs and municipalities that qualified for provincial trail funds to groom and improve their trails may have their money as early as the second week in January.

In the Quinte area, four clubs joined together in Prince Edward County in making their application and the Lennox and Addington clubs also made joint applications.

Applications now are being reviewed by a management board of cabinet at Queen's Park. Decisions on grants will be relayed back to district natural resources offices and formal agreements must be signed before the cheque-issuing stage is reached.

"We're trying to complete all these steps as soon as possible," James Keenan, executive director of natural resources parks branch, said. "If the holiday don't bring some unforseen delays we should meet our target."

The $1-million program announced last month is an interim measure for this winter only, Mr. Keenan said. A new provincial recreational trails council will soon be set up to take over all trail extension and construction co-ordination. This will include snowmobile trails, cross-country skiing, horseboxing, canoeing, hiking and horseback riding trails.

Response to the trails assistance program has been heavy. Total money requested across the province is two and-one-half times the amount available.

Some organizations may not receive everything they asked for this year, said Mr. Keenan. "Obviously, adjustments have to be made." He indicated there are hopes the Ontario government would increase the interim project's budget.

By providing assistance, Mr. Keenan said, the government was also to compile an inventory of existing trails and suggested clubs and estimate the extent of snowmobiling in the province.

Mr. Keenan anticipates that estimate may soon be out of date, though. The assistance program has inspired individual snowmobilers, many of whom now are organizing, electing officers and developing trails. Too late for assistance this year, the new clubs will qualify for any programs devised by the trails council next years.

The 14 acres of marshland in the south end of Brighton will soon day turn into a high-quality retirement community of about 30 lots Each lot will have backdoor access to recreational water ways.

Brighton Marsh Future Home Site

BRIGHTON — A forced land purchase coupled with a trip to Florida five years ago are all that separates this village from perhaps one day having a housing development unique to eastern Ontario.

Gabriel plans call for the development of 85 lots on land reclaimed from some 34 acres of marshland at the south end of Brighton, just north of Gosport.

What makes the prospective scheme unique is that canals will wind their way throughout the subdivision.

Only one other such residential development exists in Ontario — at Brechin, on the shores of Lake Simcoe.

James Knight, owner of the land, said Monday, he fell into the scheme by accident.

Originally, some 11 years ago, he bought about 30 percent of the present 34 acres to moor his boat. However, an attempt to get a boat-launching ramp by the original owner proved fruitless.

"So I had to buy the whole thing to protect the work we had done on the lot we had," said Mr. Knight.

The purchase, at a sum Mr. Knight declined to disclose, was made through the Land Grand Trust Farms Ltd., of which is 9.96 per cent owner. The remainder is held by his wife and son.

He operates Knight Appleden Fruit Ltd., west of Colborne. He said the firm, which packs and sells close to a million bushels of apples annually, processes 10 percent of Ontario's yearly apple production.

In an interview in Colborne, Mr. Knight said the idea for the residential development was sparked by a trip to Florida.

At Coco Beach he saw a residential area similar to what he plans in Brighton at present, only part of the marsh there has been dredged from the marsh to create dry land.

Basically, the scheme in Brighton calls for reclamation of six strips of land from the marsh. Most strips would be about 400 feet wide-foot frontage lots on cul-de-sacs. The canals on both sides of the street would back onto a canal — 50 feet wide and 10 feet deep.

All canals in the subdivision will be connected with Lake Ontario to Presqu'Ile Bay.

Mr. Knight said the number of lots could increase, depending on eventual feasibility.

"At every lot you can pull your cruiser up to the back door, and your Cadillac up to the front door," he said, in describing the canal and road system.

He doesn't deny it will be a quality development. Primarily, it will be a haven for retiring couples.

He estimated the fully-serviced lots will cost around $25,000, while a home will range between $60-$70,000.

Development of the scheme is still in the early stages, Mr. Knight said — a man he has hired as a subdivision worker have worked intermittently over the last four years on the project, and a block of land upon which homes will be built.

Actual construction of homes is two to five years away, he said. At that time, Mr. Knight likely will look to a quality developer who will put up the homes.

An opportunity to sell slipped through is fingers this summer.

A German developer "fell in love" with the project but was frightened away by the introduction of a new provincial tax on investment by non-residents, he said.

The loss of the sale, however, doesn't worry him. "I'm not in any hurry to develop the land to the point where I have to sell it to a home builder, he said.

The property is becoming worth more every day. Good property in Ontario is getting scarcer and scarcer. To me, it's like good money lying in the bank.

Until such time as he does sell, he said he will continue to nearly work on reclamation.

As yet, he does not have a plan of subdivision on it. It has not been presented for comment or approval to the Brighton Planning Area Advisory Committee or village council, from which he expects to get services.

The Year Ahead

Bellevillians contemplate another year which hopefully will be one of further development and provision of services.

By services the thought principally is the need for more serviced land, already scarce, and a future that may well see city and surrounding townships in closer union — a trend that must lead also, in the long run, to merger in a larger Belleville community.

Council is committed, in addition to major projects such as the Cannifton Road underpass and the Pinnacle Street bridge, to an ongoing program of road reconstruction and maintenance. This is a matter of some urgency, as any driver can attest.

While on the subject of road and traffic conditions, council must also give attention to parking needs as well as to those of pedestrians. The latter are only minimally served at present — for courtesy crossings which for the elderly in particular afford little protection.

All are agreed that the city must progress at a reasonable pace, having regard not only to brick and mortar and roads but also to that elusive "quality of life" that is so desirable.

And having regard in addition to the pressing problem of inflation to which there is no ready answer but nevertheless continues to erode the dollar's value and spending power.

On the one hand industries are told to produce more, to offset the effects of inflation — and of wage demands — and on the other wage-earners are being laid off because of depressed market conditions.

For the most part though the Quinte area is as well off as any. Certainly it continues to attract not only industry, particularly, with the prospect of more to come, but new residents — from professional people to a growing number involved in the creative arts.

Speaking of the arts, we are fortunate in having a progressive body such as the Quinte Arts Council and in such going concerns as the Hastings County Museum at Glanmore House.

As ever of course not everything in the garden is rosy. Let's not overlook the substandard housing or the fact that vandalism and petty crime is a recurring problem. Our downtown and the community generally may be safer than many a community this size, but untoward incidents do occur and the potential for something worse cannot be overlooked.

With these reservations we can still look forward to a happy and prosperous enough New Year. We certainly hope it will be thus, for all our readers.

Sense of Prospective

If there is one thing society needs as a whole, as a new year ensues, it is a sense of perspective — the ability to take a world view and to regard the many disturbances affecting the social fabric everywhere as difficulties that will pass.

We don't believe for example that we are on the verge of economic collapse, because of this or that event in Europe or places, such as Britain and the Middle East, are alarming. Nor do we believe that Northern Ireland, say, is drifting closer to anarchy as some of the media people would have it; indeed, at the economic level Ulster's growth rate of two per cent in 1974 was faster than that of the rest of the United Kingdom.

Nor do we believe that white-ruled South Africa, for all the questioning of its policy of "separate development" of its various racial groups, is about to be devoured by the black peoples either within its boundaries or outside them. Rather, with statesmanship and good sense, necessary reforms, in the interests of all the population, will be affected. The key being not revolution, but evolution.

There is much else that needs to be done of course, in the interests of a better world. Famine must be alleviated and the rights of minority and native peoples, here and elsewhere, given attention. Basically, the wrongs that we see around may be a way of helping mankind along the road to better things, a way of countering complacency.

Final Year Students in Hungary Get Pictures in Store Windows

UNESCO Features,

Foreigners strolling idly in the streets of Hungarian town towards the end of May were often intrigued to see large boards in every shopping window or so, enthroned amidst piles of linked beads, or sewing machines or the newest line in lingerie, and displaying three or four rows of photographs of teenage boys and girls, all neatly washed and brushed, smiling at the beholder. These rows of young faces are the last-year pupils of the neighboring secondary schools who will be leaving at the end of the term after passing their final examinations.

This charming custom more than a hundred years old is, as it were, a symbol of the esteem in which education has always been held in Hungary. Yet far most of those lines and lanes, Sandors and Erzsebets, school today is a very different place from the one their parents knew.

At the end of the Second World War, Hungary was still essentially an agricultural country. More than 30 per cent of its population lived off the land. An abyss separated the lives of the peasants in the villages and on the isolated farms of the great plain from the people of the cities. In those days only a third of the children in Hungary stayed on in school until their fourteenth year; something like the present 90 per cent went on to secondary schools.

The transformation of Hungary into a modern industrial nation - with only a quarter of the population now working on the land and industry accounting for almost 70 per cent of the national income - has demanded a complete reorganization of the school system.

The school-leaving age has been progressively raised from 12 to 16, which means ten years of compulsory schooling. All children attend the "general school" for the first eight years of their education, from 6 to 14. They will then continue their studies for two, three or four more years, either in the new academic type of school leading to the university, or in various types of vocational schools.

To meet the needs of a modern economy, several new technical universities have been established, one at Veszprem for the chemical industry, another for heavy industry at Miskolc, etc.

These changes have of course brought with them their own difficulties, not all of which have yet been overcome. "Some nine per cent of schoolchildren still do not successfully finish primary school," said Gyorgy Aczel, a Deputy Prime Minister, in an interview published in the French journal L'Ecole et la Nation last June, and even more have to repeat a class in secondary school. "There are a good many out-of-date, ill-equipped schools in different parts of the country, and a number of children are still being educated in the one-room school-house. Even today, there is still a great difference between conditions in the city schools and in the village schools."

Village schools, moreover, are often under-staffed, and the teachers less qualified than those in urban areas. As a result, the country child is denied equal opportunity vis-à-vis his city counterpart.

"It will be some time before these differences are eliminated," wrote Mr. Aczel in his book Culture and Socialist Democracy in Hungary, as elsewhere, he said, the curriculum is overloaded, the teaching too theoretical and academic, the aim often the acquisition of diplomas to the detriment of practical skills and education for living. "We have to modernize both the teaching methods and the content of education," he said.

Diesels that run on oils may becomes a perfectly acceptable fuel, but it would be depressing to have to part with a Rensir to make the trains run on time.

Britain's Faltering Economy Is Getting a Helping Hand From Revival of Cornish Tin Mines

BBC London Letter —

Cornwall — the county at the extreme South Western tip of Britain — used to be famous for its tin mines. Some of the earliest people in this part of Britain are believed to have been attracted by Cornish tin. And now, after years when the only evidence of this industries past has been the derelict remains of old, worked-out mines, Cornish tin is booming again.

Cornwall is having the nation more than eleven million pounds a year on its metal import bill. More than 20 per cent of Britain's tin requirements are provided by Cornwall.

With just three mines in production and another coming on perhaps next year, the country is producing about nine tons of what 450 mines produced a century and more ago.

There is a long story to Cornish tin: no one knows quite how or when it began. It is said the ancient Phoenicians bartered for its pained from Cornish streams. True vein or lode mining had to wait for the Middle Ages, when deeper lodes were attacked first, those exposed on North Coast cliffs or the sides of valleys.

The technique of mining, by-ging, sinking shafts, making galleries came later. And the huge industry which ravaged parts of the Cornish landscape through the industrial revolution had its true birth three less than a century before.

Small wonder then, that much of the technology of mining around the globe came from Cornish know-how and that as the industry fell upon hard times there was barely a mine of any significance anywhere that did not have a Cornishman at the bottom of it.

A century ago there were two sources of world tin, Cornwall and Malaya, but a third source was discovered in Australia and the price plummeted. It was the first of a series of rocking blows that the crippled and then destroyed the industry.

So the industry all but died. Only two mines kept going and even they ceased production briefly in the 1930s.

The pumps kept the Cornish mines bleeding country, water, at bay. Today for example one of the mines now working should be 1,200 feet deep. Unless those pumps went off.

Another called Wheal Jane near the county's main town of Truro would be lost in a few hours. At Wheal Jane they are pumping three million gallons a day, which treated, to clean it up, flows into a nearby valley.

It's in Wheal Jane mine optimistics the reason for the resurgence in Cornish mining. Prospecting was encouraged mainly by the reckoning price of tin - it has doubled in a year. Mechanization and better technology gave the mine a profit in less than two years after its opening in 1971.

Last year the mine produced two-hundred tons of tine, four hundred tons of copper, 30 thousand ounces of silver and 1,500 tons of zinc. The accounted for 40 per cent of total production, but to illustrate its current value, almost 90 per cent of the revenue.

But although the Cornish mines is well paid by coal miner standards, labor is in short supply. The Cornish miners have had to bring in men from the Midlands to pass on their skills and operate the workings. Unemployment are not too keen on this foreign recruitment. What they have to learn is that they now have a small industry with a bright future.

Rome Hijacker's Luggage Sought By The Police of Three Nations

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

Many people have had the disconcerting experience of arriving at the destination or an air flight and finding their baggage has not arrived. Anyone who has had the misfortune of watching that baggage carousel go round and round, without ever seeing their own piece of luggage, knows some story about a friend or acquaintance whose baggage went one way while he went another.

Most of such problems get solved eventually, we suppose. If the luggage came on a later flight, or got delivered to a different destination, the airlines get the luggage sooner or later.

Consider the case of Jozef Hosnoker, currently the guest of the Italian government in Rome. He got that far on a flight from Bombay to New York. Among the baggage for his flight being interrupted were that he tried to hijack the aircraft, and that he was found to be carrying $2,800 in forged Canadian currency.

His luggage has not turned up. Authorities are curious to see in case it holds more forged money.

In a way he is luckier than most. With the police forces of three nations mobilized to search for his missing luggage, his chances are better than those of most people in a lost-luggage predicament.

Canada and Britain Differ With Findings on French Instruction

Cambridge Reporter

Officials of school boards throughout Britain, currently including those in the immediate area, were more than a little surprised at a report made in Britain last week.

The report concluded there is no advantage to teaching French in British primary school level. It was made following an 18-year experiment in teaching French to young school children and read eight-year-olds showed no substantial gains compared with those who began to learn French at a later age.

Donald Bryce, elementary schools inspector for Warwick County Board of Education, said other research findings as well as the board's own experience indicate a definite advantage to teaching French to children French before they get to high school.

It has been shown that youngsters introduced to French at the 13-to-15-level do poorer than in other areas.

These results, compared to the British primary school level, it

1974: Year of Growth

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

While Belleville experienced a year of huge growth in 1974, it was also a year of concentrated effort by city council to chart and control growth in the best interests of the community.

Construction of new buildings topped the $7-million this year — a record which more than doubles the $3-million in construction in 1973. The figures were released by the city's building inspection department.

While serviced, residential land was at a premium throughout the year, strong gains were made in the commercial and industrial sectors. It is the industrial growth that city politicians said was the significant highlight of the year.

During 1974, eight new industries located in Belleville — concentrated in the industrial parks set out as a pilot-project by the industrial commission. So successful was the park scheme, new parks and park extensions are on the books for next year.

Because Belleville sits in the heart of eastern Ontario, growth has been continuous. This growth also gave an air of urgency to the passage of the city's official plan this fall.

While in its essence, the official plan is a booklet of restrictions — it serves not to hinder growth but to give developers firm information of what can be built where.

The year was marked with both the July 8 federal election which saw incumbent Conservative MP Jack Ellis nearly toppled by Liberal newcomer Marie Kurchak and the municipal election marked by the acclamation of Mayor Robin Jeffrey. Both campaigns were considered lackluster events but 1974 was not without issue or controversy.

The official plan itself brought comment that council was "waffling" over its passage and that "vested interests" were holding back approval.

The fall brought a flurry of excitement for Belleville's downtown section with highlighted by the announcement of a $5-million commercial and office centre for the intersection of Bridge and Front Streets.

Along with the announcement of Century Square came an industrial commission brief calling for "controlled development" for the downtown section. With this legislation — still awaiting council approval — city council will hold the rein on all downtown growth.

Another major piece of legislation placed in council's hands is a sign bylaw that will rid the business section of overhanging signs if approved.

John Rhodes, provincial minister of transportation, announced a new bridge will replace Belleville's antiquated Bay Bridge.

The announcement touched off debate with township councils on both sides of the bay calling for the new structure farther west toward Loyalist—Wallbridge Road. Belleville council has remained adamant that the new bridge stay at Rossmore connecting the city to Prince Edward County.

The question now is in the hands of the provincial government — the body that eventually will pick up the bulk of the cost for the new bridge.

The city's tax rate went up six mills with a third of the increase gobbled in sky-rocketing education costs.

The past year while it brought growth and word of a generally optimistic city future — also included a rash of labor problems which began in March with a series of strikes. The labor situation was capped this fall with the layoff of 120 workers at Northern Electric.

On March 11, 120 Union Carbide employees struck for four weeks for $1 an hour increase over one year. They received 56 cents an hour over two years. Average plant wage before the settlement was $3.35 an hour.

On March 26, 180 Black Diamond workers manned picket lines until mid May waiting for $1.60-an-hour raise over two years. They settled for 91 cents over two years. Base rate at the plant began at $3.91 an hour up to a high $4.34 an hour.

Approximately 140 Stewart Warner employees struck April 22 and returned to work June 26 with $1.05 increase over two years. Average wage was $3.78 an hour.

The biggest labor blow came with 130 Northern Electric employees being laid off for an indefinite period of time, due to a "softening of U.S. markets," the company said.

1974 was also not without tragedy.

A $30,000 fire ravaged through Diana Boutique on the July 1 weekend, four Belleville area airmen lost their lives in Syria during a United Nations peacekeeping flight and two Belleville engineers lost their lives in a tragic head-on collision Dec. 28. The passenger-freight crash, 12 miles east of Napanee also claimed the life of a female passenger.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey, taking a look at the year on a community level, said it had been exciting with a current of "community and council cooperation" being one of her personal highlights.

She pointed to acquisition of the Potter property as a major event. "It may not be seen by us but it will be for our children (as a nature site)" said the mayor.

The mayor made particular mention of the United Way campaign which this year grossed in excess of $117,000, a figure which tops last year's mark.

The mayor said other highlights included council's move to a road renewal program and which will allow construction this coming year and the "emergence of public awareness of the need for bayshore improvement and study."

"It's been an exciting year — a beautiful year," said the mayor.

Century Square, $5 Million Development For Downtown

Getting Ready for the Big Night

Sheila McCrystal, on a last-minute shopping trip to Reitman's in the Quinte Mall, tries to visualize how she'll look on New Year's eve in this feathery powder-blue gown. Blue jeans, stylish the rest of the year, just have no place in this season's festivities.

Parties, paper streamers, champagne and fruit cake. Dancing, drinking and sentimental swaying to the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

Best clothes, best shoes, new hairdos, tinsel and sparkle and staying up late.

Even our shaky economic state at 1974's end has done little to dull the glitter of this annual festive occasion. Stores in Belleville many of them already into their January sales, report their party dresses are being purchased in the same number as other years.

Jackson-McIntyre clerks says they're as busy as they ever are before New Year's. The manager of the Town and Country Shop says that she and her staff are selling all kinds of clothes for the party season, particularly long skirts.

Men's clothing stores don't reflect the same kind of seasonal buying, although Jack Fraser's formal rental service is doing its usual trade for New Year's Eve, dealing in tuxedo outfits.

Perhaps people need a wonderful and unforgettable time in the face of penny-pinching days ahead. In any case, women are having their hair done in the same amazing numbers.

Hairdressers at THE Salon, for instance, will wash, cut, curl, dry and comb as 300 heads of hair Tuesday, working from early in the morning till the afternoon's end.

Even smaller establishments such as the Hall Hi Beauty Salon will be doing sturdy business all day. Peggy Rose says she and her staff will do at least 40 hairdos.

Essential to the perfect party picture is the corsage pinned on women's dresses by the boutonnieres in men's lapels.

Florists in Belleville order vast quantities of flower for Tuesday's corsage-making. Although the popularity of formal house parties in recent years had led to a decrease in corsage orders, the florists of Templer Flower Shop still say he is supply of roses, carnations and orchids for last-minute orders.

All decked out for a night on the town — even if it is at home — thoughts turn to food and drink. Miracle Food Mart reports that it's making up four, three-tier number of party trays it usually does for tonight's home parties. The Liquor Control Board of Ontario stores don't like to talk too much about who's buying what but they admit business is "good".

Some partygoers have gone one step further to ensure a safe celebration: on Monday rooms at the Four Seasons and Sun Valley were already being booked for tonight.

The line-up begins early on Tuesday morning for the beautification ritual that is part of the holiday tradition. More than 150 women will pass under these dryers at Corinne's Beauty Salon on their way to a glamorous hairdo for New Year's eve.

Winnie Way starts on the first of the more than 300 corsages that Barbers' Flowers supplies for New Year's eve. These feature small cymbid from Florida, which stay fresh for weeks when kept cool.

Upgrading Women's Role— Slow, Heartbreaking Process

VANCOUVER (CP) — Upgrading the role of women in Canadian society is a slow and heartbreaking process, says Anne Francis, former chairman of the royal commission on the status of women.

Four years ago, the commission made 167 recommendations to the federal government on ending discrimination against women. To date, less than a third of the recommendations have been implemented. Two of the most vital points have been effectively ignored: the right of women to safe, medical abortions on demand; and the right to good day-care facilities which would free them to go to school or work.

Miss Francis sees the political influence of the Roman Catholic church as the main barrier to ensuring safe medical abortion.

"Legalized abortion won't happen while Otto Lang is justice minister," she said. "I don't think anything will happen on abortions for a long time. It's a sin in the eyes of the Catholic church, and there are a lot of Catholics in Canada."

While she respects the attitude of women who object to abortion on their own moral grounds, she asserts others should be free to practise opposing beliefs.

"I realize that for many people, abortion incurs such dreadful sanctions that it is out of the question for them unless they are prepared to sacrifice the solace of their religion."

However, she added in an interview, "Church law should not dictate the criminal law of a country where church and state are separate."

She argues that the present abortion law is "barbaric" and "grossly discriminatory" in that it forces a woman to have a child that results from rape or incest, and prevents only poor women from having abortions. Rich women, she says, can always get an abortion somewhere.

She worries that young women still consider marriage to be the "ultimate and exclusive goal for them."

This concern is based on the fact that the housewife is regarded as a financial liability.

A husband, she said, "is given an exemption on his federal income tax when his wife does not work for pay even though most wives do homes with two or more children work an 11-hour day and a seven-day week, something which organized labor would not tolerate."

Artists Sought For 1975 Cards

It's a little early to be thinking about next year's Christmas cards — unless you'd like to design one.

Diana Settle, Belleville's Canadian Save the Children Fund representative, wants to remind Quinte artists that the deadline for submitting art for consideration for 1975 cards is January 2.

Mrs. Settle says that work must be submitted in print or slide form to the Ontario Christmas Card Committee, 79 Hayter St., Toronto M5C 1J9. Original work should not be sent.

Art selected, she says, should cover these themes: children, winter scenes, religious, whimsical, Christmas.

Mrs. Settle says that three designs are chosen for corporate sales and seven designs for household sales. Cards are 7½ x 5½ inches and 6 x 4 ¾ inches respectively.

Higher Food Prices Coming

OTTAWA (CP) — By this time next year, consumers may be paying a third more for their groceries than they were when 1974 began.

Major Canadian export food prices is climb about 15 per cent each quarter slightly less than the 14.5-per-cent increase this year but a little more than the 14.4-per-cent jump in 1973.

Yet Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the food prices review board, says there is little evidence of overcharging anywhere along the food chain.

And some farmers, particularly cattlemen, are facing a period of unexpected gloom and the Depression of the 1930s.

The reason is a combination of bad weather and poor harvests, greater international demand for cereals and less for meat, higher labor, packaging and energy costs and pressures on food costs during 1974 in order to go on living in stationary spiral.

As the harvest neared completion this year and it became clear that production would be down significantly from 1973—wheat production dropped 15 per cent—the review board published one of its most penetrating reports.

The outlook for food prices, it said, is "indeed gloomy."

"Increased supplies would have to wait for the 1976 crop year and that, Plumptre urged consumers to cut down on convenience foods and "go back to the old-fashioned way of cooking" to help lower costs.

At the same time, she called on the government to maintain its $100-million freezeon-a-quart subsidy on milk to help low-income consumers cope with rising prices.

The government declined, arguing that increased family allowance and programs which link rises in social security payments to cost-of-living increases would compensate for higher milk prices.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde suggested consumers follow his example and drink more powdered milk, a commodity still subsidized by the government.

Metaliers, however, announced shortly after that they felt no obligation to pass on milk-powder subsidy savings, saying the government paid only processors to keep powder costs down, not retailers.

In the midst of the continual food price controversy, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan kept up his campaign for higher farm prices, a stand credited with helping the Liberals capture a number of Ontario farm ridings and a majority government during the July 8 federal election.

He said government-sponsored increases in the cost of milk, butter and skim milk powder would help keep farmers in business.

He helped force up the price of eggs and turkeys by seeing that lower-priced United States imports were partially blocked at the border.

And he attempted to keep beef prices up first by banning imports of U.S. cattle and beef, ostensibly because cattlemen there are allowed to use the domestically-banned growth hormone diethylstilbestrol (DES), then later by limiting entry to amounts based on average imports.

Eventually, however, egg and beef problems blew up in his face.

In August, the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) was forced to concede that millions of eggs would have to be destroyed because they were not rotten in improper storage.

Farmers broke quota agreements, produced more eggs than they were allowed and CEMA bought up the surplus, storing many eggs—some in Quebec apple bins—while it waited for demand and prices to improve.

A special Commons inquiry eventually absolved Mr. Whelan of responsibility for the destruction of 20 million eggs—CEMA and the processors were blamed instead—but the agriculture minister made no secret that he was upset over public reaction to the issue.

Editorial cartoonists lampooned him repeatedly and newly - appointed Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet used the egg scandal as the basis for a public spat with the farm minister.

The issue also brought 1974 boil simmering animosity between Mr. Whelan and Mrs. Plumptre, a former reporter speeches during the late summer the two traded criticisms—she accusing him of allowing CEMA to set artificially high prices and he accusing her of failing to "get her facts straight."

The two had fewer differences over beef marketing. Both blamed a 1973 U.S. beef price freeze for creating conditions which eventually undercut the Canadian cattle market.

And both agreed that cattlemen should be helped while the beef market had a chance to stabilize.

Near the end of the year, Mr. Whelan moved to help cattlemen by agreeing to partially subsidize the sale of cows. That way, farmers could sell breeding stock which would eventually produce less beef and higher prices. And he agreed to call tenders for about $10 million of canned beef to be used in food aid programs.

He also said the government would urge meat sellers to promote sales of cheaper beef which is made from low-grade cow meat.

Mrs. Plumptre said she found this proposal particularly interesting when, as the year drew to a close, the CEMA boondoggle resembled finding potentially dangerous salmonella organisms in five number of hamburger samples collected in a survey.

The department said it will step up its inspection programs.

Ann Landers

Widower's Children Should Voice Opinion

Dear Ann Landers: My mother died of a broken blood vessel in her head eight months ago. Since I am the eldest of the four children (12) I am writing this letter for all of us.

Mom was a wonderful person and we miss her terribly. She was only 38 years old when she died. She was hardly ever sick and it came as a real shock to all of us.

The problem I am writing about is this: Our dad has been taking out a very pretty woman. She is a lot younger than mom was but we don't mind. What does bother us is that she is wearing mom's fur coat and jewelry.

Dad says he is not sure he is going to marry this person and that he has just loaned her these things. If he doesn't marry her he says she will return them. Do you think this is right? Should we tell him how we feel? Thank you, Ann Landers.—Speaking For Four

Dear Four: I do not think it is right and in my opinion you should tell your dad exactly how you feel.

Dear Ann Landers: One night last week, on my way home from work, I came upon what must have been a terrible accident. People were parking their cars every which way to rush over and see "what happened."

I counted two fire engines, a couple of ambulances and three police cars. The crowds were rushing to the scene like crazy. Those rubber-neckers weren't interested in trying to help. All they wanted to do was get a good look. I can't understand it. I'd go miles out of my way to avoid a scene of suffering. What is the world is the matter with people who love to see blood and mangled bodies?

If you can answer this question I'd love to have helped one person understand a great mystery. Thanks for trying. — One Who Kept On Going.

Dear One: The answer to the "mystery" can be described in two words—morbid curiosity. The human mind has many strange facets—some is deep conflict with others.

The element of "excitement" is another factor which makes people rush to the scene of an accident. Many people find it fascinating, even though it makes them sick. Unfortunately, most folks lead such dull uneventful lives that the sight of an accident gives them a thrill. Pathetic, isn' it?

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I were very friendly with another couple over a period of five years. (We are all in our late 30s.) About a year ago we agreed to indulge in a little "wifeswapping." It didn't seem so far out at the time because we were such good friends. After a while the excitement was gone and the four of us decided we were better friends than lovers, so we knocked off the intimacies. Another factor complicated matters—Monique became pregnant. Her husband is the father. This child is Minnie's first. (We have a 2 year old Minnie and her husband had been trying to have a family but it never occurred to me that's what she wanted to "swap" for.

Our two children are girls. Minnie had a boy. If we can prove the child is my husband's, does he have any legal rights to him?—Overweighted

Dear G.: Tests can prove that a man is not the father, but no test can prove that he is. Your husband has no legal rights to the child. According to law, her husband is the father.

Count Time by Your Heart

"We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths; In feelings, not in figures on a dial.

We should count time by heart-throbs.

He most lives

Who thinks most — feels the noblest —acts the best."

Philip James Bailey said that. And the thought has outlived him by half a century.

Let's make 1975 a year to count by heart-throbs — good ones — for the folk we care most about as well as for ourselves.

Dear Doris: I wish to become a gracious hostess. I was raised on a farm where manners were god but very informal. Now I am middle-aged but have gone out to work all my life and feel there is a lot to be learned in the field of entertaining.

Do you know anyone in our city who gives this kind of training? I would like private lessons where I am expected to go through the motions myself. I have thought of contacting a prominent woman but fear being thought a little daft. I think it would be a real challenge for someone to give lessons like this.

Myself — I would like to learn so that I could entertain the young members of our church and possibly be able to give lessons to the young girls.

Daft or Not?

Dear D. or N.: No not daft; a brilliant idea. While the essence of the gracious hostess is a genuine liking and consideration for others expressing itself in hospitality, there are some valuable trimmings which can be learned.

High school students are put through their paces in home economics classes. Foods are prepared, served, eaten, involving all the proper rules of etiquette. At community colleges whole courses are given in gourmet cooking. An advertisement in your local paper might at least find you a tutor in the art of hostessing.

But the library is a wonderful place to start: heaps of books have been written on good manners, etiquette, entertaining.

Dear Doris: I have known this guy for a short time but like him very much. He hasn't asked me out in over three weeks, although he always t e l e p h o n e s h o r t l y am... I have a terrible feeling that clings are going to end. How can I prevent this?

Losing Him.

Dear Reader: Most dating two-some's do end, for teens, sooner or later, as boys and girls move on to other companions.

If he has decided that he doesn't want to date you any more, be glad you weren't the one who had to make the break. Keep your cool and continue to be friendly when you meet him.

(Make a resolution to do something about your personal hang-up. Write to Doris, in care of this newspaper, for help in getting started.)

CSAO Polls Workers On Government Offer

TORONTO (CP) — The Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) has sent out ballots to about 32,000 provincial public servants in the general services category asking them if they want to accept a government offered package of wage and an illegal strike, it was announced Monday.

The ballots were sent to clerical, data processing, investigative and related employees, asking for a stand on a five-per-cent cost-of-living increase offered by the province.

The CSAO has just finished a confrontation with the government over pay raises for civil servants in the operational services category. That resulted in a 21½-per-cent increase for those workers.

The last settlement covering the general services workers gave them a nine-per-cent increase this year and another five per cent next year in a two-year agreement.

The government has offered a flat five-per-cent increase to cover the increased cost of living and the vote will give the workers a chance to accept or reject the proposal.

John Ward, CSAO communications director said the government refused to negotiate the cost-of-living increase.

The members have until Jan. 18 to vote on the question.

Lang Will Propose Tighter Bail Rules

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang says he will seek tighter bail procedures to ensure that dangerous criminals or likely repeaters are kept locked up while awaiting trial.

In a statement which has been reserved by the minister but not yet circulated, Mr. Lang said he will propose amendments to the 1972 bail reform legislation placing greater emphasis on the need to deny bail to persons who are likely to commit a crime if allowed to go free before trial.

The statement does not spell out the proposed changes, to be introduced soon after Parliament returns Jan. 20 from a Christmas recess, though Mr. Lang says judges would continue to exercise discretion on bail applications.

The changes would tighten bail procedures to help avoid repetition of the few "regrettable errors" which resulted in offences being committed by persons on bail, he says.

Prison Guards Awarded 28 Per Cent Pay Boost

KINGSTON Ont. (CP) — An arbitration officer Rene Lippe said Monday that federal prison guards have been awarded a new two-year contract with wage increases totalling 28 per cent.

The 2,300 custodial officers, members of the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC), are to receive an immediate 13-per-cent wage increase with further increases to follow in June and in February, 1976. The guards' work week is to be reduced Oct. 1 to 37½ hours from 40 hours.

The contract dispute went to arbitration after PSAC members, who were seeking a 25-per-cent increase, turned down a treasury board offer of 24 per cent.

What Happened To The Bottle?

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP) — A Scotsman died Monday trying to serve a bottle of whisky, police reported.

They said James McGhee, 48, dropped his scotch into the Forth and Clyde canal and jumped in after it.

"He drowned in an attempt to rescue his whisky," a police spokesman said.

Prices for Beer May Rise Again

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian brewers say beer drinkers may face more price increases in 1975 as industry costs continue to rise.

D. J. McDougall, president of Labatt Breweries of Canada Ltd., in London, Ont., said in an interview that brewers will have to pass on soaring production costs to consumers.

The latest retail price increase in Ontario, effective Jan 6, will bring the cost of a case of 24 12-ounce bottles to $8.56, including deposit from $5.80.

Labor Court Is Considered

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Labor Minister John MacBeth said Monday that creation of a special labor court is being considered. The court would rule on strikes which would have serious public impact.

"I hope we will have something to offer the public by way of constructive suggestions sometime in March or April," he said in an interview.

EDMONTON (CP) — An unexpected new measure of Alberta's fiscal health has surfaced in the provincial government's six-month financial statement.

Strike Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Work stoppages in Canada during October resulted in a loss of 732,500 working man-days, the federal labor department said Monday.

The time lost brings the 10-month total in 1974 to 8.9 million man-days, a record figure for a year.

In September, there were 799,790 days lost due to strikes or lockouts, while in October, 1973, 691,180 days were lost.

Cuba and Caribbean Popular Havens for Winter Vacationers

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

"Take me to Cuba . . . for New Year's."

Travel agents in the Belleville area are discovering more and more people who wish to visit Cuba for their holidays, a seasonal vacation never this week shows.

It's not just that people are becoming more curious about the communist Caribbean country... Bargain package tours provide an added incentive.

And Cuba, the land of Fidel Castro, sugar cane, and anti-capitalism, is increasingly aware of the value of those tourist dollars.

Irene Drew, owner of Trans-Era Travel Centre at 257 Front St., noted in the last two years Cuba is opening up for vacationers. "We find that Cuba is picking up," she said. "People are curious."

"We've sent quite a few," reported Mrs. Anthony Warren of Dawson and Dawson Travel at 186 Front St. "It's good value, naturally and curiosity comes into it."

They (Cuban officials) want the tourist dollars as much as anyone," she commented. "It's a good Carib-bean destination."

"Cuba is something different, and becoming very popular," said John Rawson, owner of Rawson Travel Service Limited in the Belleville Plaza. There are good facilities, which are still mostly direct, he added.

Rawson said he reminds the places uppermost in the minds of area travellers is the Hawaii, Florida, Jamaica, Bahamas and Barbados. And ski enthusiasts are taking advantage of those special Christmas packags deals to Europe.

Inflation does not seem to have a bearing on the travel business. In the months of tourists has increased over last year. "We have an increase ... which surprises me," said Mrs. Drew "As far as the travel industry goes, there isn't a recession as yet" Mr. Rawson explained people are "inflation-conscious" and there is a new movement for "a great influx of people asking for accommodation to villas."

Mrs. Drew outlined three or four couples will split the cost of a villa, treating their expenses "like grease," in addition, "people know each other before they go," he said.

Odd-and two-week package Caribbean cruises are high on the list, in light of past political trouble on some islands. "Instead of going to one spot on one island, they (tourists) go to a number to avoid trouble," said Mr. Rawson.

Less fighting in South America is making that continent more attractive, said Mrs. Drew.

Mr. Rawson described an opposite "angle to holiday travel, involving those who wait for charter flights in January and February rather than go at the end of December. He emphasized they should book their flights about three months in advance.

"You can't wait until one month ahead, and hope you'll get a spot," he remarked.

Further Delay Possible In Postal Bargaining

By COLIN BEDUE
Staff Reporter

Letter carriers in Belleville and across Canada may be without a union contract for another year, says Jim Campbell, president of the letter carriers' local here.

He says the delay stems from the three this summer where letter carriers severed union ties with inside postal workers.

Originally, the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (inside) and the Letter Carriers Union of Canada bargained and negotiated as a single unit. Last August the split was completed.

"As a result of the split, both unions lost certification," said Mr. Campbell. In losing this certification with the Public Service Staff Relations Board, the contract covering both unions became void Dec. 8 and negotiations for a new contract may not begin until certification is regained.

The contract, which had been in effect, expired today.

Union Oct. 8, Canada's 22,000 inside workers and 18,500 outside workers have worked under a "letter of agreement" with the federal government, said Mr. Campbell.

Mr. Campbell's letter carriers have gone through one round of certification discussions with the staff relations board since last December. Early today Mr. Campbell said, he was still notifying union personnel, a second session is slated by the federal government Jan. 11.

Regnally, both unions would have commenced bargaining for a new contract at the end of October — in keeping with terms in the existing contract. Asked if militancy would result from delayed negotiations, Mr. Campbell said "I (the executive) don't want any problems. They don't want to agitate anyone."

To offset the effects of the rising cost of living during the waiting period, both unions have asked for an "interim settlement," which is still before the treasury board.

"We've got every a flat no," said Mr. Campbell.

He said the size of the raise is unknown.

Once certification is regained, Mr. Campbell said the letter carriers are ready to begin negotiations "immediately".

"We've had our demands completed for months," he said.

Unlike the last negotiations, when the unions presented 130 demands, this time only 10 are being made.

"We've pared demands down to just the main issues," said Mr. Campbell.

The last contract talks took 14 months to complete.

Call off the Warmth

An increasing number of Belleville area residents are fleeing the icy grip of winter for the warmer climate down south this year, according to the city's travel agents. Kathy Wilkinson, an employee of Roluf's Travel Centre on Front St., displays brochures from some of the sunny places which are high on travellers' lists for the Christmas holidays.

Chief Says Election Vote Only Expression of Opinion

TYENDINAGA — Federal authorities will view last Saturday's reserve election plebiscite here as an "expression of opinion" but not as a legal referendum, says Chief William Brant.

The chief conferred in Ottawa Monday with officials from the Indian Affairs and justice departments on issues involving the controversy dividing the Mohawks on this reserve.

His visit followed the referendum in which Mohawks voted 181-11 for new council elections.

The vote was organized by opponents of the present reserve council headed by Chief Brant.

The organizers said they were following procedures suggested in a letter from Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan. They appointed their own returning officer to supervise the vote and took a census provision to the pleb-iscite. The census registered 488 eligible voters.

However, Chief Brant said he was told by Department officials the returning officer should have been appointed either by the reserve council or the department's district superintendent at Kingston. A referendum should also reflect opinions of a majority of the eligible voters.

But Cliff Maracle, a member of the reserve council who is also a key spokesman for his opposition, said today the referendum followed the written advice of Mr. Buchanan.

"He didn't state that it was necessary to go through the band council," said Mr. Maracle.

"They are always trying to impose some type of regulation," he added.

"Why should Bill Brant be so scared if he figures he has the majority?" asked Mr. Maracle.

Vote organizers intended personally taking the results of the plebiscite to Ottawa, but Mr. Maracle said as far as he knew plans are unchanged.

Meantime, another controversial issue in the dispute appeared in the making.

Chief Brant said he was told by department officials an anti-trespass bylaw recently passed by the reserve council will have official approval by mid-January. The council now calls for council's consent for use of buildings and areas under its control.

Disabled Mohawks have used the reserve's community centre for meetings. But they must have permission will provide the music. There are still tickets left at 25 per couple.

And in the Four Seasons Room Ballroom for 275 couple, party-goers will enjoy a reception from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., with dancing to the music of Jo Sargent until 1 a.m. Lavish roast hip of beef, seafood and other hot and cold buffet items will be served at 10:45 p.m.

Club Cedars, on the River Road north of Canniffton, just north of Highway 401, will have a table and dance with Frank Howard and his 40-chenbra. Tickets can still be bylaw could affect even privately-owned property on the reserve.

"It's a terrible bylaw. It's against the people," he charged.

Quotable Quotes Worth Repeating

With 1974 on its way to becoming just a memory, it might be interesting to look back on those things that live on and on . . . what a person has said. Here then, is what some people were saying in news in the Quinte area had to say in 1974.

"The entire trip was a great experience. Gordie Howe and Bobby Hull both suggested getting caught by a fake police as an alibi for my move."... Mayor Robin Jeffery commenting on her broken nose which occurred during a trip to Moscow for the Canada-USSR hockey series in the fall.

"I've enjoyed it. I wouldn't have missed it for the world. I candidate, Marie Kurchak, after her loss to Conservative MP Jack Ellis in the July 8 federal election.

"I don't think I'm being egotistical. I think I've done a decent job over the last 18 months and as a consequence I've retained my seat." ... Hastings MP Jack Ellis after his victory in the July 8 federal election.

"He didn't take me too seriously. Then I said a poster of a naked woman would be more appropriate, that it would be more enjoyable for the women customers. Then he started to get upset." . . . Linda Baker, commenting on a poster in Len Shaupe's barber shop of a nude woman depicted as a side of beef showing fly various cuts.

"We don't pay attention to everybody, but we listen carefully." ... Alderman Ben Corke on submissions by the public at a Quinte Planning Board meeting.

"All we have to do is divert Moira River into Moira Lake Creek, pave the river bed and our flooding troubles are gone forever." . . . City Aldermanic candidate Lloyd Armstrong speaking at the Wharf St. Rehabing Society in November on a whimsical solution to downtown parking problems.

"I'm not interested in visiting these places if you're going to be in the way when I'm coming. I don't want to see a show. I'll be there to see what conditions are like ordinarily." ... Quinte MPP Dr. Richard Potter, after his appointment as minister of correctional services, speaking in error to Napanee Regional Detention Centre.

"There is no way a municipal officer on the street can keep law and order the way he could 25 years ago." ... Retired Picton police chief, George Pitt, stepping down after 38 years of service.

Caught Booknapping

Mary McConnell, director of Loyalist College's Anderson Resource Centre, demonstrates how a booknapper might attempting to leave without having a book checked out, by the centre's new "tattletape" system. An electronic eye between the counter and the screen behind her detects the treated book, sounding a gong and locking the turnstile in front of her.

Booknappers Foiled at Loyalist

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

A loyalist student walks up to the checkout desk in the college's Anderson Resource Centre; a Library book held in one hand, ready to be checked out. And a child at what appears to be his own textbooks held in the crook of his other arm.

He hands the book to a clerk, who inserts it in a small machine, presses a button, pffs out proper cards, and then returns the book to him.

But as he goes to pass through the turnstile, a gong sounds and the turnstile is locked, barring his exit. Sheepishly, he says, turning scarlet from the neck up.

And as the clerk asks politely while suppressing a smile, "Excuse me, sir. Do you have another book?", he retrieves another library book from his stack of personal publications, giving it to her. The checkout procedure is repeated, and he is free to go on his way.

The would-be booknapper has been foiled by "tattletape", a new anti-book theft system, manufactured by the 3M Corp. Ltd. which has been installed at the resource centre since March.

"It's protecting your investment," pointed out centre director Mary McConnell in an interview Tuesday.

The system is simple and almost infallible. Each publication in the resource centre is "treated" with tattletape. As a culprit attempts to pass the checkout counter with a hidden book, an electronic eye triggers a gong and locks the turnstile, and the thief cannot escape immediately.

Mrs. McConnell said books can be detected among other books, inside pockets or briefcases, or hidden in any manner on a person. Even swipping a book in tinfoil will not foil the system.

Borrowers are allowed to meet the cost," Mr. uffy said.

"A single-number system would help in this area," Mr. Duffy said. "Particularly in the case of fire calls. There are a number of people who aren't sure what time-zoning they live in and if they call the wrong fire department, that much time is lost in getting equipment to the fire."

With the single-number emergency system, virtually every emergency call — police, fire, ambulance, — is handled 24 hours a day from a central office.

"It's not a question of whether it's new or what system, but it's a question of getting one number," he said.

Mr. Duffy said the effects of the system would be felt immediately.

"We'd have a lot more efficiency and people could get help a lot quicker," he said.

Mr. Duffy's comments came at a meeting of the Ontario Municipal Advisory Committee, a group of municipal officials from across the province who meet with provincial officials to discuss problems.

The system is expected to be in use in London and Kitchener...

"We've discussed it for this area, but the participating municipalities weren't prepar-

Many Ringing In New Year

Hundreds of Belleville area residents will welcome in the New Year tonight at dozens of public and private parties.

A survey Monday showed many places extending open invitations still had tickets available for latecomers..

At Sun Valley Motor Inn, where new and the largest festivities is held each year, owner Sam Goodman said "we're having probably our biggest preparations of any year" for food and dining.

Sun Valley's buffet will include between 40 and 50 different dishes, he said. The cost is $13.50 per person.

Dancing to the Madrid hosts will feature the Jozy Jones show, a group of seven who opened the World's Fair in Seattle Wash.

In the Mad Mechanic at the Four Seasons Hotel, a Toronto group, Atlantis will provide the music. There are still tickets left at $6 per couple.

And in the Four Seasons' Ballroom for 275 couple, party-goers will enjoy a reception from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., with dancing to the music of Jo Sargent until 1 a.m. Lavish roast hip of beef, seafood and other hot and cold buffet items will be served at 10:45 p.m.

Club Cedars, on the River Road north of Canniffton, just north of Highway 401, will have a table and dance with Frank Howard and his 40-chenbra. Tickets can still be purchased at $25 per couple.

Royal Canadian Legion Branch 62 will hold a New Year's Ball with the Don Woods band, and a large buffet from 11 p.m. to 3 a.m. Tickets at $20 a couple can still be purchased at the bar.

Take two chases

The Shrine Club will have a dance and buffet in the dining room at a cost of $25 per couple. Punch will be served from 8 to 10 p.m. when the music will begin, with the buffet to follow at midnight.

It will be business as usual at the Belvedere Hotel, where the Ron Jones Trio will provide the music. There are still seats left at $6 per couple.

The Green Door at the Quinte Hotel will close today at 4 p.m. but there will be a special New Year's menu in the Gold room. Reservations will be taken from 4 to 8 p.m.

Tickets at two locations were sold out in November for tonight's activity. The Army, Navy and Airforce Veterans Branch 62 Edinburgh Unit there was filled in about a week, while the Oddfellows Lodge party was sold out in three weeks...

Damage Extensive

A two-vehicle collision at the intersection of Bridge and Front street early today caused $2,500 damage to the vehicles involved.

City police said a station wagon driven by Malcolm Bell, 46, of Wright Ave., was travelling east on Bridge St. when it came into collision with a car driven by Edward Driver, 49 of Harris Cres. going south on Front St.

Police said the accident which occurred about 7 a.m. today resulted in cuts and bruises to Doris Bell, a passenger in the Bell vehicle. Mr. Driver also was slightly injured in the mishap.

Take Your Pick

New Year's Eve party-goers have a wide choice of festivities to enjoy to welcome in 1975 tonight, everything from elaborate hotel buffet dances to small private get-togethers. Judging from the amount of activity to take place, the strains of Auld Lang Syne should be heard clearly over the Belleville area as midnight strikes.

Restaurant Doles Out Tips in Lieu of Wages

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says a local restaurant operation is paying its staff out of their tips, a situation which the newspaper says may be unique in Ontario.

In a front-page story, the newspaper says a local restaurant, the Three Crowns, collects employees' tips, deducts income tax and Canada Pension Plan payments, then doles them out in twice-weekly pay cheques.

The newspaper says the company makes up the difference if the collected tips do not equal the minimum wage, $2.35 an hour.

The story, said the restaurant is run by a United States company, Steak and Ales Restaurant Inc. of America.

The newspaper says the restaurant, in effect, is getting its staff for free.

The newspaper quotes Bob Kirkwood, a manager of the Three Crowns, as saying the employees love working for the company.

Employees quoted say they enjoy the work and atmosphere.

The newspaper says that in one two-week pay period, the lowest pay from gratuities was $2.52 an hour, while the highest was $4.85 an hour.

Freight Rates Ruling Is Due

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian transport commission is expected to announce today its decision on a move by eight provinces to block proposed railway freight increases averaging more than 23 per cent.

The commission's railway transport committee hearing was in running today after 12 hours of testimony and questioning Monday in a last-minute effort by opponents to block the increases being sought by CP Rail and Canadian National.

A federally-imposed freeze on freight rates in effect since January, 1973, expires at midnight tonight and the three Prairie provinces, with the support of the Atlantic provinces and Ontario, want the freeze extended.

At the start of the hearing Monday, the provinces asked for an indefinite freeze, but proposed later that it be 18 days.

New Passenger Train OK at 90-mile Speed

TORONTO (CP) — An official of the federal transport development agency said Monday that a high-speed passenger train soon to be tested between Toronto and Sarnia, Ont. has reached the point where it can be certified for main line operations at 90 miles an hour.

Peter Ezzleton said in an interview: "I think we set some kind of railroad record in one test when the train operated over 1,000 miles at a continuous average speed of 87.2 miles per hour."

Canadians To Be Better Off in 1975

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said Monday that high inflation will continue in 1975 but Canadians will be better off economically than most others.

In a year-end economic review, Mr. Gillespie predicted steady growth in the economy in 1975 but at a slower pace than in recent years.

He said he foresees a modest slowing in inflation but the inflation rate "will remain high by historic standards."

The Consumer Price Index, a key indicator of inflation, showed that prices for goods and services were 12 per cent higher in November than a year ago.

Wings Trade Berenson for Roberto

Former Leaf Leads Penguins

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs would like to forget they had to give up Rick Kehoe to get the right winger and his Pittsburgh Penguins team-mates keep coming back to rub salt in the Leafs' wounds.

Kehoe demanded to be traded before the start of the National Hockey League season, claiming a conflict with coach Red Kelly, and wound up with the Penguins.

Monday night, Kehoe scored twice to lead Pittsburgh to a 9-5 win over the Leafs, the Penguins' third win in a row and leap between the clubs this year.

In other NHL games Monday, New York Rangers whipped Minnesota North Stars 8-1 and Los Angeles Kings edged Detroit Red Wings 4-3.

Kehoe opened the scoring at Pittsburgh with his 14th goal of the season midway in the first period, starting the Penguins' forward to a 3-0 lead.

His second goal -at 12:46 of the second period gave Pittsburgh a 4-0 lead but Lanny McDonald, who went to Leafs in the trade for Kehoe, scored his 26th of the season three minutes later and Jim McKenny followed with another Leafs goal to narrow the margin to 4-3.

Penguins' captain Ron Schock beat Toronto netminder Doug Wilson early in the third period and then set up a goal by Vic Hadfield to put Pittsburgh up 6-3 and effectively clinch the win.

Wilson faced 47 shots in the Toronto nets while Penguins' Les Binkley faced 40 in the Penguins goal.

Cesare Maniago also had to contend with a 40-shot barrage in the Minnesota goal while the North Stars managed only 25 shots at Rangers' Gilles Villemure.

In the second period alone, the Rangers had 21 shots and scored three times for a 5-1 lead.

Centre Jean Ratelle scored two goals and assisted on goals by Brad Park, Rod Gilbert and Steve Vickers, Rookie Dick Middleton also had a goal and two assists.

It was the North Stars' 30th loss in 36 games this season. Minnesota is last in the fourth place in the Smythe Division, while the New Yorkers moved into possession of second place in the Patrick Division, two points up on Atlanta, Flames.

It was our best offensive game of the season,"said Rangers coach Emile Francis.

"When we start moving the puck around like that it has to go in eventually," said New York defenceman Ron Greschner who had three assists in the game.

At Detroit, Bob Berry scored at 5:46 of the third period to break a 3-3 tie and give Los Kings their eighth win in 10 road games this season.

Defenceman Terry Rutherford was sprawled on the ice after stopping a shot by Larry Brown and had no chance on Berry's goal which ended Kings a 3-3 lead. Nick Libbett added a Detroit goal and Rogie Vachon had the Wings shots for part of the way.

It was Detroit's eighth consecutive game without a victory.

The Red Wings completed a home-and-home series at St. Louis Blues, sending centre Red Berenson to the Blues in an exchange for winger Phil Roberto and a third-round draft choice in 1975.

Roberto played with Allen with the Blues from 1967 when they joined the league until Feb. 6, 1974, when they traded to the Detroit with Tim Ecclestone for Garry Unger and Wayne Carleton.

Tonight, the Red Wings play Los Angeles visits Chicago Black Hawks.

Too Much Jabbar For the Braves

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

No one Cleveland stops Buffalo's Bob McAdoo, but Kareem Abdul-Jabbar came close enough for Milwaukee Bucks to hand the slumping Braves their fifth loss in six games Monday night.

Abdul-Jabbar scored 31 points and hauled down 24 rebounds while holding McAdoo to 20 points and only 10 rebounds as the Bucks dumped the Braves 108-91. McAdoo's 20 points were the only time below his National Basketball Association season's average, but the Buffalo sharpshooter managed to hit just 11 of 33 attempts from the field.

Milwaukee broke it open with a 16-3 burst in the third period that Buffalo never recovered. Bob Dandridge added 26 points for the Bucks.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Washington beat Cleveland 103-97, Detroit beat Chicago 96-87, Houston defeated Los Angeles 120-107, and Golden State defeated Kansas City-Omaha 107-100.

In the American Basketball Association, New York downed Memphis 130-119, Kentucky beat Virginia 104-85 and Utah defeated San Antonio 105-104.

Dynamos Fall 8-5

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean-Pierre Trottier and Marcel Dionne scored three goals each Monday night to lead Local Nationals to an 8-5 win over Shawinigan Dynamos in Quebec Major Junior Hockey League play.

Play recesses Thursday with Cornwall at Quebec and Sherbrooke at Hull.

Stubborn Finns Edged 2-1

Three in A Row for Canada

WINNIPEG (CP) — Dale McMullin's third-period powerplay goal Monday night earned the Canadian team a 3-1 victory over Finland and lifted the Canadians into sole possession of first place in the six-team world junior hockey tournament.

"It's been a long time since I've been a junior hockey coach but on a show like that," said Canadian coach Jackie McLeod after the game, easily the best of the round-robin tournament so far. Both clubs left checked and checked well throughout.

In Monday night's other game, Sweden whipped the United States 7-3 and now has two points. Finland and the Americans have one point each while the Swedes and Canadians have no points after two games.

Tonight, the U.S. meets the Soviet Union at Minneapolis, while the other teams in the tournament take a rest.

The Canadian team, composed of players from the Western Canada Hockey League, is unbeaten in three games for six points, two better than the Soviet Union.

Mike McMahon of the Flin Flon Bombers of the WCHL, Brandon Wheat Kings, scored one of the clubs three goals, lifting a rebound over Finnish goaltender Marcus Mattsson. Mark Davidson scored with Canada shorthanded in the second period and Matti Hagman scored a second-period power-play for Finland.

The game was rough, especially in the first period when both clubs were often guilty at the end of the sixth shift or the start of the chilopy play ended in a fight. Midway through the period and then the second minute found hitting, most of the time clean, the order of the evening by Doug Soetaert of Medicine Hat, Alta.

"That was the kind of game we expected from Finland," McLeod said after the game. "They are a big physical club to check as well or better than any other team here."

Soetaert blocked out 21 shots, including two excellent stops in the third period.

Mattsson, a 17-year-old third-stringer brought in the tournament only after Finland's top goaltender became ill, handled 44 shots and had the Canadian players and the 3,200 fans buzzing over his play.

On the play that led to the winning goal, Mike Davidson, who set up both Canadian goals, broke down the right side and around the defence, a play he said he's used in the WCHL all year.

"I was natural to carry it around the defence," said the centre up down the middle. The defence kept backing up but I thought I could get around them and in front enough for a shot. That's how we always play in our league."

Jet's Hot Pace Hard to Match

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (CP) — It's not easy chasing Bobby Hull on the ice or in the scoring department.

The speedy 35-year-old left winger, who plays for Winnipeg Jets, has managed to stay in front in World Hockey Association scoring race this season although Serge Bernier of Quebec Nordiques and Real Cloutier of Houston Aeros have often come close to overtaking him.

In fact, Real tied him for the lead on a couple of occasions when they were level in goals and two points at Hull's total last week.

This time around, however, it's a different story. Statistics released Monday showed Hull with a leading 64 points on 36 goals, tied in the league and 28 assists.

Bernier is second with 56 points on 41 goals and Cloutier is with Loud in third on 52 points, including 32 assists. Last week Hull had 62 points, Bernier 52 and Loud 48.

Defensive champion Mike Walton of Minnesota Fighting Saints, Andre Lacroix of San Diego Mariners, Ron Ellis of Winnipeg and Wayne Dillon of Indianapolis Racers are in fifth place, each with 45 points.

Leading goalie honors is held by Wilbden of Cleveland Crusaders with a 2.25 goals-against average. He has allowed 99 goals in 775 minutes played. Gerry Cheevers of Cleveland is next with a 2.61 average.

Other statistics do not include Monday's games between Phoenix Roadrunners and Quebec.

Red Army Team Wins

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Soviet Union Central Red Army team defeated a bolstered London Nationals squad from the Ontario Hockey Association while Sweden's Leksand IF beat Monday in exhibition hockey.

A crowd of 5,000 watched 20 minutes of hockey in a second straight game on its Canadian tour. The Soviets downed Canadian Major Junior A Hamilton Fincups 8-4 last Saturday.

The Soviets have a 6-4 tie Monday with a goal by Victor Shalimov with less than five minutes to play.

Sergei Glazov fired in two goals for the Soviets and assisted Kolosov and Vladimir Litchenko each scored once.

Tom Rowe, John Sarkic, Peter Lee and Bill Beauchamp each scored for the Knights.

The Knights used Peterborough Petes and Toronto Marlboros as fillers between Friday's Soviet game in Toronto and Monday's game in London.

The Soviets have a 3-2 record.

Nordiques Upset By Roadrunners

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Nordiques lost an home ice and left coach Jean-Guy Gendron in a bad frame of mind.

"I don't mind playing our positions properly," Gendron said after the Nordiques lost to the Phoenix Roadrunners in the World Hockey Association game Monday night.

"All of the second period they were in our zone and we were unprepared for an onslaught."

"The referee (Monday) hadn't been hot for us in the nets, but tonight we have run away with the games."

Bruderer raced 28 shots while Phoenix goaltender Gary Kurt, who was making his only twelfth at home for the Nordiques in 22 starts. They are second in the Canadian Division with 30 points, three behind Toronto Toros.

The Roadrunners, who joined the league this season along with Indianapolis Racers, are fourth in the Western Division. They have 26 points, 12 behind Houston.

Jim Dorey put a goal in each period for the Roadrunners. Jim Hall, Jerry Odrowski and Dennis Sobchuk scored the other Phoenix goals. Serge Bernier, Rejean Houle and Bob Sicinski replied for Quebec.

Sergeyev, who jumped to the WHA from Providence Reds of the American Hockey League, scored his first goals in Initial WHA season.

Phoenix visits Michigan Stags at Detroit tonight and Cleveland Crusaders are home to Chicago Cougars.

Night Hawks Shade Wings of the Soviet

Pendlay's goal was the seventh of the night for the Nighthawks and the winning point of their career.

It was their second game in as many nights and they defeated in their opening game last week.

Kids Face Crackdown At Bobcats Home Games

Once a year the Belleville Bobcats hold Kiddies Night at the Memorial Arena. At least that's the way it used to be. Now, for some reason, every night is getting to be Kiddies Night. Every time the home team has to take to the ice it is surrounded with numerous screaming, yelling darlings who are no more interested in hockey than Catalina Island is in playing with the Oakland A's.

"It's got to be the cheapest babysitting service in town," said Bobcats General manager, Gene "Snake" Matthews. "I don't mind the kids coming to the game, but I'm a little ill for the true hockey fans."

Snipe added that he didn't think the kids were the instigators who pressed through the Bobcats' gate were on hand. "It's just a few," he said.

Well, Snipe, you shouldn't be so blind. It is the majority that prove to be a menace to the real Bobcat fans. For every one that sits and behaves themselves and enjoys the game, there are three that don't.

You don't have to worry about stepping on the little ones here, there. They know exactly what they're doing when they dodge in the fans. They are more than capable to take care of their own little hides. Your attention, even terrorize the fans, becomes their target. They know and they know that there isn't much in sight anywhere that really be rough on them.

"Every time my wife comes to a game she has to leave," said Matthews, "and the Arena Board is getting letters about them because there just aren't enough seats."

Snipe has employed one usher for the game (Greg Sicsbett), but it isn't fair to expect him to make sure four or five hundred kids behave and stay still. If Matthews was going to make sure of that he would almost have to spend his entire profit on ushers.

"I think the parents should be made aware of exactly what the kids are doing," said the GM.

Snipe added that most of the fans in the Metro League dread coming to Belleville for games. "The kids shoot paper clips at out of town players and they throw dimes and other miscellaneous stuff at the ice all three of which are responsible to be real safety hazards while skating." Once your skate hits one of those you can break a leg or an ankle or maybe even your neck or back.

"Whiffle Ball is also at the best League meeting," he said. "The kids were constantly firing paper clips at them."

When Whitby came to the Memorial Arena Friday night they left a little something behind. Besides losing the game, one of their players broke a hockey stick over the boards and injured a fan that is in placing with the Oakland A's.

Matthews wants the young fans who pulled the pranks not to leave it at the canteen in the Memorial.

"One glove isn't going to do anybody any good," he said, "but there are some who pretty much probably paid $75 for them." Matthews added that there would be consequences suffered for the return.

This wasn't the first time a mischievous act has been carried out at the Arena. Due to the usual annoying things, a couple of years ago at the Red Wing game a Tuesday fan and a Bobcat fan came to fisticuffs.

"They weren't very old," said Matthews. What really stumped Snipe was the fact that both were girls.

Snipe is left with a couple of alternatives. Due to the "pack the price up for kids" and try to keep the numbers down. The other is "to have my wife stay home" and hope that it will be a lesson to all of them.

Whatever conclusion he comes to, it will affect the wages of the young fans. Maybe if the parents who are reading they may be able to do something about it themselves.

SLICES — If you're looking for a crowd pleaser in the next few days, then look in the cupboard. If you happen to be a Canadian and get a load of bowl, just turn on your television set.

Tonight, Nebraska plays Florida in the Sugar Bowl. Wednesday and New Year's Day three more bowls are filled. One of them, Cal meets Ohio State in the Rose Bowl. Notre Dame takes on Alabama State in the Orange Bowl and Penn State plays Baylor in the Cotton Bowl.

Those games, combined with the five bowl games played the day before the weekend, mean that 18 teams have taken Part in Bowls this season.

Belleville McInroy Connection goalie Tim Cook has puck smothered as Trenton forwards Cat Caulfi (9) and Scott Miles close in. Cook played strong game in 3-1 loss to the Trenton club in hostaan minor league final of Silver Cup Tournament.

Everything Under Control

Trenton Tournament Action

McInroy Shaded 2-1 in Final

By DOUG WALSH
Sports Editor

TRENTON — "This is my last year," admitted the minor hockey manager as he stood off the final second of the minor bantam final of the Trenton Minor Hockey Association's Silver Cup tournament here, Monday.

Ron Koppmann, manager of the Trenton team involved in a cliff-hanger with Belleville McInroy Construction for the minor bantam championship of the four-day tourney, was attempting to talk off the tension. While he walked, he promised himself aloud he'd never get involved again.

Koppmann's team was engaged in the set. But when the Trenton squad managed to kill off a late penalty and emerge with the title.

Ted Soska's Belleville team, promoted with speed, scored eight chances through the contest, just could not buy a goal after Clarence Brookman had connected for a powerplay counter late in the second period.

Brookema's tally broke a scoreless deadlock and the way goalies Ron Cook of McInroy's and Trenton's Greg Howard were performing, it looked as if that one goal might just be enough.

It wasn't until the halfway point in the third period that Trenton equalized. Chuck Miles was the marksman.

Tom Koppmann fired the winner with a little more than three minutes remaining in regulation time.

Trenton swept both halves of the bantam championship.

Jim Whyte's majors came from behind to top Kingston Township in their title match, the final game of the tournament.

Down 3-0 after one period, the Trenton team roared back to pot three in a row and move in front 3-2 with Saints' winning streak.

"Maybe lady luck had something to do with it," added Murray, "we had to lose one sometime."

"It's just too had it had to happen now," he added.

The locals dumped Bideon, of Ottawa, 4-0 in their tournament opener and on Friday dumped Ottawa's Canterbury Association Secondary 67-44. Steve Black scored 18 points in the first game and 24 in the second. Steve McCracken had 18 in the opener and 14 in the second.

The final, Saturday night was a preliminary to the final of the Carleton University Tournament which is run ultaneously in the high school event. There were over 2,000 spectators on hand to watch the hi-h school contest, and most of the games was televisied throughout the city.

The Saints were behind by five at the half, but jumped in front by one at the three-quarter mark. From there the lead seesawed back and forth until the final few...editions when Brookfield took control.

The difference in the game, at least on the scoreboard, was Brookfield's Ed Cook, a tach centre, Bill Langford. He scored 21 points.

For Quinte, Steve Hale had 16 and Steve McCracken got 16.

The loss snapped a 15 game

Winter Games

Toronto Tops In Gymnastics

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — The main events of the Ontario Winter Games—the first provincial competition to combine both sports and cultural events—opened up Monday night, as more than 1,200 young athletes headed home from four days of competition.

The competition, the second to be held in Ontario, also attracted about 600 local performers who demonstrated their talents and crafts.

The skiing events of the competition are to be held here Jan. 11 and 12. When these events are completed, the final standings of the Ontario contingent that will compete in the Canada Winter Games in Lethbridge, Alta., Feb. 19-14 will be announced.

Ontario's representatives in the other sports are to be announced today.

Toronto swept the gymnastic events in the final evening of competition.

Bob Carrique and Joby Wilcox won the men's and women's gymnastic gold medals, while silver medals went to David Steeper and Jill Gibson.

Miss Wilcox won on the uneven bars, the balance beam and in floor exercises, as well as taking the overall title.

Carrique won the parallel bars, and horizontal bar events, and tied for first in floor exercises in addition to winning the overall title.

Athletes from Toronto also won the judo finals in three classes.

The host city took three of the 10 wrestling gold medals and three others went to Toronto. Thunder Bay also won the overall wrestling team competition.

Thunder Bay also won both the men's and women's basketball finals.

Windsor was second in the men's event and Sudbury took the silver medal in the women's competition.

The last gold medal of the games went to Oakville in the hockey final. Collingwood won the silver medal.

The games were a co-operative effort combining the provincial ministry of community and social services, the host city and provincial sport-governing bodies.

Harmony Missing

HAVANA (CP) — A member of Canada's national women's basketball team was kicked off the team Monday following a feud with coach John Donahoe.

A team official said Monday night that Liz Silcott, 23, of Loyola College student, was ordered off the team for poor attitude at practice. The official said it is possible that she will be sent back home early.

Miss Silcott, a guard and member of the team since 1971, was described by Roger Jackson, chairman of the Game Plan technical committee, as a good player. He said there has been trouble between Miss Silcott and coach Donahoe since the team arrived here last Friday.

The women's basketball team is one of eight teams here for 10 days of training and competition with Cuban national team. They are training for the 1976 Montreal Olympics.

Coach Donahoe was not available for comment.

Lancaster Back? Clair Hopes So

OTTAWA (CP) — "I hope it's true," commented general manager Frank Clair Monday when asked about reports that quarterback Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan Roughriders will join the Ottawa entry in the Eastern Football Conference.

The Citizen said Saskatchewan has informed Lancaster he can be transferred to the east-ern Riders in return for defensive back Al Marcella and defensive end Jim Piskorski.

"I know nothing about it," Clair said in an interview. "But I haven't talked to Ken Preston, Saskatchewan general manager) for 10 days."

"In fact I've been trying to reach him all afternoon."

"There is still no truth to the stories."

Lancaster is adding 6,000 yards to its home park and wants a name quarterback such as Lancaster to help attract fans.

Rick Cassatta, one of two quarterbacks with Ottawa last year, has played out his option. Ottawa owner David Lord last said he doesn't want Cassatta back anyway.

In Regina, Saskatchewan general manager Ken Preston discounted the report and said Lancaster "is going to play he's going to play in Regina."

Preston said the only club that had been given permission to talk to Lancaster was Toronto and that negotiations concerned Lancaster becoming a coach.

DUDLEY SIDELINED

BUFFALO (CP) — Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League said Monday that right winger Rick Dudley, who suffered a bruised lung during the third period of a game Sunday night against Philadelphia Flyers, has been told not to practice for 10 to 14 days. He suffered the injury when hit by a player. In 27 games, he had 14 goals and 16 assists.

Evonne Will Meet Czech for Title

MELBOURNE (AP) — Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia gained a berth in today's women's single final at the Australian Open tennis championships with a 6-4, 6-4 victory Monday over Natasha Chmyreva of the Soviet Union.

The Czech was after a hard-fought when she appeared nearly steady than the 16-year-old Russian.

Miss Navratilova, 18, is assured of $2,500 for her appearance in Wednesday's final. If she wins she will get $7,500.

Both girls said they did not enjoy playing on the slippery centre court and each fell over several times. Miss Chmyreva fell over twice in less successive points in the second set.

Defending champion, Evonne Goolagong of Australia became Miss Navratilova's opponent in the final with a convincing 6-3, 6-4 victory over Oveal Britain's Sue Barker.

The English girl never was in the match after dropping her service early in the first set and then being broken a second time.

Miss Goolagong, 23, lost her serve when leading 5-3 in trail 5-4, 5et then broke Miss Barker.

It will be the fifth time in a row Miss Goolagong has been in the final of the Australian Championship, winning the title for the first time last year.

In men's singles play, Jimmy Connors of the United States and Australia's John Newcombe moved one victory to a showdown with quarter-final victories Monday.

Connors, the defending champion, whipped Kim Warwick of Australia 6-3, 6-2, 6-2, while Newcombe got past fellow countryman Geoff Masters 1-6, 6-3, 6-7, 6-3, 6-4.

Bidding for Hunter

Five Teams Left In the Running

AHOSKIE, N.C. (AP) — Five baseball teams will make what may be their last pitch today for Jim Hunter and a high-salaried baseball free agent.

The 28-year-old Hunter, who pitched the Oakland (Calif.) baseball A's to three straight World Series victories, is expected to choose between baseball's two newest franchises, the Texas Rangers and Thomas Cherry, one of four lawyers working with Hunter on contract negotiations, said Monday night that the bidding had been reduced to five teams.

San Diego Padres, Cleveland Indians and a telephone conference call with three Padres officials.

Rusty Carpenter, Philadelphia Phillies president, withdrew his team from the bidding Monday, saying a $2.6-million offer had been rejected. Texas Rangers said their $2.5-million offer was rejected.

One source said he had seen Hunter and his lawyers gave to one team and said it called for $2.5 million for Hunter, $300,000 in lawyers fees and $1.05 million in insurance policies for Hunter and his children. Several major league baseball executives confirmed the general outline of the proposal.

Peter Bavasi, vice-president of the Padres, said his club would not lose this unprotected baseball sweepstakes because their bid was too low.

"All the clubs are now apparently aware of what it's going to take financially," Bavasi said. "I think it tells how to quality of life. I think that is experiment in Jim's mind."

There were others who finally decided it wasn't worth the incredibly high cost to make Hunter a resident of their city.

Calvin Griffith, owner of Minnesota Twins, said:

"Short timers, we were prepared to go as high as $2 million, but after discussions with Hunter and his attorneys that we weren't even in the ballpark."

Carpenter, the Phillies owner, said: "We declined the million dollar bid; I would do anything within reason to bring a championship to the city of Philadelphia, but I could not go any further without jeopardizing the player development program and financial structure of the Phillies' organization.

"I cannot sacrifice a productive farm system and the welfare of every employee, both on and off the field, for one man, regardless of his ability."

Guelph Belted

DETROIT, Mich. (CP) — Ed Dobbs and Steve Latzos each scored two goals to lead Detroit Junior Wings to a 7-3 win over Guelph Biltmores in the only Canadiens Oshawa Junior Hockey League action Monday.

IN MEMORIAM

ASSELSTINE — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Ethel, who died 31 years ago today, December 31, 1943.
Lovingly and kindly in all her ways,
Upright and honest to the end of her days.
Sweet memory and true, in her heart and mind,
Remembered sometimes she's left behind.
— Lovingly remembered by husband, Ira Asselstine, son-in-law Jules and grandson Jeffrey.

ASSELSTINE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Ira Asselstine, who died suddenly January 1, 1972.
Memories of shopping, meeting at last, the quarterly weary homeward at last, the end.
No shouts of welcome, no cheering at the door,
Only the sad, sad hour to endure.
— Sadly missed by daughter Betty Ann, son-in-law Donal and grandchildren.

CARD OF THANKS

TO THE many kind persons who sent me cards of my new on Christmas either Cards, Flowers or Gifts of every kind. — Fred MacDonald.

New Zealanders Frown On Custom of Tipping

AUCKLAND (CP) — New Zealand is fighting back against the infiltration from abroad of the practice of tipping.

It is an uphill struggle but New Zealand remains a country where the saucy citizen rarely tips.

A generation ago a New Zealander offered a tip was likely to take grave offence. It was seen as an assumption of superiority.

New Zealand is a country where everyone considers himself as good as the next man, with less class distinction than in many countries which people proclaim equality of all citizens in their democracy.

New Zealand governments have more than once considered the idea of making tipping illegal. But practical difficulties have prevented any real legislation being brought in.

About the only people who regularly receive tips in New Zealand are waiters and when waiters in expensive restaurants, it would be thought odd to tip a taxi driver or a hairdresser.

One hotel which proposed to include a 10-per-cent service charge in its accounts to cover such an outcry that the idea was promptly abandoned.

One class of tipper, however, is hotels, has become almost entirely accept in establishments catering primarily to overseas visitors.

In the majority of hotels patronized by New Zealanders guests carry their own bags and shortly after arrival, the bags are carried inside or lined up a favor by hotel porters normally employed for other duties.

This is a reflection of New Zealand's continuing situation of self-reliance. With more jobs than people to fill them, there are few applicants for the position of hotel bags.

The latest declaration against tipping has come from a royal commission which has been examining reform of the country's licensing laws. Its report said it had heard evidence that tipping was likely to creep in with the influx of foreign visitors and recommended that overseas visitors should be encouraged in this country, it's understood a recommendation on the point is already included in tourist literature which advises that tipping should continue."

The New Zealand Herald in an editorial advocates setting out the local aversion to tipping in clear terms.

Referring to the advice in tourist information, the editorial adds: "It is not enough to say that tipping is optional. Tipping should actively be discouraged by positive statements that tipping is disliked by New Zealanders as a whole and is mainly by servants any encouragement of the custom by visitors."

Biopsy Wound Has Not Healed

By G. C. THORTESON, MD

Dear Doctor: What's the rule concerning biopsies performed on vascular birthmarks? Are they left open or are they supposed to be sutured?

The biopsy was performed on my foot five years ago and the edges have never healed up.—J.M.C.

The area where a birthmark has been removed is usually closed by suture or skin grafting. It could be that in your case the area is under excessive pressure so that healing is prevented.

You should consult either a plastic surgeon or a dermatologist to find out why healing has not occurred in five years.

Dear Dr. Thoteson: Where should a person go to find the answer to a very bad case of halitosis?

My dentist advises my mouth and gums are all right. Sometime ago I had my nose and throat checked and the doctor said I had mucus-ed drip.

I'm 61, and the other problem is discouraging. It's not my imagination either, and it's pretty tough when even your relatives draw away. What kind of a doctor should I go to to find the root of the problem and how to treat it?—Mrs. T.G.

You were on the right track when you went to the eye, nose, and throat specialist, but I wonder if your examination included a check of your sinuses? They can become infected and be the source of chronic bad breath.

I assume your tonsils, if they have not been removed, also got a clean bill. They can be a source, also, of an infection of sinus bug disorder.

On the other hand, many little, seemingly harmless factors can add up to bring about bring bad mouth odor—smoking, irregular teeth which harbor bits of food for prolonged lengths of time, spicy foods, or just plain careless hygiene.

Dental floss has cleared up more cases of bad breath than whole shelves full of washes, etc.

From your letter, it seems that imagination is not playing a part in your problem, but it often does. I get many letters from persons complaining about bad breath. I honestly can't tell you the last time I ran into a person with offensive mouth odor.

Dear Dr. Thoteson: As the result of a fall I have a soft bump on the upper part of my shin bone. It is about the size of a golf ball. Could it be an accumulation of fluid and blood in the area. Later, if the healing is not sufficient the fluids will remain as a soft lump.

Application of hot wet compresses over the spot often promotes blood circulation around the injury and eliminates the lump. Unless there is obvious inflammation, which from your description doesn't seem to be the case, there should be no cause for alarm.

Made Own' Presents

DEEP RIVER, Ont. (CP) — Victory Burns, a farmer with Oakville Hydro, sent off to 20 relatives in Christmas presents bowls he had made himself from rare birds-eye maple, Mr. Burns, who would not tell where he got the rare wood, learned to turn the bowls on a lathe when he worked at a pyrotechnics crafts centre in Prince National Park two years ago.

30,000 Civil Servants Will Become Bilingual

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has expanded official language training to the point where it expects to be able to run 30,000 civil servants through its bilingualism program in the next five years.

With that number the cost of language training has shot up from $68.8 million in 1973-74 to an anticipated $105.2 million in 1978-79.

The comparisons with $11.4 million in 1969-70 when the Official Languages Act came into force.

The escalation in cost has done little to mollify the law's critics. They say it is too costly, still is endangering the careers of many civil servants and is being implemented in areas where there is no need for bilingual services.

The government itself is not entirely happy with the results of trying to make its employees fluent in English and French, Canada's official languages.

Of 447 civil servants who entered full-time immersion courses between Sept. 1 and Dec. 31, 1973, only 225 or 63.8 per cent successfully completed them. Of the remainder, 25.7 per cent dropped out, 1.5 per cent had such learning difficulties they were dropped from the course and 28, or eight per cent, remained in the courses last Nov. 15.

The success rate in earlier courses, which ran for three weeks each, was worse.

As a result the government plans a detailed study to find out why some people seem unable to learn a second language. And it has eliminated the three-week courses, putting all workers in full-time immersion courses that last for a year.

Treasury Board President Jean Chretien says the new program is the reason for the sharp increase in bilingualism costs in the current fiscal year.

Expansion of training to handle 2,500 workers-up from 1,700 under the old program-meant hiring six additional 700 language teachers as well as increasing classroom space and other physical facilities.

Meanwhile, the government continues to extend the scope of bilingualism. The education program is being extended into the Yukon and Northwest Territories in a five-year campaign that is expected to cost $300,000 in 1974-75.

Mr. Chretien announced in November that about 53,000 civil-service positions have been classified as bilingual after a study of all government jobs. The figure is more than double the 25,000 estimated two years ago.

Mr. Chretien said 53 per cent of the bilingual positions are already held by bilingual persons, leaving about 19,000 persons, mostly English-speaking, to be trained in French.

Languages commissioner Keith Spicer said it now is time for a new turn in federal policy to increase the number of French-language units in the civil service.

He said the government has gone to great lengths to protect the rights of unilingual Anglophones, allowing long-time civil servants to remain unilingual and work in English if they wish.

"Now, the federal government, through the treasury board, should give top priority to spelling out where Francophones can work in French," Mr. Spicer says.

For all practical purposes, he said, a unilingual French-speaking civil servant must remain in Quebec, and even there is restricted to locations outside Montreal if he wants to work only in French.

None of the events of the last year has reduced the opposition to the Official Languages Act that remains on some quarters, but it now centres almost entirely on the way the act is being implemented.

The only constitutional challenge to the act failed last spring when the Supreme Court of Canada rejected a bid by Leonard Jones, former Manitoba mayor and now a member of Parliament, to have it declared illegal.

But Quebec in 1974 passed last summer to make French-the official language of that province, has drawn sharp criticism, as a watering down of the federal legislation. Some critics, including New Brunswick Premier Richard Hatfield, have called for a test of its constitutionality in the Supreme Court.

Other opponents, including Conservative back-benchers Ben Cassil (Leeds) and Robert Coates (Cumberland-Colchester North), say the estimated $105.3 million expenditure under the Official Languages Act this year involves a lot of waste and probably is an underestimate of the real cost.

Mr. Coates said he is not opposed to the concept of the official languages program but "all I am opposed to is its inefficient and costly way the government is handling it."

Mr. Cassil said the government tries to create the impression that critics of the program are bigots, leading to "a fear among many people to speak out against it."

He says the government may not think there is much opposition to the program, "but I think it's a sender key right now."

But Mr. Spicer said he senses a constant improvement in acceptance of the official languages program. Many areas supposed to be "hairy and scary" and in fact very open-minded.

The real danger, he contended, is that slow implementation of the law will lead to frustration about it in Western Canada.

As to charges by some MPs that English-speaking civil servants are being hard done by, Mr. Spicer said it is time for more concern about French-speaking civil servants.

"I'm still getting complaints from French-speaking civil servants in Montreal who say they are forbidden to work in French there," he said.

Northern Housing

Mosoh Saddle, the Montreal architect who designed the Habitat project at Expo 67, has come up with a radical new plan for northern housing to be tested at Frobisher Bay, N.W.T. It consists of a continuous chain of octagonal units each with a translucent dome. Architect model for Northwest Territories government show how units might be grouped. (CP Photo)

Habitat's Designer Plans Arctic Home

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — In the post-igloo age finding a good place to live in Canada's North can be a problem. Staff and public housing reflects economy, urgency and a lack of planning.

The situation is slightly worse in the Baffin Island town of Frobisher Bay, where prefabricated houses, utilitarian row houses and an eight-storey apartment building make up the range of housing. Only a few homes in the community of 2,500 offer a standard of comfort and quality comparable to the south.

However, this problem has been tackled by Montreal architect Moshe Saidie and his team. Commissioned by the Northwest Territories government to provide government staff housing, the man who designed Habitat for Expo 67, came up with an octagonal unit featuring a domed central living space.

Early in the design stage a request from the local housing association was received that brought the total of proposed units to 141 from the previous 81.

Arranged in cautious chains conforming to the hills in the town, the new units will each provide a view of the bay and the hills beyond as well as a radical departure from traditional northern housing. Some prefabricated row housing in particular is poorly suited for sustained periods of occupancy in the North.

With this project, his first in Canada since Expo, Mr. Safdie said he hopes to alleviate some of the social problems that afflict many Northern communities.

He said the pressures of isolation and social fragmentation can be relieved by homes that give a feeling of stability, homes where people can spend a great deal of time during the winter.

Translucent domes in the octagonal units admit 10 to 15 per cent of the daylight into the unit during the summer. But in winter they will shed almost glow onto the dark landscape.

Individual housing units will be attached to each other but in a fit-ting arrangement designed to give a feeling of privacy. Living quarters will be grouped around the domed living room on the top floor.

Under the main part of the house will be room for workshops and a cold-storage locker which will keep fish and meat frozen with little or no assistance.

Private home ownership in the North is rare because of high building costs and a mobile population. The territorial government is financing the project. The units will be assigned by government agencies that must house their staff and by the Frobisher Bay Housing Association.

Mr. Safdie hopes to have two trial units ready for habitation by April. These prototypes will be built in the south and assembled on the site, in the classic northern construction pattern.

The plan calls for the remaining homes to be built in a Frobisher Bay factory.

Unofficial estimates put the cost at perhaps $80,000 a unit.

The novelty of the units lies in their appearance and grouping. Mr. Safdie said. Construction techniques are standard and wood and plywood materials will keep the new roughly in line with those of other northern projects.

The pre-fab plants are expected to be a source of training and employment for local people and may eventually produce homes for all of Baffin Island and the region.

UN Has Fallen Victim To Tyranny of Majority

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations in 1974 fell under the shadow of what has become known as the tyranny of the majority, a development weighted with great damage to the UN and possibly to the cause of international peace as well.

The phrase was coined by United States Ambassador John Scali in a bitter denunciation of the growing practice of ganging up on the West and by majority vote in proceeding through the General Assembly unrealistic, unenforceable and onesided resolutions.

"When the rule of the majority becomes the tyranny of the majority, the majority will cease to respect or obey it and the parliament will cease to function," Scali told the assembly.

Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik, Russia's chief delegate off and on since 1968, retorted that the U.S. and its allies had no ground for complaint and reminded the gang of America pre-eminence in the UN when "nations were passed on us . . . ruthlessly and without taking minority opinion into account."

An Arab delegate said the underdeveloped countries were merely breaking the supremacy "of certain group of states" and in many buildings the screens falcons in an unshakable forest."

The Scali statement, obviously prepared with great thought, was provoked by a series of action in which the United States, principal Arab guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat to address the assembly, granted his Palestine Liberation Organization permanent UN observer status and recognized the right of Palestinians to self-determination over Palestine, including the power making up the present state of Israel.

Britain, France and West Germany abstained Scali, but Canada, though sympathetic to the Western cause, remained silent. An external affairs spokesman in Ottawa explained that the Canadian silence was based on the feeling that pressing the issue was fruitless.

With the growth of the UN from its original 51 members in 1945 to its current membership of 138, majority voting power has passed to a group of newly independent countries known variously as the Third World or nonaligned nations. Drawn mostly from Africa, the Middle East and South America, they now call themselves the Group of 77 and on key issues can muster 80 to 90 ballots and easily outvote the West.

In addition, the Third World has had a grip on the UN's General Assembly presidency during 1974 in the person of Boutella of Algeria. His rulings are generally viewed as favorably favored the nonaligned states.

The presidency in 1975 goes to an Australian, a fact from which the Canadian delegation draws some hope for casting for the West in the 1975 assembly.

The UN, never has enjoyed great popularity with the American public and the danger is that the actions of the Third World bloc will further erode whatever support it has with Congress and the government.

The Palestine votes prompted 71 of the 300 members of the U.S. Senate to join in a letter to President Ford calling the resolutions given the PLO when Arafat was invited to speak before the UN in November a "direct threat" to American foreign policy.

One senator suggested the U.S. withdraw from the UN and expressed hope the action might "with any luck" leave New York City.

The United States is the major financial contributor to the UN, paying an annual assessment of 25 per cent of its budget. The Soviet Union contributes 12.5 per cent, West Germany 7.16, France 5.88, Britain 5.31 and Canada 3.15. Assessments are based on a nation's size and wealth.

By contrast, 70 members pay only .01 per cent—and include nearly all of the members of the non-powerful Group of 77.

The Third World bloc began to make its weight felt last April during a special session it called to discuss raw materials and development. The bloc forced through the assembly a tough program of immediate and long-range aid for poorer countries, virtually all of it to be financed by the industrialized countries.

The program, blocking on no one, contained elements unacceptable to most of the West. Approval of international curbs to control raw materials, the right of nationalization of foreign companies, participation of developing countries in all international decisions and the right of all people of developed countries to restitution and full compensation for depletion of their raw materials.

At the General Assembly closed Dec. 18, the U.S. said it would not serve on the board of a new special fund set up by the April session to assist the most economically-distressed countries. West Germany took a similar stance and the fund's preliminary budget announced Monday was scaled down to $130,000 from $500,000.

Third World countries, blocked by British, American and Canadian votes in the Security Council in their efforts to expel South Africa, pushed through an assembly vote suspending the Canada Africans from the session. Angry opponents said the move violated the UN charter, one of the ultimate suspension power to the Security Council.

Over the opposition of Canada, the United States and the industrialized countries, the assembly approved a new economic charter, passed in Mexico, giving countries the right to seize foreign properties the right to decide compensation and to own cartels instead of basing compensation on international law.

The assembly voted to set up a Security Council fund council, as recommended by the World Food Conference in Rome in November, to deal with food aid and other natural help for needy countries.

It turned aside a drive, led by China, to oust the Cambodian government of President Lon Nol in favor of a government-in-exile based in Paris and headed by Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Communist and Third World countries again failed to win assembly approval for the dismantling of the UN Military Command, set up in 1950 to defend South Korea from the North Korean invasion, and the withdrawal of 38,000 American troops stationed in South Korea.

It postponed until 1975 a debate on international terrorism. Arabs contended that acts anti-terrorist measures would be directed against them and Africans expressed fear the curbs would be used to hamper their liberation movements.

Without opposition, the Security Council extended for a further six months the mandates of the UN peace forces stationed in Cyprus and the Middle East. Canada has approximately 1,800 officers and Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'd be wise not to lend your possessions to one you haven't known too long.

Sagittarius (Nov 23-Dec 21) You won't accomplish as much as you're capable of today because you'll divert your attention from major goals to side issues.

Capricorn (Dec 22-Jan 19) Conditions are ripe to bring a problem into the open. There it can be dealt with instead of pretending it's non-existent.

Aquarius (Jan 20-Feb 19) For a very curious reason, one you know is attempting to shield you from something another wants to share with you. Your manoeuvres won't work.

Pisces (Feb 20-March 20) You're going to take a position on an issue that will be popular with your friends but not to your best advantage.

The bidding has been: 1

By Oswald and James Jacoby

We wind up 1974 with a defensive gem that may well be the swindle of this or any year.

Playing at a normal six no-trump, declarer makes 13 tricks by successfully finessing for the king of clubs. At one table in the duplicate game where the hand was played North jumped all the way to seven notrump. South decided that drew one or two at seven would be the same match-point zero. After mature thought he proceeded to cash his ace and king of diamonds. If the queen failed to drop he would still be able to get after that king of clubs.

While South was thinking, East had been doing some thinking of his own. He had worked out just what South's problem was. Now when the second high diamond was led, East was ready. He dropped the queen!

South fell for it like a ton of bricks. He planned dummy's nine and East scored his 10 spot.

To settle questions on the bidding, North's four clubs was Gerber. Sixth's four notrump rebid showed three aces.
